Union Pacific Extension to Port Angeles Seems Probable.

ACCESSIBLE BY THREE ROUTES

Seattle Editor Neatly Colors the Eye of an Abusive Heavyweight.

STORE AT INDEPENDENCE ROBBED

The Albany Teachers' Institute—Washington Deputy Marshals Appointed—The Iroquois Sails for Mare Island.

TACOMA, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—There is something in the wind concerning the Union Pacific railway and its movements in the Puget Sound country. There arrived to-night from Portland a party of seven Union Pacific railway engineers, headed by O. A. Holmes, of Portland, en route to Port Angeles, on the southern shore of the straits of Fuca, and about thirty-five miles nearer the gateway to Puget sound than is Port Townsend. Mr. Holmes in an interview says:

I got orders to go to Port Angeles with my corps of engineers and do some platting and reconnoissance work there. The Union Pacific Company owns about 600 acres of land about the place and a great deal of water front property. We are going to survey this and separate the company's property from that of other holders. There is a fight going on between the railroad now penetrating Washington to get the best terminal possible. The Great Northern is after one, the Hunt has at least one staked out already, and it is but natural to believe the Union Pacific wants one and is hot after it. Still, I can't say just where they think it should be located.

The Union Pacific can build to Port Angeles by several routes. It could build northward from Portland, cross the Columbia at Vancouver, follow up close to the Willamette meridian line and by at least three good routes to the west and through what properly developed would be a very rich country strike Port Angeles. The cost of construction from either of the three points I have in mind could be done and the opening up of the country they are in would hasten on the work of its development which is now progressing very tardily.

The contour of the coast line there in point of desirability as a harbor cannot be excelled. I have been informed that the construction of a breakwater would make of the harbor a splendid haven for the largest ships. It will take us about three weeks to complete our work, when we will return to Tacoma for orders.

The annual meeting of the Union Pacific occurs very soon, and from the way officials of the road are scouring around, I think the question of putting the Union Pacific on as good, if not a better footing to handle the big Washington business as its rival cross country roads do will all be settled. In case the order goes out to wade in you can look for big developments.

A SEATTLE GIANT KNOCKED OUT.

Editor Holman, of the "Post-Intelligencer," Rebukes an Abusive Fellow.

SEATTLE, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The lobby of the Rainier hotel was the scene of a highly sensational incident about 5 o'clock this afternoon. The occasion was a personal encounter between Alfred Holman, editor of the Post-Intelligencer, and Mr. W. H. Sherman, also a resident of this city. The combat was very brief and consisted of a single round, in which Mr. Holman completely knocked out his man, sending him to bed with a beautiful black eye and a much ruffled temper.

The affair grew out of a contest which has been pending here for some days over the secretaryship of the chamber of commerce. Sherman was a candidate for the position, and Mr. Holman was a member of the board of trustees by whom candidates were to be examined and recommended. Holman opposed Sherman's candidacy in the trustees' meeting last night upon grounds which seriously offended the candidate.

Meeting Mr. Holman in the lobby of the hotel this evening Sherman addressed him insultingly, and in return got a blow in the face, with the result above mentioned.

The outcome was a good deal of a surprise to onlookers, owing to the fact that Holman is a man of medium size, while Sherman stands six feet two inches, and weighs 210 pounds. The encounter made a good deal of stir about town, and public opinion concerning it was expressed to-night in a meeting of the chamber of commerce by Sherman's overwhelming defeat for the position for which he was a candidate.

NEWS FROM INDEPENDENCE.

Dry Goods Store Robbed—The Motor Line—Inexhaustible Gravel Mines.

INDEPENDENCE, March 18.—[Special Telegram.]—J. L. Stockton's dry goods store was burglarized last night and $600 in goods and money stolen. The store is under the operahouse, a brick building on Main street. Entrance was gained by means of a ladder to the transom of the front door and climbing down a piece of leather belting fastened to a ladder the burglars dropped inside. The money drawer contained but $6 or $7 which was taken, also twenty-seven pairs of fine shoes, fifteen suits of the best clothes, besides silk handkerchiefs and other goods. The store was found badly disordered this morning. It is thought the theft was committed by three persons at some time after 4 o'clock. A man sleeping in the opera house was disturbed at that hour. The night watch goes to bed at 4 o'clock.

An alarm was given early, and some twenty persons scoured the country, and this afternoon three tramps were brought in from near Airlie, about ten miles from here, who were seen about town last night. They are lodged in jail.

The directors of the motor line railway were in session to-day, having returned from Portland. The steel rails for the motor line will arrive in about eight weeks. A quarter million feet of lumber will be used in the construction of the road.

It is said 200 men will be required to get gravel here for the Corvallis extension and the Astoria railroad. The supply of gravel is inexhaustible.

News From Salem.

SALEM, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The Polk County Improvement Co., of Dallas, filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state to-day as per the Oregonian to-day. The project of building a motor line from Dallas to Salem meets with hearty approval here, and it may be assumed that Salem will take stock in the enterprise.

F. T. Beel was brought to the penitentiary to-day from Linn county and will serve a one-year term for bigamy.

Ollie Jim, an Indian woman from Liberty reservation, was brought to the asylum from Benton county to-day.

Supplemental articles of incorporation were filed to-day of the Umpqua River Railroad & Improvement Company; incorporators, J. C. Drain, W. A. Parkins, Levi Kent, Joseph Sellers, J. W. Krewson, J. E. Payton, W. Kuykendall and Henry Beckley; principal place of business, Drain; purpose, to increase the capital stock from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

A camp of Sons of Veterans will be organized in Salem to-morrow night, a meeting having been called for that purpose. A lodge of Sons of Hermen is also about to be instituted here.

Washington Federal Appointments.

TACOMA, March 19.—United States Marshal Brown, of Tacoma, qualified before Judge Hanford to-day and appointed D. G. Lovell, of Tacoma, and James H. Woolery, of Seattle, deputies, Charles Lambkin, of Tacoma, warden of the United States penitentiary on McNeill's island, and Arthur Perry, of Olympia, clerk.

The district court will convene in Olympia the first Monday in April, but Judge Hanford will hear cases in chambers, beginning the latter part of this week. Marshal Brown hopes to be able to keep his general office in Tacoma. Relative to the matter he said to-day: "If Senator Allen's bill, requiring the holding of sessions of the United States district court in Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane Falls and Walla Walla passes, I shall have a deputy stationed at each of these cities and will have my general office in Tacoma. The office will be in Olympia, however, as long as the district court holds its sessions there."

A Tacoma Whisky Trust.

TACOMA, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Four liquor dealers of Tacoma are anxious to enter into negotiations with the city to control the whisky retail traffic within the corporate limits. The scheme contemplates that at the end of the present year all the saloon licenses shall be rescinded and no new ones issued except to the syndicate. The company will agree to pay into the city treasury a sum equal to that obtained from all the saloons. The projectors will further guarantee to run not more than twenty places for retail liquor selling, and that these shall not be located near churches, schoolhouses or in thickly settled residence portions of the city. Aside from these obligations the saloon syndicate will assume the responsibility for all violations of the law traced to any of the places controlled by them, agreeing to strictly observe all ordinances as to closing hours and selling to minors, habituals, etc.

Albany Teachers' Institute.

ALBANY, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The teachers' institute for the third judicial district convened at the opera house to-night, with a large attendance from all the counties of the district except Tillamook. The institute was called to order by State Superintendent E. B. McElroy. The address of welcome was delivered by Superintendent L. M. Curl, of Albany; the response by Superintendent Reynolds, of Polk county. A lecture was delivered by Rev. W. Rollins, of Suver; subject: "Heroism Modernized." The session will last three days.

News from Whatcom.

WHATCOM, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Ed. Davis, a young negro, went into Postmaster Hofercamp's house at Sehome and stole a gold watch, jewelry, and a small sum of money. The landlady saw him under a bed upstairs, gave the alarm, and he was captured and jailed.

Lawyers doubt whether tide lands sold under the house bill are taxable until the state passes title to the purchaser by deed ten years hence.

The Iroquois Sails South.

PORT TOWNSEND, March 19.—The American man-of-war Iroquois sailed for Mare Island to-day. One engine has been partly repaired. She can steam four knots an hour. It is reported that the revenue cutter Oliver Wolcott will accompany the Iroquois to San Francisco.

The bark Bundaleer, which was towed ashore yesterday near Dungeness, could not be got off by two tugs. She is resting easily on the mud flats, and is uninjured.

Liability of an Indorser.

TACOMA, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—In a suit before Judge Campbell in the superior court the jury to-day decided that indorsers of promissory notes were liable, and that it is not necessary to notify them of the non payment of the note. The case has been in court for two years, and was watched with great interest by the legal fraternity.

Santiam Mining Suit.

ALBANY, March 19.—In the case of M. V. Bilyue, Amos Strong, et al., vs. E. O. Smith, for the recovery of the Red Bull mining claim, in Santiam mining district, to-day the jury returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiffs. The case will be appealed to the supreme court.

Found With His Throat Cut.

WHATCOM, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The man found here with his throat cut, last December, has been identified as Samuel McCauley, of British Columbia, where he left a wife and four children.

General Faulkner is Certainly Dead.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 19.—C. L. Bingham, receiver of the First National bank of Dansville, pronounced the report that Lester B. Faulkner is alive and in Mexico without the least particle of truth. Rev. Ward, who officiated at Faulkner's funeral, says also that he is dead. He saw the body after death.

The Lake Shore Conductor Arraigned.

BUFFALO, March 19.—Conductor Houghtaling was arraigned this morning, charged with a misdemeanor, in being responsible for the Bay View accident, in accordance with the verdict of the coroner's jury. He pleaded not guilty, and was held to await the action of the grand jury.

Manitoba Asks Unrestricted Reciprocity.

WINNIPEG, March 19.—The Manitoba legislature has adopted a resolution asking the Dominion parliament to take steps to negotiate with the United States government with a view to the adoption of an unrestricted reciprocity in trade.

A CALL TO DEMOCRATS.

State Convention to Be Held in Portland April 24.

COUNTY CONVENTIONS APRIL 24.

Demand That Brickyards Furnish Their Employes With Straw.

UNANIMOUS FOR GOV. PENNOYER

Sweat-Wrought Appeal of the State Central Committee—The Primary Meetings Set for April 10.

SALEM, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The state democratic central committee met in Salem this afternoon with the following representation of delegates and proxies, by counties:

A. Bush, chairman; P. H. D'Arcy, secretary; Benton, P. H. D'Arcy; Clackamas, W. H. Vaughn; Clatsop, C. J. Trenchard and H. A. Smith; Coos, A. Bush; Crook, Elisha Barnes; Grant, J. L. Morrow; Josephine, James Coleman; Lane, L. Bilyeu; Linn, M. A. Miller; Morrow, J. L. Morrow; Multnomah, L. B. Cox; Polk, W. W. Williams; Umatilla, W. T. Slater and T. Fitzgerald; Wasco, M. Herbert; Multnomah, William von Cadow, seated by courtesy.

It was the unanimous sense of the committee that the state convention be held at Portland, and the time was set for Thursday, April 24, eight days after the republican convention.

A motion was carried that a committee of five be appointed to draft a call for the convention and determine the apportionment, which it was decided to have based on the vote for Governor Pennoyer four years ago. Cox, Trenchard, Miller, Herbert and Fitzgerald were appointed the committee, and after deliberation of an hour reported the following call which was unanimously adopted verbatim, after considerable discussion as to the advisability of expunging the words "sweat-wrought" in connection with tribute, and the brick and straw picture drawn at the close of the call, but the report was adopted unanimously as it came from the hands of the committee, as follows:

CALL FOR A STATE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

The democratic central committee for the state of Oregon, assembled at Salem the 19th day of March, 1890, has appointed Portland as the place and Thursday, the 24th day of April, 1890, at the hour of 11 o'clock in the forenoon, as the time for holding a convention for the democratic party of the state of Oregon, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of congressman, governor, judge of the supreme court, secretary of state, treasurer, superintendent of public instruction, state printer and district officers to be voted for at the June election, and to transact such further business as may properly come before the convention.

The representation will consist of 192 delegates, apportioned among the several counties of the state as follows:

Baker	6	Polk	6	Harney	2
Clackamas	8	Tillamook	2	Josephine	4
Columbia	3	Union	7	Lake	3
Crook	5	Wasco	6	Linn	11
Douglas	7	Yamhill	7	Marion	10
Grant	4	Clatsop	7	Multnomah	23
Jackson	8	Benton	7	Sherman	2
Klamath	3	Coos	6	Umatilla	10
Lane	9	Curry	2	Wallowa	4
Malheur	3	Gilliam	4	Washington	6
Morrow	6

The same being one delegate at large from each county and one delegate for every 175 votes, and one for every fraction thereof exceeding one-half cast for Governor Pennoyer at the June election of 1886.

The committee recommend that precinct primaries be held the 10th day of April, and the various county conventions the 16th day of April, unless county committees determine differently.

We invite all American citizens, without distinction of calling or political preference, who are weary of paying sweat-wrought tribute to conscienceless monopolies, to emulate the example of their fellows who have so emphatically expressed themselves at the polls at the recent elections in Massachusetts, Ohio and Iowa, and who in Kansas announce their intention to take a stand and to unite with us in a determined effort to re-establish our National Merchant Marine, to strike off the fetters of our suffering factories and to relieve the great army of consumers from the burden of tax which oppresses them grievously and profits them nothing, and to rebuke the party which now announces not only that the body politic of this country shall make brick, but that they shall make them without straw.

GOVERNOR PENNOYER THE CHOICE.

In interviews with different members of the committee it could readily be seen that Governor Pennoyer was the unanimous choice of the democracy of the state for governor, and there seems to be no doubt among democrats that he will be elected. They think his opponent will be Thompson, Moody or DeLashmutt.

The last paragraph in the call was constructed to meet the republican call, and answer the challenge, so to speak, contained therein. The committee thought a chip had been placed on the republican shoulder by the call of that party, and their effort to-day was to displace that chip.

TRIAL OF BISHOP ESHER.

The Noted Evangelical Preacher Charged With Unchristian Practices.

READING, Pa., March 19.—The committee of the Evangelical Association, appointed to try Bishop Esher, of Chicago, began its hearing to-day. The charges were read in substance as follows: Unchristian conduct, slander, evil speaking and falsehood, creating dissensions, perpetuating and intensifying agitation in the church and disturbing her peace by the revival of old and previously adjudicated differences. Bishop Esher is not in attendance.

Express Robbers Arrested.

MISSOULA, Mont., March 19.—E. A. Searles and W. C. Paine, who have been living here the past month, were arrested to-day, charged with robbing the Northern Pacific express office at Brainerd, Minn., of $15,000 about a year ago.

Mrs. Burchell Discharged.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 19.—Mrs. Burchell was taken before a police magistrate to-day, but as neither Detective Murray or Crown Attorney Raymond had any evidence against Mrs. Burchell she was discharged.

The Sugar Trust Dividend.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The application of the sugar trust to declare a dividend of 2½ per cent. on its $50,000,000 of certificates, was to-day referred to Judge O'Brien, and will be heard to-morrow.

THE McKINLEY BILL WILL PASS

Windom Silver Bill Not Acceptable to the Senate—Voorhees on Agricultural Depression—A Confederate's Name is Mud

WASHINGTON, March 19.—[OREGONIAN office, corner Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.]—Yesterday the president invited Senators Dawes, Aldrich, Allison, Hitchcock, Morrill and Jones of the senate and Messrs McKinley, Burrows, Cannon, Conger and Bingham, of the house, to dine with him informally, it being understood that matters of public policy were to be discussed during the evening. Dinner was earlier than usual and was served in a private dining room. After the menu was half finished the president introduced the subject of the tariff and asked how the committee on ways and means was getting along with the bill. McKinley explained the situation. The president then asked Mr Aldrich and Mr Allison what prospect the bill would have in the senate. They told him they would be able to pass it in good order provided it conformed to the policy represented by the bill reported and passed by them at the last session.

The president then expressed himself very warmly upon the subject of the tariff, explaining that in his opinion the interest of the country demanded that there should be a reduction of the revenue, particularly on articles of food and the necessaries of life. There was a good deal of feeling expressed, particularly in the Northwest, against maintaining the tariff imposed during the war. The republican party was pledged to reduce the revenues, and duties would better be cut down even if the government was compelled to economize to make both ends meet.

Then the silver question was taken up, and the president asked Conger, chairman of the house committee on coinage, weights and measures, what the prospect was in the house for that legislation. Conger thought it was entirely probable that the Windom bill would pass very much as had been decided upon by the committee, but when the president asked Aldrich what prospect the bill would have in the senate he was informed that the committee on finance had already reported a substitute which differed materially from the Windom bill, and that they would insist on its passage and to agree to no other. Whereupon Jones of Nevada spoke quite freely and explained to the president the character of the senate bill. The most remarkable feature about it, he said, was that it had been unanimously agreed to by the senate committee on finance and was the only financial measure indorsed to such an extent by that committee. Any measure, he said, was remarkable that could secure the approval of Morrill and himself, but the Windom bill was not so popular.

The president did not engage in controversy, but intimated that in his opinion the Windom bill covered the case as well as any that could be devised, and he was particularly anxious for the passage of some sort of measure.

At the caucus of republican senators last evening a general policy was decided upon, now that the Blair bill will be disposed of to-morrow. Senator Davis's dependent pension bill will be first considered, and probably with it the disability pension bill. Next in importance will be the coinage of silver bill. From the talk among senators it was assured that the bill would be pushed. It requires the secretary of the treasury to coin the full amount of $4 000 000 a month. Some were of course in favor of free coinage, but the proposition of the finance committee will be early brought forward and, if acted on, passed. A committee of seven was appointed to select those measures which should be passed as a matter of party policy and to report at a future meeting.

Among the amendments made by the senate committee to the administrative customs bill, reported to the senate this afternoon, was the striking out of the provision that the section shall not apply to articles exported from the United States and reimported. A section was added fixing the time the act shall take effect July 1, 1890, except section 16, which shall take effect at once. This section provides for the appointment by the president of nine general appraisers, not more than five from one political party.

The republican members of the ways and means committee will submit the tariff bill to the full committee on Friday. An agreement has been reached on Mexican lead ores. Lead ores will be dutiable at 1½ cents per pound and will have to pay duty regardless whether or not lead ore is associated with other ores.

The house has passed Hermann's bill pensioning Mrs Christina Edson, better known in early Oregon days as Mrs Geisel, whose captivity among the Rogue River Indians and subsequent ransom and services to the surviving settlers, as well as the pathetic narrative of the massacre of her family, was told by Hermann at the time his bill was reported. It was published in many of the Eastern papers. She is voted a pension of $50 a year for the remainder of her life. Mr Hermann took a deep interest in this aged pioneer woman and was very solicitous as to the fate of his bill, because of the general opposition of Kilgore of Texas, who invariably opposes pensions to survivors of Indian wars. Usually he asserts that "there are plenty of pioneer people in Texas just as meritorious and entitled to a pension." To-day it happened, however, that for the first time [illegible]. The touching narrative in the committee's report was read and the bill passed without opposition. At once Kilgore came down on the floor, and walking up to Mr Hermann extended his hand and good-naturedly said:

"I [illegible] a hand in having [illegible]. As [illegible] I never knew [illegible] of your case [illegible] you Oregon Indian survivor. We have plenty of meritorious cases in Texas, but I don't know that we have any just like this case of yours to-night."

Senator Mitchell of Oregon made a strong speech at the republican caucus last night urging that the forfeiture bills pending before congress should be brought forward and passed. He particularly referred to the unearned grants in Washington and Oregon of the Northern Pacific road, which were of great disadvantage to the development of that country.

The house committee on public lands to-day ordered a favorable report on Comstock's bill for the relief of settlers on Northern Pacific indemnity lands, with a few amendments.

A majority of the house committee on public buildings and grounds have signified their intention of supporting the bills passed by the senate yesterday for sites for public buildings in Washington. Senator Squire, a member of the senate committee, has been pulling some strings on these committees, which seems to be bearing fruit. Representative Wilson says he thought that the best plan would be to secure one building now and take another next session, but as the senate bills have passed they will have his hearty support.

The new state men have found a method of securing legislation in the senate. They all stay through the dreary debates, and late in the afternoon, when the prosy talkers have driven everybody out of the chamber, they call up as unobjected bills their own pet measures and pass them. A number of bills went on through last evening which have been pending some time.

Hansbrough and Pickler were to-day laboring with Lind of Minnesota to convince him that the repeal of the timber culture act was what was necessary for the good of the new states and territories. It is generally understood that Lind's active opposition would defeat the bill, and the men anxious for its repeal want him to hold off. Representative Wilson of Washington says that the law is used in his state to keep settlers from securing valuable tracts by passing the title from one man to another for several years. It is believed the bill will pass.

The democrats do not propose to take any chances on the Mudd-Compton contested election case, which came up to-day and will be decided before the end of the week. It is unquestionable that Cate of Arkansas would not have been unseated if the democrats had rallied their full party, and in the present instance they do not propose to repeat the blunder. Carlisle has issued a circular to the democratic members urging them to be present during the progress of the case. It is claimed that seven republican members will vote with the democrats.

Governor Shoup of Idaho, who has been in Washington City several weeks working hard for the admission of his state, left for the West to-day. He thinks that Idaho's admission is assured. A number of senators suggested to the governor to-day that he select a seat he would like to occupy in that body as soon as Idaho is a state.

Martin Maginnis, the would-be democratic senator from Montana, is very sour and disgusted. He thinks he has not been used as he should have been, even by his party friends. His defeat and Toole's election last fall has not been fully explained, and now that he will be obliged to return to his constituents without any senatorial dignity he is not all pleased. Colonel Clark, on the other hand, is feeling all right and accepts the inevitable with cheerfulness.

Senator Squire to-day presented a memorial from the Washington legislature asking congress to appropriate $100 000 for improvements on the Skagit river. It was ordered printed.

IN THE SENATE.

Morton in the Chair—Voorhees on Farming in the Sterile East.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—In the senate Vice-president Morton occupied the chair to-day. The resolution offered by Voorhees Monday as to agricultural depression was taken up and Voorhees addressed the senate. He said in part:

It was now nearly thirty years since the close of the war had given to avarice an opportunity to prey upon the self-sacrificing patriots of the country. The measures resorted to for the taxation of one class of citizens and the enrichment of another had been legislation by which the burden of the public debt had been doubled, silver demonetized and a high protective tariff established. He characterized the protective tariff as a curse. Farmers of the United States to-day did not receive on an average more than ten cents a bushel for corn, fifty cents for wheat and two to three cents a pound for hogs. Every pretense of a home market for the farmer was a fraud, and every pretense of fixing wheat and oats and potatoes for his benefit was a cheat and a sham. It is a notorious truth that the tariff as it now stood increased the farmers' expense account from 40 to 50 per cent on every implement of industry with which he toiled, and last year binding twine was raised to eighteen cents a pound by a trust.

He did not believe the hands of the farmer would hold a republican ticket at the next presidential election. Not only had there been no increase in the value of land the last quarter century, but there had been an absolute loss of 33 per cent. Improved farm lands to-day under the most favorable circumstances would not on a general average realize more than two-thirds what their value had been twenty-five years ago. Ohio farms were now under mortgages amounting to $3[illegible]0 000 000. In Illinois 8 per cent of the whole face of the state was under mortgage, they amounting to $1[illegible] 000 000. Forty-seven per cent of the state of Michigan was under mortgage. In Indiana, Kentucky, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and the whole Northwest from 40 to 60 per cent of farm lands were under mortgages at such rates of interest as the farmers could never pay out of the crops, to say nothing of the principal. The farmers were thus brought face to face with ruin. Nor were the farmers of New England different in that respect from the Western states.

The remedies to be applied were: First, tariff reform; a full supply of legal money, free coinage of silver, suppression by law of gambling in futures, and a liberal policy of pensions.

Voorhees summed up his argument with a reference to the "subsidized press," "blocks of five," "official patronage," etc.

Wilson of Iowa desired to read a letter from a farmer in Iowa who knew more by practical experience about the farming class than the senator from Indiana ever learned in his readings. The letter has already been published, showing the comparatively low prices of farm produce and high prices of manufactured goods before the war.

The Blair educational bill was taken up and Pierce spoke in opposition to it, while Evarts and Call advocated it.

Allison, from the finance committee, reported with amendments the house bill in relation to collection of revenue. Calendar. Adjourned.

Among nominations to-day was the following: Commodore D. K. Beckham to be rear admiral.

In the House.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—In the house the Mudd and contested election case of Mudd vs Compton was called up. Debate was limited to six hours. Lacey of Iowa opened the discussion in support of the claims of the contestant. Dalzell and Greenhalge advocated the case of the contestant, and the case of the sitting member was upheld by Moore and Gibson. Pending a vote the house adjourned.

Public Buildings in Alaska.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Mr Dolph secured passage of his bill for ports of entry in Alaska last evening. It constitutes Mary Island, Wrangel, Juneau, [illegible] Point, Kodiak and Ounalaska ports of delivery in the customs district of Alaska, and provides that the secretary of the treasury shall appoint officers for each of these places. Buildings to cost $25 000 are to be erected for the government.

O. T. Porter, United States marshal for Alaska, has asked for an appropriation of $3000 for repair of the foundation of government buildings at Sitka, which he says are in a dangerous condition. The attorney-general this morning transmitted the letter, with a request for an appropriation, to the house.

Dr Harrison Wagner a Crank.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Dr Harrison Wagner, whose numerous and heavy suits against the Adams Express Company, instituted in small county courts, recently attracted considerable attention, is locked up in the police station here to await the pleasure of the authorities of Stafford county, Va., who want him on a charge of forgery of signatures to documents in a case. Wagner says he was a manufacturer of medicines in Frederick county, Md., and brought suits against the express company in several states for failure to deliver his medicines, obtaining numerous judgments by default. He asserts his innocence of forgery. Wagner is thought to be a crank.

The Australian Ballot Law Passes Into Effect—School Bill Passed—A Western Union Telegraph Victory

OLYMPIA, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Twenty-one senators were present this evening when the senate met to consider Hughes's revenue bill. Before taking the bill up the governor informed the senate that he had signed senate bill 38, entitled "An act to authorize school districts to borrow money and issue bonds for the building and furnishing of schoolhouses, etc.;" also Kinnear's bill providing for printing and distribution of ballots at public expense; also senate bill 119, providing for construction of drains and ditches.

Then Houghton started the ball rolling by submitting an amendment prescribing the manner in which an assessor shall ascertain the value of mines and mining claims. On April 1 the owner or president of the mine shall file a statement of the net profits, and that shall be taken as the net value of the mine. Coal mines were excluded. Owings supported the amendment, and Thompson of Pierce told how he had spent $15 000 for the purpose of discovering oil near Sumner. The speaker did not believe in taxing capital when it was anxious to develop the state. Before taking a vote Houghton further amended his amendment by also including machinery. Kinnear opposed this, and Houghton withdrew his last amendment. The amendment was adopted.

Luce next submitted an amendment that insurance companies pay into the state treasury a tax of 1 per cent. Kinnear thought 1½ per cent was better and suggested this as an amendment to the amendment. Luce asked the King senator what he thought would be a fair tax for home insurance companies to pay. Kinnear frankly admitted his ignorance of the subject. Wood thought 1 per cent was hard enough for any company to pay. Rinehart said foreign companies paid their taxes where they were organized. The object of taxing foreign companies was for the purpose of placing them on a more equal basis with companies organized in the state. Owings failed to see the force of the argument. The presumption of the law was that the company paid taxes somewhere. If a foreign company paid taxes at home it should not be asked to pay taxes in Washington. The idea was a ruinous one. Whatever the state charged the companies, the people who insured would have to pay the difference. Dunn looked upon the tax as a license to carry on business. However, if we were obliged to have a tax, let it be as small as possible. Kneeland thought the state was treading on delicate ground. It was unfair to ask insurance companies to pay taxes after the losses that they had been put to last summer.

After a lively passage of arms between Owings and Rinehart, the Thurston senator said he regretted that the King county senator had cited Oregon as an example for Washington to follow. If there were ever semi-barbarians in financial matters they lived in Oregon. In financial matters they were positively stupid. He regretted that so great a state as Washington should be mentioned in the same breath with Oregon. The remarks were greeted with applause.

Kinnear's amendment was lost—17 nays, 6 yeas. The original amendment was then adopted—17 yeas, 6 nays.

Houghton next submitted an amendment that the state tax shall be 2½ mills and not 3 mills, as suggested by the committee on revenue and taxation. Rinehart seconded the amendment. Carried.

Lawrence's amendment to make the school tax 10 mills, instead of 6 mills, aroused the wrath of Long, who stated that in view of the prospective immigration to the state it would be highly improper to have such a school tax. Lost, 11 ayes, 10 noes.

Rinehart followed with an amendment that "all goods, chattels, moneys and credits, except such as are secured by mortgages," shall be construed to include personal property. Houghton hoped the amendment would not prevail. In advocating the amendment Rinehart said that he had lived in benighted Oregon twenty-five or thirty years, and knew that Washington was getting much of Oregon's wealth and many of Oregon's people through Oregon's mistaken financial policy. Owings thought cheap capital would enrich the state more than anything else. The speaker was in favor of the amendment. He knew many who made notes over in Oregon to escape paying taxes in the state. He would not tax credits of any kind.

Long's motion to exempt credits from taxation provoked a lengthy debate, after which it was adopted—yeas 15, nays 8. Rinehart withdrew his motion. The senate then adjourned. The bill will come to a vote to-morrow.

The senate judiciary committee knocked the life out of Senator Payne's bill defining the rights and obligations of telegraph and telephone companies with a little amendment to-night. Section 5, which is the principal section, empowers any telegraph company to build along any road or railroad line. The committee amendment was a proviso reading as follows: "Providing that the right to build such lines shall first be obtained by the exercise of the right of eminent domain as provided by law." The amendment practically kills the bill and leaves matters as they stand now. The bill, if passed, would be especially beneficial to the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company, which wants authority to extend its line throughout Washington. Senator Payne thinks the senate will not adopt the amendment. There were three members present at the meeting of the committee: Payne, Houghton and Kinnear. Houghton offered the amendment.

The bill introduced by the joint committee on school lands, providing for the sale and leasing of school lands, was under consideration to-day in the senate and was pending when the upper chamber adjourned this afternoon. It has been made a special order for to-morrow at 10 o'clock. Section 7 of the bill was amended to provide that purchasers of improved lands shall pay to the improver in cash the appraised value thereof within thirty days of the day of sale. Section 21, which prohibited the state land commission from purchasing county bonds paying no more than par for the bonds, was stricken out. Any other important amendments will be made before the senate passes the bill. The probabilities are that it will possess but few of the original features when it is returned to the house for concurrence.

The house this afternoon passed the school bill of the joint committee of education, which it has been considering for the past three days. There were only seven votes against it. Gandy and Grubb intended to vote against it, but withdrew their opposition after explaining that they were confident the senate would not concur in some house amendments and that the objectionable features would be removed by the joint conference committee. The principal amendment made in the house to-day was one offered by Cook, requiring county superintendents to apportion 35 per cent of the county school fund to each district in proportion to the number of teachers employed, and the remaining 65 per cent to each district in proportion to the number of children as shown by the last school census. The original figures were 25 and 75 per cent. This change was the cause of the opposition from Gandy and Grubb. The state auditor and state treasurer were added to the board to be composed of the state superintendent and four persons to be appointed by the governor to adopt a system of text books. Another amendment allows teachers $3 per day and mileage at 10 cents while attending institutes. A long debate followed Geoghegan's amendment requiring at least six months school to be taught in all parts of the state. The bill provides three months. It was shown that it would be impossible to comply with Geoghegan's amendment, and it was voted down. Section 87, requiring children who have been absent from school because of sickness or lack of school facilities to make good the time so lost at the ensuing term, section 88, imposing a fine of $100 on parents or guardians who keep children from school, and section 89, relating to such fines, were stricken out, and a fine of from $10 to $25 provided for parents or guardians who fail to send children between eight and ten years of age to school at least three months in a year. It was provided that the bill should not apply to towns containing 10 000 or more inhabitants.

The house then passed without amendment Senator Drum's bill for the government of schools in towns of 10,000 inhabitants or over. Shaw made a determined effort to make the bill cover towns of 5000 or more. His motion failed by the close vote of 21 to 26. The bill empowers boards of education to prescribe systems of text books, which must not be changed oftener than once in five years.

At a meeting of the house to-night the senate bill for the incorporation of municipalities was taken up and two hours spent in reading two-thirds of it. The bill divides municipalities into three classes—cities, towns and villages. Cities are divided into three classes according to population, those having 20 000 people being of the first order, those over 10 000 being of the second order and those over 3000 being of the third order. Municipalities having from 300 to 3000 are towns and those under 300 are villages. An amendment proposed in the house is that no more than one square mile shall be contained within the limits of a town, nor shall more than twenty acres of improved land belonging to any one person be taken by the corporate limits of a town without the consent of the owner of the land.

Senator Austin introduced another bill in the senate to-day, but he had to get the consent of two-thirds of the members of both houses. This is in accordance with the constitution, which distinctly states no new business can be introduced after ten days preceding final adjournment. The bill is amendatory of the bill recently passed by both houses authorizing counties to issue bonds to build schoolhouses, to which Governor Ferry had serious objections. The governor thought the bill was all right for counties but not for cities.

Senator Austin made a strong effort this afternoon in the senate to have Oliphant's bill creating a commission to establish a scientific school considered, and was so far successful as to have it discussed in committee of the whole, but the bill was laid on the table not only once but twice. The bill appropriated $10 000 for the purpose, but this amount was reduced to $5000 on motion of Kinnear, who thought such an amount would be ample to carry out the ideas of the proposed commission.

The joint committee on apportionment met to-day and took up the bill drafted by Governor Ferry, which increases the senate by one and the house by two members. The governor thought his bill would meet all the constitutional requirements. The committee was favorably impressed with it. The committee will take up the subject again to-morrow night. It expects to present the bill Friday morning.

The senate has refused to take action on Governor Ferry's veto of Representative Stevenson's trespass bill, deeming the action of the house in suggesting the veto sufficient. The house to-day asked for a conference committee. Evans, Geoghegan, M[illegible], Pickrell and Stevenson were appointed on the part of the house.

Representative Geoghegan's bill appropriating $3500 to defray the expense of a state exhibit at the G. A. R. encampment at Boston this year was indefinitely postponed in the house this morning. Geoghegan made a hard fight for his bill, but the retrenchment policy had taken too firm a hold of the house.

The senate bills governing primary elections and providing for registration in places having a voting population of over 200 were reported favorably by the house election committee this morning and made a special order for 10:30 A. M. to-morrow.

The senate to-day passed Representative Evans's bill enabling Puyallup Indians to alien their lands, and Senator Payne's bill to protect the health of female employes.

A Family Awfully Tangled Up.

PORT[illegible], March 19.—James Seth Adams, a boy of 7, is suing, through friends, his father's third wife to establish his right to one-fourth of an estate of $75 000 left by the late Seth Adams, of Newton, to the children of his brother, Charles W. Adams. Plaintiff is a child of Charles W. Adams and Hannah Phillips. His mother was born in England in 18[illegible]3. She met plaintiff's father in 1863 and came to America with him in the capacity of governess for his children, and subsequently returned to England, but in 1873 returned and assumed marital relations with her future husband. They resided in various sections of the country, and in 18[illegible]2 plaintiff was born in San Francisco. A few months later Adams obtained a divorce in California from his third wife, the defendant in the present case. He died in 1887. The third wife contends that the divorce was illegal, on the ground that the husband had no domicile in California, that she was not notified of the proceedings and was not guilty of abandonment as alleged. If the divorce was illegal plaintiff has no share in the estate in question.

Cruiser Newark Launched.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—The Newark, the last of the three steel cruisers built for the government by Cramp & Sons, was successfully launched this afternoon in a blinding snow storm. The vessel was christened by the daughter of Congressman Boutelle.

The Newark is an unarmored steel cruiser, is 310 feet long, 49[illegible] feet in extreme beam, with a maximum draught of 20½ feet and mean draught of 18¾ feet, securing for her an intended displacement of 4083 tons. She will be fitted with twin screws and triple expansion engines, which are expected to furnish 6000 horse power under natural and 8[illegible] under forced draught, thus enabling her to attain a speed of eighteen knots an hour.

Seven Persons Killed by Apaches.

SILVER CITY, N. M., March 19.—It is reported here that seven persons have been killed by Indians on the Little Blue, about twenty miles from Alma, a small place in the Mogollones, seventy-five miles from this city. The report has not yet been confirmed. Thirty Indians are reported out. The military at Fort Bayard have information that only thirteen renegades are out, and they were at last accounts near the Mexican line, heading for Mexico.

MONEY MARTS OF EUROPE UNEASY

The Late Chancellor Grows Friendly With His Enemies, the French—Lord Salisbury May Dissolve Parliament

BERLIN, March 19.—General von Caprivi, commander of the Tenth army corps, has been appointed chancellor of the empire to succeed Bismarck.

Bismarck, in his note to the emperor tendering his resignation, alleged that old age and failing health were the reasons for his desiring to withdraw from public life.

To-day's papers call attention to the fact that while taking lunch yesterday with the delegates to the labor conference Bismarck gave a cordial greeting to Jules Simon, the head of the French delegation, and had a long conversation with him. He has invited all the French delegates to dine with him to-morrow.

The bourse is weak in consequence of Bismarck's resignation.

The National Gazette says that General von Caprivi, the new chancellor, has also been appointed president of the Russian ministry. The Gazette also says Count Herbert Bismarck persists in resigning his position as imperial foreign minister, and he will be succeeded by either Von Radowitz, German ambassador at Constantinople, or Count von Hatzfeldt, German ambassador at London.

Chancellor Caprivi will not assume the foreign portfolio. Von Boettecher becomes president of the Prussian ministry. Count Eulenberg, governor of Hesse Nassau, succeeds Von Boettecher as minister of the interior. Count Herbert Bismarck will receive an ambassadorship. Ministers Herrfurth and Maybach have resigned. The Tageblatt says the emperor has dismissed Count von Waldersee, his chief of staff.

LONDON, March 19.—The Berlin correspondent of the News denies the story that Bismarck refused to visit the emperor the evening before the resignation. It is reported that the emperor was annoyed at Bismarck for interviewing Windthorst without consulting him. It is said to be certain that Bismarck did not intend to resign at present, because he intended to make a great political speech on the reopening of the reichstag, and await a chance for an impressive exit from the political scene. Bismarck is in excellent spirits. He suffers from insomnia and earnestly desires rest. His family, and especially his wife, are glad he resigned.

LONDON, March 19.—The Times Berlin correspondent says: Although a soldier of the first order, Caprivi, in the opinion of all his intimates, is very much more, and if personal appearance counts for anything he is a man of great force of character and will. He bears a remarkable likeness to Bismarck.

The Standard's Berlin correspondent says: The emperor likes Caprivi personally, but he is intractable by nature and is not likely to be chancellor long.

LONDON, March 19.—The stock market is weak on account of Bismarck's retirement from office.

BISMARCK AND VILLARD.

The Resignation Has No Effect on Stocks—It is Sentiment, Not Liquidation.

ST PAUL, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—A Pioneer Press New York special says: An evening paper says of to-day's stock market: The report that Bismarck is about to retire concurrently with the decline in Northern Pacific preferred, and the rumor that Germany was selling stocks, a theorist puts this way: "The Berlin syndicate can't allow the stock to decline very much abroad. Within the past few days the Deutscher bank has notified the directors that it will exercise its option of taking a twenty-five block of $3 000 000 bonds at a price that will net the company eighty-nine. When the first block of $3 000 000 was offered subscriptions amounted to $1 130 000 and the syndicate felt confident of its ability to place another block of like size. The resignation of Bismarck is not likely to interfere with the scheme." A more probable cause for weakness in Northern Pacific preferred is the maneuvering of Villard in connection with the Oregon & Transcontinental Company. It has been understood that the Oregon & Transcontinental is to be reorganized as a banking corporation, but it is now rumored that this is a mistake. It seems the concern is to go into liquidation, sell off its assets, pay its debts and divide what is left among the stockholders. As a preliminary its bonds which are guaranteed by the Northern Pacific are to be paid off May 1.

SIBERIAN RAILWAY NEEDED.

Without It Russia Dare Not Begin the Conquest of China.

ST PETERSBURG, March 19.—At a military conference here General Unterberger, governor of the province of Amoor, advocated a policy of moderation toward China on the ground that in case of war Russia could place only twenty battalions against 80 000 Manchurian soldiers. He urged speedy construction of the Siberian railway as the best counteraction to the massing of Chinese troops on the Siberian boundary, with the object of seizing the Russian ports on the North Pacific coast.

THE CZAR DISPLEASED.

Thinks England and America Should Not Notice the Siberian Atrocities.

LONDON, March 19.—The St Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News says: The Russian government is displeased by the meetings held in London and America to denounce outrages committed upon exiles in Siberia.

SWEEPING THE CHEROKEE STRIP.

Soldiers Driving Boomers Before Them—The President in Dead Earnest.

GUTHRIE, I. T., March 19.—The patrol of the Cherokee strip by the forces of the United States army has begun. The troops were massed at this point this morning and from Guthrie will march to four different points along the southern boundary of the strip, thence will march in squads, covering as much ground as possible, north through the strip, notifying settlers who now remain of the president's notice and forcibly evicting those who refuse to go voluntarily. Once out, they will be kept out.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—It has been discovered that the Cherokee Homesteaders' Association has issued a secret circular calling for a general raid into the strip from all directions April 22. It says there is good reason to believe they will not be molested if a sufficiently large number go in. On the strength of this, President Harrison has authorized the statement that settlement of the strip will not be allowed until authorized, no matter what proportions the raid assumes.

CALDWELL, Kan., March 19.—The Cherokee Strip Live Stock Association to-day adopted resolutions providing for the removal of cattle in accordance with the president's proclamation. A memorial to the president was adopted, requesting protection against boomer raids.

LIBERAL, Kan., March 19.—Despite the president's proclamation a party of boomers numbering 200 or 300 have started for No Man's Land, where they intend to found a town at Hardesty. They say the president's order does not apply to No Man's Land.

THE CREVASSE WIDENING.

Water Rushing Into Louisiana With Tremendous Force.

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., March 19.—The crevasse at Raleigh this afternoon is 3000 feet wide and from ten to twelve feet deep. The water is going through with tremendous force and velocity. Attempts are being made to fasten the ends so as to prevent further abrasion.

TALLULAH, La., March 19.—All west of here is a vast sheet of water to the hills of Bayou Macon. The water in the overflowed section is not rising, as it is finding its natural outlets.

HELENA, Ark., March 19.—The town of Clarendon is now pretty nigh covered with water from White river. The river rose so fast that a conductor was compelled to move a train on the Arkansas Midland road out two miles from Clarendon in order to make his run into Helena. Between Duncan and Clarendon the water is in some parts of the track six feet deep.

GREENVILLE, Miss., March 19.—Offut's break has widened to an extent of 350 feet up to 6:30 to-night. One of the broken ends has finally been secured, and the other end will be made secure to-morrow. No great change has yet been reported as happening from overflows. Only one cabin in the immediate vicinity of the break has been washed away. Water is spreading on the low places through the plantations and swamps, and is now within four miles of Greenville, in Black bayou. A small embankment is being thrown up in the northern portion of the city. It is thought Greenville is in no danger from this break. The river has fallen here five inches since the levee at Luna, Ark., broke. No effort was being made to close the crevasse at last reports, and it was widening and a column of water passing through.

JOHN F. PLUMMER ASSIGNS.

The Merchant Politician Loses by Depreciation in Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The dry goods trade was startled to-day by the failure of John F. Plummer & Co. They made a general assignment for the benefit of creditors to their cashier, Jeremiah P. Murphy. Plummer also made an individual assignment to Murphy. Murphy says the assignment is principally due to depreciation in the value of goods the firm has been carrying some time. The creditors, by uniting, can possibly make the suspension only temporary. Murphy says the liabilities are about $1 000,000, of which $300 000 is for borrowed money and the balance due to manufacturers and for trust money deposited with the firm by relatives and friends. The assets are nominally a little larger than the liabilities, and consist of stock, outstanding accounts and valuable real estate owned by Plummer. The trade attributes the failure to large advances [illegible] on [illegible] accounts, and complications arising from the old firm of S[illegible] & Darling, whose business Plummer took.

Plummer was active in republican politics, but it is claimed that it did not interfere with his business. He is a personal friend of President Harrison and took a leading part in the last presidential campaign in the dry goods trade.

FIVE [illegible] MINERS LOST.

Great Fire Raging Underground at Hurley, Wisconsin—Heavy Financial Injury.

HURLEY, Wis., March 19.—A great fire is raging in the Germania mine. Five miners have perished, and all efforts to stay the flames are unsuccessful. The unfortunate men are James Thomas, his son, John Thomas, Hugh Waller, Jimmy Sullivan and William Banks, all miners. The loss will reach $100,000.

Waller escaped from the mine with about 400 men when the fire broke out, but returned to rescue others still in the mine and was himself burned to death.

Perrin's Jurors Were Bribed.

ASHLAND, Wis., March 19.—The jury in the case of Cashier Perrin, charged with robbing the Hurley National Bank, have disagreed, after being out two days. They stood six to six. District Attorney Rossman is authority for the statement that at least two of the jurors were bribed. It is said that a number of prominent men are implicated.

The jury was discharged.

Francisco Postoffice Clerk a Heavy Embezzler.

ED MOLDERS BREAK FAITH

Judge John S. Hager Dead—Cold Weather in the Northern Counties—The Transcontinental Meeting.

FRANCISCO, March 19.—The Chronicle to-morrow: Postoffice Inspectors and Irwin and Assistant Post have commenced an examination to the accounts of James S. Kennedy, charge money order clerk at San Francisco postoffice, and show a shortage of money orders, ranging in value from $1. Inspector Seyboldt received a dis from the chief of the secret service this city this afternoon, inquiring a money order issued in this city early in last, payable at London, Eng, which was reported missing. Inspector was detailed to make an examination the notes, and Kennedy's manner at attracted his attention. After a number of futile efforts to escape, Kennedy and it is stated confessed at first that about some $1600 or $1500. that he had been drinking freely gambling. When he was turned the United States Marshal Franks this $2000 in $20 gold pieces and greenbacks were found concealed on his person. is said to have told Franks the amount he embezzled would reach $12,000. Kennedy was appointed clerk in position by ex-Postmaster Backus in. He will be arraigned before the United commissioner to-morrow.

THE LONG PURSE WILL WIN.

Iron Molders Traveling East and Ex-Waterman Rebukes Unions.

San Francisco, March 19.—The striking molders gained something of a victory when they induced all but four of the imported molders brought out from the by the foundries to quit work. The nonunion molders were taken in charge by representatives of the Ironmolders' Union and escorted to the latter's headquarters, where they will be taken care of. The manufacturers say they are not surprised at the imported molders leaving, and are determined to bring non-union men from the East until they fill the town with men and break the strike. They have men about to leave Philadelphia, and when these are started they will send them. The manufacturers say that if they cannot secure non-union men from the East who are willing to work, they will close up their business, as the strike, they say, is killing the iron industry in the west. Eight of the new comers started back East on the overland train this afternoon, their fares being paid by the union, which expects to send away a number more to-morrow.

Sacramento, March 19.—Governor Waterman in a letter to-day to Corresponding Secretary Sweany of the Pacific coast Labor League, giving his reasons for refusing to declare May 1 a legal holiday, says the business interests, from which he his support, are entitled to consideration, and to check the entire business interests of the state in order that a single faction may make a public demonstration is not business.

San Francisco, March 19.—There are a number of vessels fitting out for Alaska to engage in salmon fishing. The Alaska Commercial Company's steamers Bertha, Dora and St. Paul have been brought to the city and will be overhauled and loaded and will sail for the North in a week. Business is exceptionally brisk along the water front, and every vessel which leaves takes away a number of men, both white and Chinese, for cannery work. Thus far the following vessels are fitting out and will sail in a week or two: Kodiak, Pearl, James A., Coryphine, Gatherer and Percy. Several vessels have already left

The Transcontinental Meeting.

San Jose, March 18.—The Transcontinental Association proper concluded its session today, and this afternoon the committee commenced work. The matter brought before it was the petition of California shippers for reduced rates on car loads east. This afternoon was spent in discussion, but no conclusion was reached. Indications are that Chicago fruit rates will be granted uniform rates to all parts of the state.

An Anonymous Writer Drives a Joliet Girl to Suicide.

JOLIET, Ill., March 19.—A sensation was created this evening by the suicide of Miss Jessie White, daughter of a well-known resident. Three years ago an anonymous letter writer began persecuting the girl with imputations of scandalous conduct and finally threatening that he would kill her. The matter was finally placed in the hands of the authorities. David White, her cousin, was arrested on suspicion and tried, but no reliable evidence was produced and he was simply placed in bonds to keep the peace. The anonymous letters kept coming this year regularly and it is thought the girl became distracted. She left a letter saying she could endure the torture no longer.

Inventor of the Life-Car Honored.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—By authority of an act of congress the secretary of the treasury has had prepared a gold medal to be presented to Joseph Francis, the celebrated inventor of the life-car. The medal has been struck and is now in the keeping of the secretary of the treasury. It possesses greater intrinsic value than either the medal voted to Cyrus W. Field for laying the Atlantic cable or to General U. S. Grant for his services during the civil war. Mr. Francis lives in Brooklyn, but for many years has, during the sessions of congress, occupied a pleasant house on Capitol hill. A model of the original car which was used in a wreck off the coast of New Jersey is now on exhibition in the national museum.

Spring Snowstorms in the East.

NEW YORK, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The heaviest snowstorm of the season began this morning. Snow fell rapidly without interruption in this city, Brooklyn and the surrounding country for ten hours.

PITTSBURG, March 19.—The fiercest snowstorm of the season is raging. It extends over a wide area, and railroad travel is almost suspended. Heavy drifts are reported all over the state.

BOSTON, March 19.—Dispatches from various points along the coast report a very severe snow and wind storm. Wrecks are feared.

Another Crash in Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 19.—At 1 o'clock this afternoon the east wall of the Becker block, adjoining the burned Bower-Merrill building, crashed down on top of the ruins. For a time the wildest rumors of the disaster were afloat, but investigation proved that only two men were slightly hurt, though many had narrow escapes. Flames broke out again in the ruins, and are still burning to-night. It is feared that two three-story buildings adjoining the wreckage have been damaged by the crash and are likely to succumb.

Shortcomings of Prominent Democrats.

JACKSON, Miss., March 19.—The legislative committee's report places Treasurer Hemingway's deficit at $315,412.

CHATTANOOGA, March 19.—The shortage of City Auditor Whiteside was erroneously reported last night. It is only $6882, and the city is secured by good bonds.

NEW YORK, March 19.—Charles E. Hebbain, special deputy sheriff, connected with the sheriff's office, was arrested this morning on a charge of extortion.

Well-Dressed Young Man Kills Himself.

NEW YORK, March 19.—A well-dressed young man shot himself through the heart in Prospect park this afternoon. His identity is still a mystery, though it is reported he is a son of Dr. W. W. Smith, a well known physician of Myrtle avenue. Two gentlemen called to see the body, and one of them displayed much emotion, but refused to give his name.

Lieutenant Schwatka Drunk Again.

CHICAGO, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, of Arctic and Mexican exploration fame, was arrested Monday night on State street while under the influence of liquor and booked for disorderly conduct. After cooling off in a cell he was released and Justice Bradwell imposed a fine of $3.

Bismarck and the Northern Pacific.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—The Inquirer says: Within the past few days the Deutscher Bank of Berlin has notified the Northern Pacific directors that it will exercise the option of taking a second block of $3,000,000 of bonds at a net price of '89. The resignation of Bismarck is not likely to interfere with the scheme.

MASTER AND THE MAN.

Which Shows No One Is a Hero to His Own Valet.

VAN BIBBER'S MORNING REFLECTION

How He Prepared for the Day to Come, and How He Spends To-Morrow on the Night Previous.

Young Van Bibber drew the silk cord of his dressing gown more tightly around his waist, relates the New York Evening Sun, and sank into the big arm chair in front of the dressing table. His man Williams felt delicately for the parting in the thin growth on the top of his master's aching head, and coaxed the hair gently to either side.

"Hair's getting thinner every day," lisped Van Bibber, with fretful dejection.

"It's very plenty on the sides, sir," said Williams, soothingly.

"You don't bring it down enough on the left; you've stopped giving it that twist I told you 'bout. Don't seem t'me you take enough interest," grumbled the master as he frowned at the reflection of his high forehead in the glass.

"I'm sure I do my best, sir," said the valet, with dignity. "I brushed his lordship's hair that same way exactly, sir, for three years, and I'm sure, sir, he was perfectly satisfied, sir."

Whenever his master was irritated, as he frequently was after he had been spending to-morrow on the night previous, Williams soothed him with a reference to the noble lord who had been one of his former employers. The noble lord had never given Williams anything but his old clothes and the best of references, but he still spoke of him with satisfaction and effect.

"Any letters?" asked Van Bibber. "Comb that more to the right," he added impatiently.

"Yes, sir. Cards for 'days,' bills, and notes from ladies, sir, which I left for you—also one from your father—seems to have been written, sir, in a spirit of anger, sir. I took the liberty of tearing it up."

Van Bibber nodded his head in approval, which disarranged the parting. In consequence it had to be made over again.

"Any news in the papers?"

"Nothing, sir, of interest."

"No scandals, no rows any sort, nothing-atall? Why don't you tell me without me dragin' 't out of you? Don't make me talk so infernally much."

"Yessir," William hastened to say, "there's a murder in Jersey City, but quite a common one, sir, and the billiard match is still on, and another society lady is going on the stage, sir, and——"

"What'sat theaters?"

"The Gaiety girls are in Brooklyn."

"Brooklyn! What do they want to go to Brooklyn for? How do you get to Brooklyn, Williams? Walk 'cross bridge, don't you?"

"Oh, no, sir; you can ride across."

"Take long?"

"Oh, no, sir; it's about half an hour's ride, sir."

"I'll go there to-night if I don't forget. Don't you let me forget, Williams. Now, remember, to-night; go to Brooklyn, over bridge, to see Gaiety girls and St. John. Williams, is there a place over there where you can get supper?"

"I don't know," said Williams. "I'll ask, sir."

"Very well. What time of day is it, Williams?"

"Half-past two, sir."

"Very good hour, that. This getting up early helps me, makes me take more exercise, see more of the day, good for your health, isn't it! 'Early bird' and all that sort of thing. Great nuisance putting on dress clothes as soon as you get up."

"Williams, how do you like being a servant?"

There was a long pause.

"I'd hardly call myself a servant, sir," said Williams with critical dignity. "I'm a valet. Of course with some masters, sir, valets are no better than servants; it depends on the master. Begging your pardon, sir, but some masters don't know their place. I've seen some of your American gentlemen that joke with their men, sir, and eat marmalade with beefsteak, and light their cigars at other gentlemen's cigars. It isn't like that at 'ome, sir. I've 'ad to let several masters go, sir, just because they were too familiar. A gentleman like yourself, sir, knows how to treat a valet properly. You——"

"That'll do. What clothes did you lay out for me?"

"A black morning suit, sir, with a bunch of violets, sir, and a black bow tie."

"You come down club at 6 and dress me. Don't I dine some place or with somebody or other, seems to me I promised——"

"Yes, sir, with Mrs. Douglass, sir, on Sixty-fifth street."

"On Sixty-fifth street!" Mr. Van Bibber gasped. "Confound impudence of woman. Asks you to dine Sixty-fifth street. What'd people want live Sixty-fifth street for? What want give dinners for if they live Sixty-fifth street? Ought to come down town an' live; no reason living Sixty-fifth street. Might as well ask man to go to Boston or some of those places. Might as well live—— I won't go! Write note; say taken ill; got the grip; dreadful sorry, and all that sort blooming rot."

"The man from the florist's has been here again this morning," ventured Williams.

"I told him to come later, when you were out."

"Lemme see," mused Van Bibber, "that makes six seven times been here this week. Must be very hopeful sort of young man, Williams? Must be, or wouldn't call so often. Next time he calls tell him to hope on, to keep on hoping—and to stop his calling. Tell him to hope more and call less."

"Yessir."

"And, Williams," mused young Van Bibber as the valet laced his shoe, "if that lady calls again—the lady with a shiny sailor hat; not one that comes in a brougham, tell her —lemme see—tell her I've gone to Baltimore to see a fight and that I'll probably stay there several days, maybe a week—maybe I'll never come back. And, Williams, tell the one with the brougham that we'll all be around in a night or two and go theater."

"Williams," exclaimed the master suddenly, "my head aches like bot'ox. Don't know why, I'm sure. Mix me glass milk an' 'polinaris, quick. Williams," continued the master as the man returned with the pick-me-up, "was I a bit off last night?"

"Oh no, sir, not at all, sir."

The master stared fixedly at the valet but the valet looked innocently unconscious.

"Didn't I talk a little queer, Williams? What did I say?"

"Oh, nothing much, sir."

"What did I say, I tell you?"

Well," explained the valet, gazing at the ceiling and knitting his brows, as if in a severe effort of memory; "you said as I was putting you to bed—you said, 'I am the fairy of the lake, and I will change you with a wave of me magic wand into the graceful Harlequin.'"

"That'll do. I thought I was; now I know it." He rose and stuck his arms into his coat, and pulled his gloves on slowly.

"Did you fill my cigarette case an' card case an' match box and put some change in my pockets?"

"Yessir."

"Somebody mixed my cards all up in my cigarette case last night," mused Van Bibber. "Don't know who 'twas. 'Twasn't you, was it Williams?"

"Oh, no, sir."

"All right. I wonder who 'twas."

And still in deep thought as to who it could have been, Van Bibber, fully equipped, stepped down and out.

Strike of Pittsburg Ironworkers.

PITTSBURG, March 19. — Three hundred men quit work at the Keystone rolling mills to-night, on account of a reduction of wages because of poor material. The trouble at Oliver Bro.'s mill, over the discharge of a man, resulted in a strike of 300, and it is alleged all of the 1800 employes will go out to-morrow.

Manitoba Forbids Catholic Schools.

WINNIPEG, March 19.—The Manitoba legislature to-day passed the schools act, abolishing the right of Catholics to have separate schools and obliging all classes of the community to patronize national secular schools. It has been bitterly opposed by the Catholics.

San Francisco Market Review.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The farmers in some districts are now discovering that the heavy rains of last winter did not do the serious damage supposed at the time, and that a good year is expected, taking the various crops all in all. The rain of the past two days, however, has put farmers back again in some coast districts. Wheat rules steady, but quiet. Thus far this month eighteen cargoes have been exported, or about one per day. This is a fair movement for this season of the year, though by no means active.

Oats have broken again and are dull at the decline, which was sharp. Heavy receipts from Oregon did the business.

Owing to rain, the potato crop of California was pretty thoroughly washed out this year, and Oregon has not filled up the void as it was expected she would. There is still a dearth of vegetables in the local market, and prices, which have been very high, are still raising. The 3600 sacks of potatoes that were discharged as part of the Oregon cargo from the last steamer were eagerly bought by dealers at the prevailing high prices.

Hops are stiff, and 13c is freely bid for choice, but such goods are firmly held at 15c, being scarce; hence the market is quiet.

Wool is almost out of stock and wholly nominal.

Butter and eggs continue in heavy supply and weak at practically unchanged prices.

The only change in the meat market is a slight decline in hogs, under more liberal arrivals. Supplies of beef, mutton, lamb and veal are ample.

Fluctuations in grocery staples last week were neither numerous nor wide. Provisions are quiet and unchanged.

Canned salmon is neglected and depressed in strong contrast to the firm and active market and high prices last year at this time. Bulls are scarce now and buyers even scarcer, there being very little trading, and that at declining prices. Canned goods are quiet at last week's prices. There is a feeling that the recent freeze on the Atlantic seaboard ought to help this fruit market the coming season, hence there is no disposition to break prices in order to sell.

Merchandise is only fairly active. Dry goods are moderately active, and the easier condition of the money market helps business. Spring trade is unusually late this year, however.

Coal is very firm, and Australian grades in cargo lots have advanced 75 cents per ton to arrive, as they are scarce. Coast coals show no variation. No foreign coal came in last week, and receipts from coast collieries were only 9950 tons, hence the market is strong.

M. J. Cheatham, white, was hanged at Grenada, Miss., Wednesday afternoon for the murder of John Tillman, colored, on July 10. The hanging was private. Cheatham was the first white man ever hanged in Mississippi for killing a negro.

DEATH OF J. F. M'NAMARA.

Joseph F. McNamara, the well-known jeweler of this city, died at 1:45 this morning of apoplexy. He had been ill but a short time, and many of his friends were unaware that he was not in his usual health. He was 52 years of age, and a native of New Foundland. He leaves a wife and five children, two sons and three daughters.

The body is more susceptible to benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla now than at any other season.

The town is growing south.

THE STORY OF A CRIME.

Discovery of a Murder and Its Perpetrators.

STUPIDITY OF THE ASSASSIN

He Seeks to Cover Up All Trace of His Victim's Identity and Then Comes Forward and Identifies Him.

The Benwell murder case has attracted more attention than any similar crime since the murder of Preller, in St. Louis by Brooks, alias Maxwell. The following history of the former crime and the parties concerned is given by the New York Sun: In Canada, about fifty-five miles due west from Niagara Falls, in the center of the farm of William Hersey is a dense tamarack swamp. A road has been cut through it. It is a gruesome place, and it is cold and gloomy there all the year round. On February 21st, two boys, George and Joseph Eldridge leaving the road in the middle of the swamp, started to push their way through the brush. They had gotten but a few rods from the road when a sight met their gaze which startled and horrified them. There lay the dead body of a young man, a gentleman evidently from his dress. The dead man lay upon his back and his head was bent partially under his body, so that his white face stared up at the sky. He was a young man smooth faced, and not over 24 years of age. The brothers ran off as fast as their legs could carry them to spread the alarm. Very soon the local magistrate and a crowd of constables and farmers proceeded to the spot where the body lay, and made a detailed examination of the body and all the surroundings. The murderer had taken pains after his deed to conceal the identity of his victim. He had rolled up the dead man's trousers and cut from the stockings and drawers pieces which evidently bore the victim's name. Like pieces were cut from the undershirt, collar and shirt. It looked as if the man's identity was not to be discovered, when there was picked up near the body, half covered by the light snow that had fallen the day before, a brown leather cigar case, on the inside of which was written the name F. C. Benwell.

The body was removed to Princeton, and after a coroner's jury had been empaneled, a post-mortem held and the other formalities gone through with, the body was buried in the little Princeton cemetery. The local papers teemed with accounts of the finding of the body. There was no F. C. Benwell missing in Ontario, and nobody ever knew or heard of such a man. But on the evening of Friday, February 28, a week after the discovery of the body, a man and his wife appeared on the scene, and said that they thought the printed descriptions of the murdered man tallied with that of F. C. Benwell, an absent friend of theirs. They said their names were Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Burchell, and that they lived in England. On the following morning the body of Benwell was exhumed and shown to him. The body was frozen and had not decomposed. Burchell only gave one look at the corpse, and then broke out in a choking voice: "Oh, take me away. It's Benwell." He afterward identified Benwell's clothes and the cigar case, and said that there could be no doubt that the body was that of his friend.

In the meantime, while Burchell was identifying Benwell he was himself being identified. He was asked if he had not lived in Woodstock during the summer of 1888 under the name of Lord Somerset. He admitted frankly that he was the same man. In May of 1889 Lord and Lady Somerset disappeared very suddenly, leaving something over $1000 of unpaid debts in Woodstock. Some of these debts were for borrowed money. This appearance of Somerset as "Reginald Burchell" identifying Benwell's body at Princeton was the first thing that people had seen or heard of him since his flight from Woodstock. Mr. and Mrs. Burchell went to Clifton, and on the following day Burchell was arrested there and charged with the murder of Benwell. The keys to Benwell's luggage and the receipts for Benwell's bonded luggage were found upon him, but no money, save a check for $152 made payable to Burchell's order.

SKETCH OF THE MURDERER.

Reginald Burchell is the son of Rev. Joseph Burchell, who was for years rector of Church Kirk and rural dean of Whalley. He was a man of some wealth, and was one of the best known clergymen in East Lancashire, and when he died in 1878 left his money to his four children. Reginald was the youngest son, and was educated at Harrow and Oxford, though he did not graduate from Oxford. He seems to have led a pretty wild life. He was not a drunkard, but gambled a good deal, and "opened" wine, spending money continually beyond his means. He was known as a liar, however, by his chums, and his particular foible used to be to tell falsehoods to strangers about his lordly connections and intimate acquaintance with the high aristocracy.

In the summer of 1888 Burchell married the daughter of David Stevenson, the general traffic manager of the London & Northwestern railroad. Mr. Stevenson objected to this marriage, and the couple eloped. After being married by the registrar of Croydon hall they went to Canada. Their life at Woodstock has been referred to above. Returning to England in the spring of 1889, Burchell and his wife lived at his father-in-law's house, and Burchell obtained employment with a firm of fashionable photographers.

FORMING THE SCHEME OF MURDER.

Burchell still lived high, however, though the money received from his brother's estate had long since been exhausted. It was early in the summer of last year, beyond a doubt, that he formed the desperate and singular scheme that he since put into operation. As early as July he began to practice drawing up advertisements. His letter box is filled with papers bearing inscriptions such as these:

CANADA.—University man having farm wishes to meet gentleman's son to live with him and learn the business, with a view to partnership. Must have £500 to extend stock. Board, lodging and 5 per cent. interest till partnership arranged. Highest references.

Burchell practiced on his advertisement till he got it in shape to suit him. He also made the acquaintance of T. S. Mellerish, a professional man, who made it his business to act as a kind of "scheme broker." He negotiated loans for capitalists and introduced gentlemen with big schemes to gentlemen who had money. In the fore part of September, 1889, an advertisement very similar to the above, requesting correspondence with Mellerish, as agent, appeared in the Daily Telegraph, and continued there for several weeks. The contents of Burchell's letter box prove that he had many answers to his advertisement, but with only two of his correspondents did he do any business. These were Douglas Raymond Pelly, of Walden place, Saffron Walden, Essex, and Frederick C. Benwell, son of Lieut.-Col. Benwell of Iscuitdene, Cheltenham. Pelly is the son of the Vicar of Saffron Walden. At the time he began writing to Burchell he was not in good health. He started out once for Australia, but on the way met a missionary and went into the interior of Africa. He came home in poor condition and was told by his physician to live an outdoor life. Burchell, it seems, heard through Mellerish directly that Benwell was looking after some such scheme as he (Burchell) proposed. Burchell had a good deal of correspondence with the Benwells, father and son, writing from the Junior Constitutional and National Conservative Clubs, London. Burchell went to see both the Pelly and Benwell families. He impressed all those he met with his candor and business responsibility.

LURING HIS VICTIM.

"He told us," said Pelly, "in his testimony before the magistrate at Burchell's examination in Clifton that he had one mile and a half from Niagara Falls a large farm, on which there was a large brick house and barns, the former heated by steam and lighted by gas, and the latter by electric light. I understood the business carried on was buying horses in the rough and grooming them to sell to profit, the farm being used to raise horse feed, and that during his absence his business was looked after by two hired men; that his overseer was a Scotchman named McDonald, who lived not far away; also that he had a branch business that he had only an interest in at Woodstock, and had furnished rooms there in which he and Mrs. Burchell lived; that there were quite a few Englishmen at Niagara Falls, and a club had been arranged, which he was instrumental in organizing; that the members lived in English style and had English servants. After hearing his story I came to the conclusion I would like the business and entered into an agreement with him. This agreement was that I should pay him £170 and have in return my expenses, board and lodging at the stock farm, and 22½ per cent. of the profits of the business. I sent him a check for the £170."

The agreement made with Lieut.-Col. Benwell was that his son Frederick should go out with Burchell and see how he liked the stock farm, and that if he was satisfied he would pay £500 for a half-interest in the farm.

The party—Mr. and Mrs. Burchell and Benwell and Pelly—sailed from Liverpool on the Brittanic for this port on Feb. 5. Benwell and Pelly were each surprised to find that the other was going to accompany Burchell. Burchell told them both lies about the other, and managed to calm their jealousy of each other. The party arrived here on Friday, Feb. 14, and stopped at the Metropolitan hotel. They spent Saturday here in transacting a little business, Burchell in arranging for the trip to Canada, and Pelly and Benwell in visiting people to whom they had letters of introduction. At 5:35 P. M. on Saturday they left on the Erie railroad for Buffalo, and, arriving there on Sunday morning, stopped at the Stafford House. All had their baggage with them save Benwell, and he had forwarded in bond two big packages to Clifton, Ont., by express. The narrative of what took place later is best told in Pelly's story to the magistrate:

"On Sunday, at the hotel in Buffalo," said Pelly, "we talked about the best plans for to-morrow. Burchell said he would come over to the farm at Niagara Falls and see how things were and surprise the employes. It was finally decided that Burchell and Benwell would take a train leaving Buffalo at 6 o'clock in the morning and come to the Falls and make arrangements for our reception, and that Mrs. Burchell and I would remain behind. Next morning, Monday, 17th February, the prisoner came down to see if Benwell had got up. I heard them speaking outside of his room. He said he had put on a different suit of clothing for the country. They started off Monday morning about 6 o'clock. It must have been that early as it was dark, Burchell came back at about 9 o'clock at night. He said that Benwell did not like the stock farm nor the people there, and said he would not stay there. He said that he gave Benwell some addresses of people up in the country, and that he had sent Benwell off to see them to see if he liked other places better. He said that he had been attending all day to things around the stock farm. He said that McDonald, his superintendent, had rented his house to some tenants, temporarily, and that they had matters there in a beastly shape, and that it would be better for us to go to Niagara Falls and wait there until things were in shape."

ALL A PACK OF LIES.

It must be borne in mind continually, of course, that Burchell's whole story about his stock farm was absolute invention, and that he did not own a dollar's worth of property in Canada. He was merely lying out of whole cloth from day to day. On Tuesday, February 18, the whole party went to Clifton, Ont., just across the Niagara river from Suspension bridge. Burchell and Pelly went to a boarding house there, and Mrs. Burchell stopped at the Imperial hotel. They lounged around for a week up to Friday, February 28. Burchell lied to Pelly all the while in the most astounding manner, and Pelly believed everything that was told him. He told Pelly that he had received a letter from London from Benwell sending the receipt for Benwell's bonded luggage and requesting that this might be sent to him whenever requested. Pelly did not ask to see the letter, but he fretted at the delay.

Finally, on February 28, Burchell came to Pelly with a paper in his hand containing an account of the finding of the murdered man at Princeton on February 21 with the cigar case near him, marked "F. C. Benwell." Pelly was horrified. Burchell said he would go at once to Princeton and look at the body. Pelly said he would go, too. In an hour or so Burchell came to Pelly and said that he had received a telegram from the clerk of the Stafford house, at Buffalo, saying that Benwell had gone to New York, and desired that all his luggage be sent to the Fifth Avenue hotel there. Pelly posted off to New York to see if Benwell was there, and returned without finding him. Burchell's visit to Princeton, his identification of Benwell, and his subsequent arrest have already been related. Mrs. Burchell was arrested a day or so after her husband.

LITTLE MONEY FOR HIS CRIME.

After all, how poor was Burchell's reward for all his trouble and pains. Colonel Benwell telegraphs from England that his son did not have to exceed £20 in money with him; so that this sum and Benwell's gold watch and chain was all that Burchell got. It is strange, after all, that Burchell did not know how little money Benwell had with him. Still, no one can read the story of Burchell's crime and not be impressed with his great stupidity. Burchell seems to be a mixture of inconceivable stupidity and inconceivable effrontery. That he should have been able to get Pelly and Benwell to this country on any such pretext as he did is very singular, and one cannot avoid thinking that Pelly's and Benwell's friends were not overcautious. But it is more surprising still that Burchell, up to the very moment of his arrest, thought himself in no danger. He thought that the sleazy shred of lies which he had woven was an impenetrable armor. He must have known that Pelly would sooner or later suspect something and that an inevitable disclosure about the "stock farm" would come. Yet he himself went to Princeton and identified Benwell's body while Pelly was in New York, and he could have easily escaped. The truth was, he thought he could carry out the game to the end. Three days after the murder, while Benwell's body still lay stark and stiff in the Blenheim swamp, Burchell sent a letter to Colonel Benwell in England saying that his son liked the "stock farm," and desired that the £500 to purchase the half interest in it be sent over immediately. He was a weak, bad, foolish, English boy, and this was his first crime.

As to Mrs. Burchell, there is really no legal evidence against her. Whether she was the dupe of her husband as well as the others is an unsettled question. She must have known, of course, that his story about a stock farm in Canada was false, but she might not have known that he intended to commit murder. The strongest evidence against her is that when, after the murder, her husband made false explanations about Benwell's actions and whereabouts, she acquiesced in them perfectly. The English law, however, will not hold her guilty of murder for that. If she tried to cover up her husband's guilt she did a wife's duty only, according to the law of England.

The Queen of the German Court.

Atlanta Constitution.

The Countess Waldensee was a Miss Lea, of New York, and she has a number of relatives in Kentucky. She is now the first lady at the German court. Her husband is nearly related to the reigning emperor, and he and his young wife are devoted to her. She lives like a queen in the palace adjoining Von Moltke's. Though everything about her is royal, she herself follows the most severe simplicity. From her fine forehead her soft silver hair is brushed smoothly back. Her complexion is as fresh as a girl's; her face, with its beautifully chiseled features, is full expression, and her figure and carriage are regal. At home she wears dark cashmeres of the finest quality, but made absolutely without trimming, while the necks and sleeves have plain linen collars and cuffs. Yet with all this simplicity here is the most magnetic presence I have known.

WASHINGTONIANA

William Bingham of Spokane who had 2000 horses wintering in Lincoln and Douglas counties, lost only 15 per cent instead of 50 per cent as had been previously reported

Alexander R Sinclair, of North Yakima who has made a trip up through the Natchez country looking after his stock reports snow enough in the valley for good sleighing still He says stock are in better shape than could have been expected under the unusual circumstances and stockmen are better fixed for hay and fodder than in most localities

The Pomeroy Washingtonian says We were unfortunate in having a dry season and a partial crop in Garfield county last year but luck seems to be on our side so far this year and the outlook now is that we shall be blessed with fruitful harvests It has been many years since there has been such a thorough saturation of the earth with water If people would only prepare to shelter and feed their stock a reasonable length of time winters like the past would be more desirable than if more dry and pleasant. Sunshine is all very fine but sunshine and blue sky, and no rain means drouth and short crops

SEATTLE'S LAST SON DEAD

How the Indian Won His Spurs and Became Chief.

The last man bearing the name of Seattle died a few days ago at the Old Man house near Port Madison says the Seattle Times John Seattle was the last of old Seattle's sons, Angeline the old chief's daughter being now the only surviving child It has not been generally known how Seattle became a chief Mr S F Coombs says that while calling on old Seattle at the Old Man house he learned the following regarding that old gentleman's early history and why he had been a chief

It seems long before any white people had settled on Puget Sound and about the time the Hudson Bay Company were establishing their posts in the Northwest the Indians living on the Upper White river and the mountain Indians had banded together to make a fight on the Puget Sound tribes or those known as the Old Man House tribe Word reached them that a force of those mountain Indians were about to start in canoes from Upper Green and White rivers in such numbers and so well armed that if they reached Duwamish now Elliott bay that the Old Man House tribe would be wiped out A council of the old and wise ones gathered and Seattle then a young man not over 20, volunteered and devised a plan to check the enemy in reaching salt water All of the rude instruments in the shape of axe were called for They left Elliott bay by canoes and by trail, Seattle heading the expedition A short distance above the mouth of Black river on White river the bluffs came close together that fir trees chopped down on one side would reach the bank on the opposite side It was at this point that Seattle commenced felling trees by dark three trees were stretched across the river and so arranged that a canoe could not go under without cutting, Seattle had his men ambushed on either side with their rude implements of warfare mostly bows and arrows Seattle did not have to wait long after dark before the mountain Indians came paddling down and before those behind could know what was the matter at the front some five or six large canoes with over 100 warriors were struggling in the water, and many who reached the shore were soon dispatched by Seattle's Flatheads. The remaining canoes that were checked before getting under the obstruction were turned back and the plot to clean out the Puget Sound clam eaters was frustrated and young Seattle was declared chief of the Old Man House tribe which then comprised all the Indians between Alki point and above Skagit head on Puget Sound

Old man Seattle never learned the Chinook jargon Always when giving white people information he had an interpreter Old Seattle must have been past ninety at his death

Mr Coombs says that when he arrived at Port Madison over thirty years ago the big [illegible] posts they rested on at the Old Man house were a great wonder to all The logs reaching across from one post to another must have been 150 feet long and many of them three feet at the butt and about one and a half to two feet at the smaller end These logs no doubt were placed in position without the aid of any gear purchase or machinery Old man Seattle could not inform us as to when they were first erected He said the new cedar posts were replaced in the ground from time to time as the old ones became decayed

The interpreter informed us that old man Seattle had seen at least 2000 Indians at that point at a time—the occasion of his being selected chief after the routing of the mountain Indians—was a grand event to him at least There there must have been upward of 2000 congregated at that place

REPORTERS ON THE WING

Work on the Madison Street Bridge Temporarily Suspended.

Weather Report—The George H Chance—Liquor for "Lo"—Caught on the Cable—Discharging Cargo—Anniversary—Etc

THE TWENTY FIRST ANNIVERSARY.—The Young Men's Christian Association of this city will celebrate their 21st anniversary at the Tabernacle on Friday evening March 21st. Judge Williams will preside and the address of the evening will be delivered by Mr S M Sayford of Boston Mass. Mr Sayford is traveling under the auspices of Amherst College, Mass. and is an orator of great power The exercises throughout will be interesting and entertaining Several of the city choirs are to furnish music and a male quartet will sing There will be no reports presented, as that was done at the annual meeting held a few weeks ago The board of directors extend a very cordial invitation to the general public to attend this interesting occasion There never was a time in the history of the association when a larger work has been done than is now being carried on by this institution and the management are anxious that the citizens of Portland should understand the value of the work to the city Therefore every one interested in this work for young men are invited to come

ARRIVAL OF S. M SAYFORD.—Mr S M Sayford, of Boston arrived from San Francisco yesterday on the steamer Columbia. Mr Sayford is traveling in the interest of the Young Men's Christian Association work in colleges and is working under the auspices of Amherst college Mass He will be in Portland over Sunday when he goes to the Sound and from there will visit all the colleges of Washington returning to Portland in April will visit the colleges of Oregon Mr Sayford will give the anniversary address at the Tabernacle on Friday evening for the Portland association and on Sunday afternoon will address young men at the association rooms ... First street at 4 P M His subject will be Confidential Advice All young men are invited to come and hear this distinguished orator

LEAVING THE SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY.—Mrs. Emily Sheridan mother of George Becker the young man whose mysterious death several weeks ago caused so much comment, was a passenger on the steamer which left for San Francisco Tuesday evening She will make her home with her sister Mrs Knudson who came to Portland immediately after young Becker's death Mrs Sheridan was feeling a little penitent over the reflections she threw on her husband Her testimony at the coroner's inquest pointed the finger of suspicion at him but now she feels that he had nothing to do with the poisoning She still is of the opinion however that her son was poisoned but the circumstances of the sad affair will perhaps always remain a mystery

THE GEORGE H CHANCE STILL FISHING.—Mr Williams manager of the Deep Sea Fishing company returned to Portland last Monday morning having spent some days on board the company's steam fishing schooner George H Chance which was falsely reported to be lost Yesterday a reporter endeavored in vain to locate Mr Williams in the hopes of ascertaining how the steamer was making out It was learned however that the Chance is still on the fishing banks near Neah bay, and will arrive at Portland before many days have passed with a fine cargo of halibut. The officers of the company still assert that there were no substantial grounds for the sensational report recently circulated

THE E N COOKE TO BE REPAIRED.—The steamer E N Cooke was taken down the river yesterday to the O R & N Co's old boneyard where she now occupies a place alongside of a number of the old hulks that have long since seen their best days and many more their last days of usefulness The steamer is not a total loss, however by any means and she is merely put out of the way temporarily awaiting an opportunity to be placed on the ways, when she will receive thorough and permanent repairs and will probably be a more substantial boat when again ready for business than she was before her recent collision with the rocks and the subsequent sinking

LIQUOR FOR LO.—Oregon City is coming to the front nobly in the matter of whisky to Indians cases since Mr Barin took charge of the United States marshal's office Frank Scott who supplied firewater to salmon-eyed ... of that city was arrested a few days since and yesterday was on examination before the United States commissioner and was held to appear before the United States district court for trial Yesterday Deputy Marshal Burns brought down from Oregon City H B Johnson charged with having sold a bottle of whisky to an Indian Let the good work go on till the unquenchable thirst of the Indian has been quenched or the race obliterated

AN EASTERN VISITOR.—Mr Thomas H Montgomery president of the old American Insurance Company, of Philadelphia came to Portland yesterday, by the overland train from San Francisco Mr Montgomery is the great grandson of Bishop White of Revolutionary times the first bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in Pennsylvania and the first chaplain to the Continental congress In Bishop White's days the far Far West was somewhere in the neighborhood of Pittsburg Pa Mr Montgomery is the guest of Pastor Morris with whom he will remain a few days returning East by way of Tacoma Seattle and the Northern Pacific railroad

WORK TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED.—The work of sawing off the piles for the foundation of the pivotal pier of the Madison street bridge has been stopped by an unexpected rise in the river from the late rains. The water is about ... too high for proceeding with the work and the river will fall this much probably within twenty four hours If the appliances for sawing the piles had been put a little higher as they would have been had a rise of the river been anticipated the delay would not have occurred Mr ... W Brown was down yesterday with his foot in a sling to see how matters are progressing

UNION PARTY MEETING.—The union party meeting was held at Nonpareil hall ... evening Messrs D'Arcy and Miller addressed the meeting They claimed that unless there was a new deal in politics and political parties the government would not long outlast for ... in this land ... would breed anarchy and ... despotism The meeting adjourned to meet again one week from next Friday night at Nonpareil hall

AN EAR OBSTRUCTED THE WAY.—A Chinaman named Ah Ead was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of obstructing a sidewalk ... truck If there is anything in a name it is safe to infer that Ah Ead will be convicted when he appears before Judge Tanner to ... A Chinaman who bears such a name and persists in ... wo ... on a sidewalk to the detriment of pedestrians ought to be convicted on general principles

RUBBISH IN THE CABLE.—About noon yesterday the Stark street ferry stopped in the middle of the stream while approaching the landing on this side for at least twenty minutes The trouble arose from a lot of rubbish which ... down with the current and ... displacing the rope Such an occurrence rarely happens but when it does some time is required to put things in working order

FOR THE LADIES.—Miss A S Jorgensen proprietress of the elegant millinery parlors at 166 First street wishes to inform her lady friends and patrons that she will have her grand spring opening on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week Miss Jorgensen has some lovely French pattern bonnets and hats and the ... announces the finest line of novelties in millinery ever before shown in Portland

GRAND EXHIBITION

—(OF)—

New Ribbons

This week we shall display one of the most supurb assortments of choicest and newest designs from the loom of the best manufacturers of Ribbons.

It embraces over 3000 pieces, and is one of the largest and most complete lines ever brought to this city.

It includes all the latest designs and colorings, and all widths, and we are able to match any available shade, either in Dress Goods or Millinery. They consist of the GROS GRAINS, SATIN EDGE, PLAIDS, FRINGED EDGE, STRIPES, FIGURED, and the NEW TWOTOND SATIN, widths from No 2 to 22.

We request the careful inspection of this line of Ribbon, both in prices and quantities which we think you will admit is the grandest display of Ribbons ever made in this city.

Due notice will be given of our Grand Millinery Opening.

REPORTERS ON THE WING

Work on the Madison Street Bridge Temporarily Suspended.

Weather Report—The George H. Chance—Liquor for "Lo"—Caught on the Cable—Discharging Cargo—Anniversary—Etc.

THE TWENTY-FIRST ANNIVERSARY.—The Young Men's Christian Association of this city will celebrate their 21st anniversary at the Tabernacle on Friday evening March 21st. Judge Williams will preside and the address of the evening will be delivered by Mr. S. M. Sayford of Boston, Mass. Mr. Sayford is traveling under the auspices of Amherst College, Mass., and is an orator of great power. The exercises throughout will be interesting and entertaining. Several of the city choirs are to furnish music and a male quartet will sing. There will be no reports presented, as that was done at the annual meeting held a few weeks ago. The board of directors extend a very cordial invitation to the general public to attend this interesting occasion. There never was a time in the history of the association when a larger work has been done than is now being carried on by this institution, and the management are anxious that the citizens of Portland should understand the value of the work to the city. Therefore every one interested in this work for young men are invited to come.

ARRIVAL OF S. M. SAYFORD.—Mr. S. M. Sayford, of Boston, arrived from San Francisco yesterday on the steamer Columbia. Mr. Sayford is traveling in the interest of the Young Men's Christian Association work in colleges, and is working under the auspices of Amherst college, Mass. He will be in Portland over Sunday, when he goes to the Sound, and from there will visit all the colleges of Washington, returning to Portland in April, will visit the colleges of Oregon. Mr. Sayford will give the anniversary address at the Tabernacle on Friday evening for the Portland association, and on Sunday afternoon will address young men at the association rooms, 212½ First street, at 4 P. M. His subject will be "Confidential Advice." All young men are invited to come and hear this distinguished orator.

LEAVING THE SCENE OF THE TRAGEDY.—Mrs. Emily Sheridan, mother of George Becker, the young man whose mysterious death several weeks ago caused so much comment, was a passenger on the steamer which left for San Francisco Tuesday evening. She will make her home with her sister, Mrs. Knudson, who came to Portland immediately after young Becker's death. Mrs. Sheridan was feeling a little penitent over the reflections she threw on her husband. Her testimony at the coroner's inquest pointed the finger of suspicion at him, but now she feels that he had nothing to do with the poisoning. She still is of the opinion, however, that her son was poisoned, but the circumstances of the sad affair will perhaps always remain a mystery.

THE GEORGE H. CHANCE STILL FISHING.—Mr. Williams, manager of the Deep Sea Fishing Company, returned to Portland last Monday morning, having spent some days on board the company's steam fishing schooner, George H. Chance, which was falsely reported to be lost. Yesterday a reporter endeavored in vain to "locate" Mr. Williams, in the hopes of ascertaining how the steamer was making out. It was learned, however, that the Chance is still on the fishing banks, near Neah bay, and will arrive at Portland before many days have passed, with a fine cargo of Lenten diet. The officers of the company still assert that there were no substantial grounds for the sensational report recently circulated.

THE E. N. COOKE TO BE REPAIRED.—The steamer E. N. Cooke was taken down the river yesterday to the O. R. & N. Co.'s old boneyard, where she now occupies a place alongside of a number of the old hulks that have long since seen their best days, and many more their last days of usefulness. The steamer is not a total loss, however, by any means, and she is merely put out of the way temporarily, awaiting an opportunity to be placed on the ways, when she will receive thorough and permanent repairs, and will probably be a more substantial boat when again ready for business than she was before her recent collision with the rocks and the subsequent sinking.

LIQUOR FOR "LO."—Oregon City is coming to the front nobly in the matter of "whisky to Indians" cases since Mr. Barin took charge of the United States marshal's office. Frank Scott, who supplied firewater to salmon-eyed Sal of that city, was arrested a few days since, and yesterday was on examination before the United States commissioner, and was held to appear before the United States district court for trial. Yesterday Deputy Marshal Burns brought down from Oregon City H. B. Johnson, charged with having sold a bottle of whisky to an Indian. Let the good work go on till the unquenchable thirst of the Indian has been quenched or the race obliterated.

AN EASTERN VISITOR.—Mr. Thomas H. Montgomery, president of the old American Insurance Company, of Philadelphia, came to Portland yesterday, by the overland train from San Francisco. Mr. Montgomery is the great grandson of Bishop White, of Revolutionary times, the first bishop of the Protestant Episcopal church in Pennsylvania, and the first chaplain to the Continental congress. In Bishop White's days, the far, far West, was somewhere in the neighborhood of Pittsburg, Pa. Mr. Montgomery is the guest of Bishop Morris, with whom he will remain a few days, returning East by way of Tacoma, Seattle and the Northern Pacific railroad.

WORK TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED.—The work of sawing off the piles for the foundation of the pivotal pier of the Madison street bridge has been stopped by an unexpected rise in the river from the late rains. The water is about eight inches too high for proceeding with the work, and the river will fall this much probably within twenty-four hours. If the appliances for sawing the piles had been put a little higher, as they would have been had a rise of the river been anticipated, the delay would not have occurred. Mr. G. W. Brown was down yesterday with his foot in a sling to see how matters are progressing.

UNION PARTY MEETING.—The union party meeting was held at Nonpareil hall last evening. Messrs. D'Arcy and Miller addressed the meeting. They claimed that unless there was a new deal in politics, and political parties, the government would not long outlast forty states in this Union. Discontent would breed anarchy and anarchy despotism. The meeting adjourned to meet again one week from next Friday night at Nonpareil hall.

AH BAD OBSTRUCTED THE WALK.—A Chinaman named Ah Bad was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of obstructing a sidewalk with a sawbuck. If there is anything in a name it is safe to infer that Ah Bad will be convicted when he appears before Judge Tanner to-day. A Chinaman who "wears" such a name and persists in sawing wood on a sidewalk, to the detriment of pedestrians, ought to be convicted on general principles.

RUBBISH IN THE CABLE.—About noon yesterday the Stark street ferry stopped in the middle of the stream, while approaching the landing on this side, for at least twenty minutes. The trouble arose from a lot of rubbish, which came down with the current and clogged a cable pulley, displacing the rope. Such an occurrence rarely happens, but when it does some time is required to put things in working order.

FOR THE LADIES.—Miss A. S. Jorgensen, proprietress of the elegant millinery parlors at 165 First street wishes to inform her lady friends and patrons that she will have her grand spring opening on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. Miss Jorgensen has some lovely French pattern bonnets and hats and the lady announces the finest line of novelties in millinery ever before shown in Portland.

THE WEATHER REPORT.—The following is the weather report for points east of the Cascades, on the line of the Union Pacific: Bonneville 42, Hood River 48, Dalles warm, Arlington 41, Umatilla 37, Wallula 48, Walla Walla 45, Dayton 40, Pomeroy 46, Riparia 45, Colfax 46, Pendleton 40, La Grande 40, Baker City 25, Huntington 46, Heppner 38, Wilbur 36.

THEY WILL SOON BE HOME.—Judge Deady writes from San Francisco to his son Paul that he will not be home before April 1 and perhaps not till a week later, as he and Mrs. Deady will visit friends in San Francisco and other parts of California before starting for Oregon. Judge Deady states that he has been much benefited by his trip.

SEDUCTION AND LARCENY.—James Birdsell was arrested by Officer Wood yesterday afternoon on a charge of seducing Lillie Dawson. It seems that Officer Wood is camping on the trail of this class of offenders. A Chinaman named Lee Du was taken into custody for stealing from the rooms of a countryman named Lee Sing.

THE LAST BOUND VOLUME.—H. A. Oxer, librarian of the Portland Library association, writes the following note to THE OREGONIAN: "Received by the Library Association of Portland the last bound volume of THE DAILY OREGONIAN, from September 1, 1889, to December 31, 1889. Presented by H. L. Pittock, esq."

ENGAGED QUARTERS.—The Thomas Kay Woolen Mill Company, of Salem, has engaged quarters and will open an office at No. 5 Oak street. The Salem Woolen Mills have only lately started up, but will soon have their goods on the market in competition with those of the Oregon City and Brownsville woolen mills.

DEATH OF MRS. HODGE.—Mrs. Hodge, relict of the late Charles Hodge, died at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, after a brief illness. Deceased was one of the pioneer women of Portland. She was a most estimable lady, and her death will be deeply regretted by a very large circle of friends and acquaintances.

SONS OF VETERANS.—To-night, in the G. A. R. hall, will be organized a camp of Sons of Veterans. Mr. P. Lawton, of the G. A. R. post, will muster the camp in. All sons of old soldiers 18 years of age or over, are desired to be there promptly at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

THE $100 LOTS in Mount Tabor Villa are selling fast ($5 cash, $5 a month, no interest.) Don't delay longer to call at 9½ Morrison street for free transportation to inspect.

REDUCED PRICES.—Few days, best cabinet photographs cheaper than ever before only at gallery 283 First street, above Jefferson. Professor G. L. Eastman, operator.

U. S. INTERNAL REVENUE OFFICE.—The offices of the United States internal revenue collector are soon to be located in the Ainsworth block. The new offices will be more commodious and more conveniently fitted up than those now in use on Morrison street near Fourth.

DISCHARGING CARGO.—The Belle of Bath is discharging on the East Side some 800 tons of the steel rails of the Southern Pacific's contract. As soon as the gap is closed in Cow Creek canyon, the work of replacing iron with steel on the Oregon line will be resumed.

OPENING OF SPRING MILLINERY GOODS.—Mrs. G. H. Clarke wishes to announce that she yesterday opened her immense stock of imported bonnets, hats and fine millinery novelties of every description. Ladies are respectfully invited to attend.

TO-MORROW'S MILLINERY OPENING.—To-morrow, Friday, is the day set for Misses Harkins & Carr's spring opening of millinery at 47 Washington street, and the ladies may look for many new novelties in Eastern importations.

A GREAT MANY LOTS SOLD.—In Eisenbus Bay View addition and Port Townsend, and those who bought yesterday made $50. Lots to-day will be sold by Hughes, Brown & Co. for $200, this price good until April 1.

FOURTEEN POUNDS GRANULATED SUGAR $1, pearl coal oil $2 35 per case, best Eastern hams 12½ cents per pound at the Portland cash grocers, 45 and 235 First street, Portland; 1223 Fourth street, East Portland.

DIED OF TYPHOID.—Izatus Pollock, of Cornelius, died at the residence of his father, Colonel John Pollock, in that town yesterday of typhoid fever, aged 23 years.

THE JARVIS INCEST CASE.

PORTLAND, March 19.—[TO THE EDITOR.]—With many of the bar of this city, I have been pained by the articles appearing recently in the columns of THE OREGONIAN, criticising the decisions of the supreme court made in certain criminal causes, and apparently reflecting upon the motives of the distinguished lawyers composing that tribunal.

Sensible as I am that these gentlemen are occupying their positions at large personal sacrifice, and that their especial reward is the approbation of the bar, recognizing the absurdity of supposing that any judge would intentionally embody in the reports a number of opinions to be handed down to posterity, which might cause a reflection upon his intelligence or his integrity, and knowing also that the members of the court are precluded by their position, and by every sentiment of delicacy, from uttering a word, I have thought it not improper to call your attention to some matters which may have escaped your observation.

Having been of counsel in a majority of these causes in both the lower and in the supreme court, I may with confidence assert that these appeals would not have been taken but from a persuasion of error in the rulings of the trial judge.

This may not be so with the Olds case, which involved a life, but it is a fact that the opinion of the majority of the court in that case has received the approbation of one of the most illustrious of the federal judges upon this coast.

But most unaccountable is your criticism of the case of the State vs. Frank Jarvis. The trial of this cause in the lower court fairly bristled with errors, any one of which would have justified a reversal, and the statements in the opinion which you attack and cite as evidences of "crankiness" is the court simply recognize and apply an indisputable rule of law.

Where two persons unite in the commission of a crime, each is of course an accomplice of the other. By the rule of the common law a conviction could be legally had upon the unsupported testimony of an accomplice, though juries were invariably cautious in such cases. By a statute of this state, as in most of the American states, such evidence must receive corroboration.

Jarvis was indicted for rape. He was convicted of incest: the verdict of the jury overthrowing the theory of violence, and demonstrating that the act, if committed, was voluntary upon the part of both the defendant and the prosecutrix. The woman was therefore an accomplice and her statements must be corroborated.

The distinguished counsel for the state will hardly say that this decision is counter to the current of authority. Indeed, it states the accepted rule of law.

The supreme court may be "the prisoner's hope," but it must be remembered that the founders of our commonwealth devised a right of appeal in criminal causes, after a recognition of the deficiency of the English system, a defect which was rendered memorable by countless instances of erroneous and irremediable conviction.

Your allusion to Iago reminds me that I have seen more than one conviction upon evidence less convincing than that which caused the taking off of the unfortunate Desdemona.

ALFRED F. SEARS, JR.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, MARCH 20.

THE ARGUMENT FOR IRELAND.

The lecture of John Boyle O'Reilly was a very pleasing, but on the whole, disappointing performance. To an intelligent American, familiar with the history of Ireland, both past and present Mr O'Reilly's lecture was disappointing because it utterly failed to state the real argument of the Irish case that appeals to the American and the Irishman who has read the speeches of Gladstone and watched the course of Parnell The trouble with Mr O'Reilly is that in his heart he does not belong to the best school of orators for Irish freedom He cannot help showing that he is in deeper sympathy with Tone and the martyrs of 1798, with Emmet, Mitchel O'Brien and Meagher who stimulated the silly feeble spurt of insurrection in 1848, with the Manchester martyrs of 1867, and with the Irish nihilists of a later date than he is with the great Irish men, who, from the days of Swift and Queen Anne to those of O'Connell and Victoria, have been the wisest friends of Ireland, winning within the law by peaceful constitutional agitation all that England has granted her in shape of better government Swift Edmund Burke Flood Curran Grattan O'Connell and Parnell aided by the great Englishmen Fox Earl Grey Peel Sydney Smith Macaulay Bright in his best days and Gladstone are the men who have in succession accomplished all that has been wrought for the redemption of Ireland

Swift, in his 'Drapier Letters' with trenchant sarcasm and unanswerable irony made a sketch of the social and political history of Ireland that made every conscientious Englishman shudder and hang down his head in shame Burke nailed the awful anti-Catholic code of William Queen Anne and the first two Georges to the cross of public infamy Grattan and Flood forced England to grant Ireland a domestic legislature O'Connell was the genius of the struggle that ended in 1829 with the grant of Catholic emancipation Parnell is but a modern disciple of O'Connell's philosophy of ceaseless political agitation for reform within constitutional lines of action, and Gladstone finally became his English coadjutor even as Fox helped Flood and Grattan to victory and the transient triumph of home rule Every thing that was accomplished by these great men for Ireland was won without insurrection, without firing those random shots of reckless hopeless rebellion that sent to the scaffold and into exile some of the noblest Irishmen that ever lived Grattan O'Connell and Curran were all outspoken against the rising of 1798 and Emmet's crazy insurrection of 1803 The influence of O'Connell was so great that he prevented any resort to physical force from the death of Emmet until 1848 when his own death left the young Ireland party free to practice folly without stint One of the ablest of Parnell's followers, Justin McCarthy, makes it perfectly clear that whenever Ireland has been persuaded to abandon the profound policy of Grattan Burke O'Connell and Parnell for that of physical force, so recklessly and hopelessly resorted to by Tone, Emmet their feeble imitators of 1848 and by the latter day Fenians and dynamite and dagger nihilists Ireland has gained nothing and lost much

Separated from its accidents and coincidents the Irish situation to day stands for a ceaseless and determined constitutional struggle for the grant of home rule which the English colonial dependencies of Canada and Australia enjoy home rule that Austria grants to Hungary home rule that Oregon enjoys in the United States Mr Gladstone states the full strength of Ireland's argument for the grant of home rule when he brushes aside all Mr O'Reilly's eloquent pictures of ancient Ireland before the Norman conquest as contrasted with her woeful condition under Elizabeth Cromwell, William Anne and the Georges and says that while Irish independence is impracticable since geography makes it a political necessity that England should hold Ireland or Ireland possess England nevertheless that England is bound when she assumes to govern Ireland to give her a just and humane government according to the definition of the decent opinions of mankind Of course any other position than this would be utterly untenable for a loyal English statesman and any other counsel, which holds out to hot headed Irishmen the prospect of absolute national independence of England is not only ill-timed but immoral and insane England is no more open to criticism for conquering Ireland than William the Norman was for conquering England or the original English colonists of New England and Virginia for conquering the Indian and taking this land The English title to Ireland is just as good as the title of the United States to the America it occupies The just indictment of England to day is not the weakness of her title to Ireland but the fact that from the accession of William the Third in 1688 to the accession of William the Fourth in 1830 England did not discharge her moral duty by Ireland and give her that just and humane government without which a people can be neither happy nor prosperous

Mr O'Reilly in distinction from Gladstone and Parnell does not view Ireland with the eye of a statesman, but with that of a poet. He argues the case of Ireland exactly as Wendell Phillips did, who would justify the murderous nihilism that only made a bad matter worse whether he found it in Ireland or Russia. Of course to Phillips this was easy enough, but the testimony of history is all against the policy of trying to force a reform by the dagger It failed in Rome with Brutus failed in France with Ravaillac and Charlotte Corday failed in Holland with Gerard failed in England with Felton failed in America with Booth failed in Ireland with Joe Blake The disappointment caused by Mr O'Reilly's lecture is that he fails to uphold the hands of Parnell and Gladstone, because of his implied sympathy with a school of Irish agitators who have always by their crimes and folly stood in Ireland's best light and made the really illustrious and judicious Irish statesman grieve Ireland is not a nation to-day and she was not a nation at the time of the Norman conquest for had she been really a nation she would have made a better fight, and she is no likely to be a nation until England ceases to be That Ireland has been the birthplace of many illustrious men is undeniable but this fact no more assures her for the future a place among the great nations of the earth than the fact that Virginia was the 'mother of presidents' served to maintain her in the front rank of the states of our Union Home rule Ireland is sure to get within a few years but beyond that Ireland's chance of absolute independence of England rests upon the baseless fabric of visionary aspiration and prediction

The generous man rejoices to see his neighbors learn a useful lesson from his own errors and follies It is a pleasure to see that the state of Washington has learned a useful lesson from the stupid fiscal policy of Oregon. The debate in the Olympia senate upon the revenue bill last night revealed a strong and intelligent sentiment against the taxation of credits and the excessive taxation of foreign corporations doing business in the state Washington has learned in one year of existence an elementary truth of fiscal science which thirty years of experience has not taught Oregon to wit, that taxes on credits are paid by the borrower, and that taxes on business are paid by the seller. If you tax a mortgage, the lender adds the tax to the interest If you tax an assurance company, it adds the amount to the premiums If you tax foreign capital coming into the state to develop its resources, the capitalist will get the amount of the tax out of the people of the state or take it where he can The Washington senators are to be congratulated upon their intelligent perception of these truths. If the people of Oregon had been as clear sighted for the last thirty years the state would be more prosperous The Washington senators call us stupid and semi barbarous in fiscal matters It is not agreeable to be called hard names under any circumstances It is particularly disagreeable when the hard names fit like the paper on the wall

THE NEW TARIFF BILL

The country is now in possession of the most important schedules of the new tariff bill excepting those for cotton iron glass, flax and hemp, and silks Few changes are likely to be made in these except a reduction in the duty on steel rails which will affect neither the price nor the revenue since we make steel rails now cheaper than England can and the indefensible increase in the duty on tin plate The changes may be summed up in a few words The duty on wool is increased about 10 per cent with a proportionate but not equal increase on manufactures of wool The latter increase is an entirely unnecessary concession to the Eastern manufacturers to enable them to make cloth out of domestic wool at a profit in spite of their distance from the source of the raw material and the domestic market Its only effect is to make the consumer pay needless freight charges This increase will tend to decrease the revenue by limiting importations but nobody can say how much The sugar tariff is reduced 50 per cent not enough but better than nothing This will cut off nearly thirty millions of revenue unless the sugar trust keeps prices so high as to encourage importations

The tariff on building lumber is cut down half, except as to imports from countries which levy an export duty on logs The chief items affected by this reduction are sawed lumber and manufactures of wood of which we imported in 1887 about $5,000,000 and $1,000,000 worth respectively It is doubtful if this reduction will reduce the revenue at the outset It is likely to stimulate importations from Canada until American lumbermen meet the competition with reduced prices The reduction is in the interest of the consumer It is intended like the increase in the duty on agricultural products to make the bill popular with the Western farmer This change will be most effective in the northern belt of country, from the Atlantic to the head of the Mississippi river where the American white pine is nearly exhausted and the wants of consumers in the Eastern cities and on the Western prairies can be most cheaply supplied from Canada On this coast we can probably compete successfully with British Columbia even with a one dollar duty

The provisions schedule has been remodeled in the interest of the farming class A new duty has been laid on nearly every product of the farm from horses and hides to potatoes and eggs Some of these articles were previously upon the free list and whatever duty is collected from them will be added to the revenue The most important items are horses and mules on which the duty is increased from 20 to 35 per cent, and the importations of which in 1887 reached nearly $3,000,000 barley increased from 10 to 30 cents per bushel of which we imported 10,000,000 bushels hides taken from the free list and made to pay 1½ cents per pound of which we imported nearly $4,000,000 worth, and fruits on which the duty is nearly doubled and of which we imported some $12,000,000 in 1887 Some of these increases will reduce importations and so check the tendency to increase receipts from duties but the general effect of the changes in the provision schedule will be an increase of revenue It is clear that in this part of the bill at least the main object of revenue reduction has been lost sight of and the interest of the taxpayer and the consumer made secondary to that of the producer However if protection is to be the rule the Western farmer and ranchman the Oregon wool grower and the California fruit-grower should share its benefits with the New England and Pennsylvania manufacturer

FATAL INSUBORDINATION

A difference between a West Virginia school teacher and a pupil a boy of 16 a few days ago, resulted fatally to the latter The offense of the youth was a trifling one that of being late to school and upon being disciplined by the teacher he retired for reinforcements These appeared in the person of the boy's father and two neighbors and in the struggle that ensued the refractory pupil was fatally stabbed and his father the teacher and several others were seriously injured

An event of this kind is a reminder of a feature of a very primitive age, wherein "the master" was looked upon as the natural enemy of the "big boys" and the latter made common cause against him as a tyrant whenever opportunity offered The stern New England fathers were the allies of the school masters in these contests but in the West and South where learning was not held in such repute as in New England, the father not infrequently espoused the quarrel of the boy and the latter was encouraged in acts of insubordination that made the master's life a burden for a time and finally led to his abandonment of the school

Reasonable intelligent parents have long ago settled the question of trouble between the teacher and his pupils at school in favor of the former The teacher nine times out of ten perhaps ninety nine times out of a hundred though he may err in judgment or in methods is in the right in any conflict with a pupil Impudence is the ready weapon which the big boy "untutored in obedience punctuality or politeness at home, draws in self defense when the teacher insists upon his compliance with the rules upon these points necessary to the successful government of a school It is one of the few offenses that can neither be ignored nor tolerated by the teacher He must meet and conquer it or abandon his school after a few weeks more or less of vain struggle with the insubordination that it begets Such conditions once the rule in what was known as "district schools" may now be regarded as the exception though that they still exist is sufficiently proven by an occasional report from outlying districts like this one in West Virginia

As a rule parents who turn a willing and sympathetic ear to the grievances of their children relative to their treatment at school live to regret their mistake The ungoverned boy becomes an ungovernable man as surely as boys become men Whether parental officiousness shows itself in causing the arrest of the teacher for the exercise of proper discipline upon the indolent insolent or laggard pupil and his arraignment before a tribunal where the port boy appears as his accuser or as in the instance above noted, it calls in the help of the neighbors and visits the teacher for the purpose of inflicting retaliatory punishment upon him, the effect is the same upon the boy It puts him, in his own estimation, in the light of the injured party justifies his unruly conduct and paves the way for future misdemeanors that are likely, at least, to lead to much more serious results than those which the teacher honestly strove to avert

The gates of future transgression were suddenly closed for this West Virginia lad but the result of parental championship of unruly pupils is not often so quickly decisive as in this case The usual result is to open these gates and leave the culprit free to pursue the path to which they lead The New England boy who was afraid to report at home a punishment inflicted upon him in school, being certain that it would be duplicated with interest by his father presents a somewhat desolate picture of boyhood to the imagination of a more sympathetic age but he represented a type of manhood a few years later that took the lead in public affairs and had no words to waste in pleading the cause of irresponsibility arrogance and disobedience to law which cost the nation so dearly Respect for law and deference to duly constituted authority are the distinguishing elements of good citizenship the foundations of which are laid in the homes and schools of a nation through the compelling force of obedience to the authorities of these

A CONTEMPLATED POLAR EXPEDITION

Several years have elapsed since the survivors of the Greely expedition rescued by relief ships sent out by the United States government returned starving and emaciated to their homes The tale of suffering which they told with pallid tongue [illegible] by the discovery that the flesh had been taken from the bodies of their comrades who had died of starvation to prolong their own lives which but for this revolting resource would have been lost In the face of this testimony adventure turned its eager eyes away from the frozen North which had long held for it such weird attraction and the spirit of Arctic exploration has since slept

Lately, however it shows signs of an awakening and it is likely that a new polar expedition will be planned the coming summer The Norwegians as is natural from their traditions as well as from their geographical position have been constant in their determination to explore the mysteries of the frozen North and a recent report from the capital of that nation tells of a lecture upon Arctic exploration by Dr Nansen before the crown prince and the Norwegian Geographical society that awakened much interest in the subject. Dr Nansen is known as a bold explorer who crossed Greenland about a year ago in the interest of science and he now proposes if properly encouraged to penetrate from the Pacific to the Atlantic by way of Behring strait He thinks the Jeannette was on the right track when she met the disaster and but for this that she would have accomplished triumphantly what she set out to do As a curious and interesting confirmation of this theory he cites the finding of a pair of oil skin trousers marked with the name of one of the crew of the Jeannette on the southwest coast of Greenland carried thither by the ocean current from the North Other drift evidently from Siberia and Alaska has been found near the same spot showing as Dr Nansen believes a continuous current past the pole and toward the Greenland coast He is confident that these oil skin trousers made the voyage that their owner hoped to make in them actually rounding the north pole and making the fabled north west passage

Whether a ship could pass the same way may be doubted Certainly the experience of the Jeannette is contrary to the supposition but it would [illegible] Dr Nansen proposes to get around the difficulty by building a ship with sloping sides that the ice will not crush and to trust to the currents He proposes to enter the Arctic sea through Behring's strait pass Wrangel land and sail toward the New Siberia island Then he says we must steer northward there to be blocked in the ice when this breaks up the stream would bring the expedition to its object [illegible] According to the calculation made an expedition thus planned starting in June could complete its object in two years The lecturer urged the great scientific value of polar exploration, and aroused the enthusiasm of his countrymen by exclaiming

Let it be the Norwegian colors that shall first wave on the North pole This is an honor which the world will not begrudge the hardy Norsemen and it may well hope that if they take the risk involved the honor will be theirs

The final contract for the Portland-Japan line of steamers was signed in San Francisco last Saturday and thus direct communication between this city and the great cities of the Orient is assured Naturally enough San Francisco looks with some disfavor upon this line as a formidable competitor in the trade of the East but neither this disfavor nor the prognostication that the enterprise will not pay militates against it The trade between the populous and wealthy East and the great and growing West has already developed vast proportions Its increasing profits from year to year have been carefully noted and it is pretty certain that the enterprise will yield a dividend or the sagacious engineers of commerce would not seek to enter the field of trans Pacific traffic San Francisco has been so long the gateway of commerce for the Pacific shores of the Western world that it brooks with ill concealed chagrin the prospect of a division of the profits that it so long held unchallenged in the China and Japan trade

The national greatness and security that rests upon a single man and that man tottering with age is a thing so unstable that the withdrawal of this support through the resignation of the leader can only hasten by a very few years the collapse of empire that would result from his death William of Germany is probably as well able to rule without Bismarck now as he would be five years hence Judging indeed from the rapid advancement of socialism he is better able to meet the crisis now than he will be after the great army of malcontents has grown to be an invincible host An impending crisis is a most uncomfortable thing to live under The young emperor is not a wise man he is not even an ordinarily crafty or sagacious one, and Bismarck justifies the estimate which the world holds of his statesmanship in withdrawing from the government before his fame becomes tarnished by complication with the schemes of the ambitious young ruler who wears the crown of William.

The testimony of the almanac, invaluable under such circumstances is to the effect that spring will begin on the 20th of March While it is not entirely safe to appear in straw hats and linen dusters to day and leave umbrellas at home on this evidence there is yet a reasonable prospect that the almanac may not be very much out of the way The sun when it shines is warm the adventurous grass is growing green by the wayside the cavernous waste basket in the editorial rooms is full of spring poetry and there is every evidence that the ambitious young season is getting tired of the unseemly lingering of winter about the portals of her accredited domain An early spring is out of the question, but spring, if late will not be the less welcome

The resignation of Bismarck makes the figures of the composition of the new reichstag of interest The genuine liberals and the radicals now control between them 80 seats the so called national liberals have but 39 members while the socialists have 37 representing 1,400,000 votes The conservatives have elected 80 members and the clericals have secured 112 seats There are 16 Poles who as Catholics, will vote with the clericals The four anti Semitic members will vote with the government. The members from Alsace and the independents few, in number are of course against the government The reichstag consists of 397 members, and 199 are required to form a majority On the face of these figures and estimates it is clear that the clericals or Catholic party hold the key to the situation, and can force the government to make a combination on their own terms or risk defeat The clericals and the conservatives have together 198 seats or one short of a majority The Catholics or clericals being 112 strong can if they choose compel the repeal of the last vestige of the Falk laws and secure compensation from the state for the Catholics who suffered pecuniary losses while these Falk laws were enforced This prospect doubtless helped to persuade Bismarck to resign he did not want to eat any more of his anti Catholic crow

The Empress Frederick the life long enemy of Prince Bismarck has her hour of triumph She has lived to see her son practically dismiss the iron chancellor from the service of the empire a thing which her husband would no doubt have done, in a measure through her influence before this if he had lived The woman is ignored in German politics but in this case she has managed to make herself heard through the agency of her son though unwittingly on his part His refusal to be guided by Bismarck is doubtless as legitimate [illegible] through him to her as the crown which he wears was [illegible] his father The occult forces of nature work wonders in unexpected places sometimes

The man who blows out the gas has arrived He stopped over night recently at a hotel in a Michigan city and the smell of burning coal prompted a search for him After rapping up several guests the night watchman approached his door with a peremptory challenge that induced the occupant to peer out of the darkness of his room and inform the guardian of the guests' slumbers that he had tied a towel around the electric light and so shut it out He justified his novel attitude upon the modern luminary by explaining that he had tried to blow the pesky thing out but it would not go out People who have not outlived the era of the tallow dip are clearly out of place in a modern hotel

President Harrison meant exactly what he said when he issued his proclamation warning the boomers out of the Cherokee outlet Four bodies of troops marching from different points on the boundary of the territory are converging upon the settlements of the boomers to remove forcibly all who remain in defiance of the order It is doubtful whether the demonstration of the boomers has much advanced the opening of the territory The spectacle of their expulsion by the troops will encourage the Indians in their extravagant demands and perhaps increase the difficulties in the way of the legal opening of the outlet

---

The gods seem to have determined upon the destruction of the young German emperor His choice for the chancellorship is one of his field marshals His reliance for support in the reichstag is upon a coalition of clericals and imperialists His power will rest upon a vicious mediæval tripod the union of the king the temporal pretensions of the church and the brute force of the army This might have done two centuries ago but it is a shaky foundation for dominion in the western Europe of to day There are evil days before young William and there is a sore struggle coming for the German people

A Priest Convicted.

London Times.

The conviction on a charge of criminal misappropriation of property of the mohunt or high priest of Tripati appears to cause much excitement among the Hindoo community of the Madras presidency This is no matter for wonder, as the Tripati temple is one of the most sacred places of pilgrimage in Southern India having a history reaching back to legendary times, while its mohunt is among the highest ecclesiastical personages in the country Full particulars of the trial have now been received.

It seems that some years ago treasure amounting to about two lakhs of rupees was found buried in the temple grounds. It was sent to the district court, but returned as belonging to the temple and placed in the custody of the late mohunt About two years ago the present mohunt gave out that it was buried under a flagstaff which he had erected within the temple precincts but information given by one of his assistants led to a suspicion of fraud and to proceedings which ended in the recent trial The mohunt made every effort to prevent a search alleging it would violate the sanctity of the temple and so on, but the authorities insisted and an excavation was made, with the result that instead of gold coins they found only old copper coins with a thin layer of gold on the top The mohunt when put on his trial attempted to shift the blame on to the temple servants He called a few witnesses in defense, but the judge found the case clearly proved and, disagreeing with the assessors whose verdict he described as perverse, passed sentence of three years imprisonment The mohunt has appealed to the Madras high court and an application for admission to bail is now pending

A Tribute to Sam Simpson.

Salem Journal.

An item from the Eugene Guard is going the rounds of the weekly press of the state in which the name of Oregon's most gifted poet is paraded in a very uncharitable manner Sam L Simpson it is his weakness but there are few in or out of the editorial profession who can assume the responsibility of casting dornicks at him, and there is little to admire in the disposition to hold him up for public gaze and criticism as some newspapers are doing. [illegible] Simpson has given to Oregon the finest gems of literature in prose and poetry it possesses and he is still contributing these gems and will probably continue to do so for several years for the fires of his genius are not by any means extinguished Sam L Simpson is as harmless as a babe He is bereft of family comforts he is the [illegible] of circumstances the work from [illegible] and [illegible] of the greatest nature and his personal shortcomings are injurious only to himself It is ungenerous to drag them before the vulgar gaze

The Visiting Card.

Good Housekeeping

To many people the visiting card is but an insignificant and trifling bit of paper but those who know society by heart make it serve as a convenient medium of social intercourse For instance, cards have become very useful as means of conveying somewhat informal invitations. For dinners, balls and other very ceremonious occasions, they are inadequate, but they are in good taste for dances luncheons, "at homes and teas

The words "at home" are written upon the card by the hostess herself, also the hour and often the nature of the entertainment, as "Dancing," "Progressive euchre." The envelope should exactly fit the card, and while it is not out of place to send by mail, it is in better taste that they should be delivered by a servant.

The convenient card is also used in replying to invitations This is frequently correct, but not unless the invitation itself was in that form. Where one more formal was engraved, or written in the third person, a note also in the third person is necessary In using the card the phrases, 'Accepts with pleasure, or 'Regrets to decline,' are proper but it is not allowable to merely write 'Accepts' or 'Declines,' as this is too curt a form to be really courteous.

If a call is intended for more than one member of a family, it is well though not obligatory, to send up a card for each person In event of seeing no one a card must be left for each without fail It may be turned at the corner or not In small towns this is not the necessity that it is in cities, where there must be some indication whether the visit was personal or not.

And these are very few of the many uses of cards, which, properly understood, simplify social duties.

How He Secured a Job

Chicago Herald

One of the brightest advertising men in Chicago made his rise through the fall of another I was some years ago when as a mere boy, he was tramping the streets of Chicago, broke and in search of any sort of a job which offered. The mayor form[illegible] the council that he had appoint[illegible] Showers Hoyt and Farrell a[illegible] committee for the city hall

THEY WOULDN'T [illegible]

Under the [illegible] introduced a resolution or [illegible] the building committee to five [illegible] the mayor to appoint two [illegible] members. Farrell said that comm[illegible] consisted of three members. He thought it would not be worth while to make this consist of five as he mo[illegible] there were the more wrangling the [illegible] and the less work done

Fliedner said if two members were to be added to the committee [illegible] move that they be appointed from citizens outside of the council.

Woodward—The more members there were in the committee the more talk and trouble there would be If the present committee proved incompetent [illegible] them out and appoint others It was [illegible] advisable to appoint members out[illegible] the council. The council would have [illegible] the responsibility in the matter [illegible] the committee should be councilmen

Castendieck said the city hall matter was the biggest proposition the council had tackled, and he thought there was business enough about it to need five m[illegible]

Gerdes with his usual [illegible] remarked that there was $500,000 to be expended which he thought was enough to [illegible] men a show

The motion to adopt the resolution was lost by a vote of six to three and the committee stands as originally appointed.

MORE ABOUT THE CITY HALL

Forbes said he had heard [illegible] there were objections to having the city jail connected with the city hall He tho[illegible] that was the proper place for it and wo[illegible] like to know if the building comm[illegible] had had the matter under consideration

Showers said there had been objections made to having a jail under the hall and the committee were figuring on placing it in a wing of the building. Consultation with the architect would be necessary before the matter could be settled Woodward said it was a poor idea to have a jail under the hall.

Farrell said it was the intention to have it in a wing if possible

The mayor asked what had been done in regard to selling bonds for the city hall.

Woodward said the bonds were being printed The committee would meet forthwith and advertise the bonds for sale at once and they would be completed and ready for distribution in about twenty days

In connection with this matter Gerdes introduced a resolution defining the powers the building committee should furnish to architects and general instructions for the committee in regard to how to build a hall, etc, which was referred to the building committee

ANOTHER MOTOR LINE.

An ordinance was introduced by Hoyt authorizing the City and West Portland Park Motor Company to build and operate a motor line from the city limits east on Third avenue to South Front thence to Whitaker street and on that street to South Front street The ordinance was read twice

THE GARBAGE CREMATORY

Gerdes introduced an ordinance providing for the payment of $100 a month to M. Burlebach out of the general fund, being the allowance stipulated for him maintaining a garbage crematory and moved to have it passed under suspension of the rules

Woodward objected to the passage of the ordinance until an investigation had been made, as it had been stated to him that the condition of affairs at the crematory was a shame and disgrace, and as much worse than the old dumping ground as anything could be.

Gerdes said if scavengers dumped garbage along the county road it was not Burlebach's fault.

Farrell said he had visited the crematory last fall and thought there was something to be said on both sides of the question He thought the matter ought to be laid over and the committee on health and police instructed to investigate and report at the next meeting

Fliedner visited the crematory last fall and had also walked out there a few days ago The state of affairs along the road beyond the city limits was simply scandalous, the road being lined with garbage He did not know how to fix it. His objection to the place had always been that it was too far off

Woodward said that the crematory was outside the city limits and the city had no control over the scavengers after they got outside the city

Castendieck said Burlebach complained that he could not get enough garbage to keep the crematory going He wanted more, but the scavengers would dump it along the road

After some further discussion the matter was referred to the committee on health and police to report at next meeting

CITY ELECTRICIAN ELECTED

Farrell said an ordinance had been passed some time since providing for a city electrician, to have superintendence of all electric wires strung along the streets of the city. He moved that they now proceed to elect this officer by ballot

Forbes said it would be well to nominate one or more candidates and Gerdes accordingly nominated A J Coffee and Scoggin nominated P I Morey

The ballot was spread and there were 7 votes cast for Coffee 1 for Morey and 1 blank and Mr Coffee having received a majority of the votes cast was declared elected

HE RECKONS WELL Who Buys Lots in Highland Park

WHY? Because Highland Park is nearer the center of the city than any property (full-sized lots) sold on the installment plan—only 15 minutes ride on the Vancouver Motor, fare 5 cents, and it is high, sightly and healthy.

BECAUSE of the great saving in wood, water, interest and taxes. What can be harder on a man when he is striving to get a home than these heavy expenses—anything harder don't exist. Hundreds know these facts well; many know the economy of a home in Highland Park. You have but to prove these facts and you'll want this property. The best way is—see it. Free fare. Lots $200 to $375. $10 down; $10 monthly; no interest; no taxes.

Chinese or not. He supposed the city of San Francisco had thoroughly examined the question. If it was possible that the Chinese could be removed it ought to be done. He knew they would be a nuisance if removed, but they would not be so great a nuisance anywhere else as where they are.

Gerdes drily remarked that this matter ought to be looked after, as there was an election coming off in June. They were moving in the matter in San Francisco, and the election did not come off there till September. On motion of Castendieck, the mayor was instructed to appoint a committee of three, and he appointed the judiciary committee, Messrs. Gerdes, Woodward and Scoggin.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

Woodward asked to be excused from three or four meetings, as he was going out of the city. On motion, he was excused.

LEASING THE TUG.

Robert McIntosh submitted a proposition to lease the city tug Louisa Vaughn. Gerdes said they had leased her once and came out second best. Woodward said he had had enough of that sort of thing, and on his motion the communication was placed on file. Adjourned.

MET AND COMPARED NOTES.

How the Hunt Committees Are Progressing with the Work of Securing Subscriptions.

The chairmen of the various committees which have been soliciting subscriptions to the Hunt railroad bonds, met yesterday afternoon at the rooms of the Board of Trade and compared notes. A great deal of work has been done, the results of which are not yet obtainable, but the sum of $1,300,000 has been signed, and there is a lot more in sight. The gentlemen present at the meeting seemed to have no doubts as to the requisite amount being raised, but only discussed the shortest way of raising it. They related their experiences with a number of wealthy citizens, and figured on how much certain ones ought to give, and from their talk there is some fun as well as lots of hard work in serving on committees. After discussing the situation for some time, they started out with renewed vigor to resume operations, it being the generally expressed opinion that when they had reached a certain amount, Messrs. Jacob Kamm, W. K. Smith and Dr. Glisan could be depended upon to make up the deficiency.

ANOTHER ELECTRIC ROAD.

Successful Trial Trip Made Over the Washington-Street Line Yesterday.

In response to invitations from Mr. G. B. Markle, president of the Multnomah Street Railway Company, a large number of prominent citizens were present at the power house of the company at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, to take a ride over the company's line on Washington and B streets, from First street to the city park, on the first electric car run by the company.

Promptly at the appointed time the power was applied and the car moved gracefully and easily up the ascent from the power house east, and was soon at First street. The car was then run back up the line and out as far as the park. From here the party returned to the power house at Thirteenth and B, and upon invitation of the management made a tour of inspection of the admirable and convenient plant of the company. Expressions of gratification and pleasure were heard from all who participated in the trial trip, among whom were Captain James Steel, of the Second street, and Superintendent Campbell, of the St. Johns electric lines, both of whom congratulated the officers of the company upon the successful inauguration of the new system of motive power.

It will be several days yet, probably a week, before the cars are put on for regular trips. There will be ten of them on the Washington, and they are expected to leave First and Washington every two minutes.

WORK ON THE CLAN MACKENZIE.

The First of the Big Steel Plates Fitted In Yesterday—Construction of a Machine Shop.

The work of repairing the Clan Mackenzie is advancing rapidly, and promises to be finished before the time specified in the contract.

The blacksmith, with his helpers, is ever busy at the forge, on board the Whitelaw, and many more men are following the scriptural injunction by "earning their bread by the sweat of their brow," at work on the damaged bows, that are now rendered free from water by reason of the cofferdam for a considerable distance back. The last of the broken and jagged plating was removed yesterday, and machinists are drilling the necessary additional holes; the first of the big plates were inserted during the afternoon, and will be ready for the riveters this morning. This plate once in, and all danger of the ship's sinking, through any accident to the cofferdam, is passed, as the water would lack fully two feet of coming to the top of the sheeting.

Long strips of timber have been fastened lengthwise of the ship to the stem, and are bent to the shape of the model, so that no trouble will be experienced in fitting the plates to the proper curve.

Carpenters, numbering ten or a dozen, are actively engaged in the erection of a roof that covers for a considerable space the lower floor of the wharf, and is held in place by the sides resting on the upper gangway of the dock. Under this temporary roofing will be fitted a machine shop, a riveters' and blacksmith shop, and men can prosecute the work with the necessary speed, regardless of rain or sunshine. An electric dynamo and the wires have also arrived and the machine will soon be placed in position. Two crews of workmen will then be established, and the approach of night will not interfere with the operations.

"The progress of the work will not commence to show up until about next Wednesday," said Captain Whitelaw to a reporter yesterday afternoon. "Then we will have at hand the big steam punch and shears, and no time will be lost in fitting the plates. To-day we will swing the ship's bow around, so as to bring it opposite the 'shop,' and not so much lifting by the derrick will be necessary and the steel plate can be let down more handily."

NEW WATER MAIN TO PALATINE HILL.

A Force of 125 Men at Work—A Muddy Road—Activities at the White House.

The White House road is in a terrible condition, and no improvement can be hoped for until the work of laying the water main is completed. This will yet take some time, and even after the main is laid, the road can not be put into proper shape in a few days. It will be more than the work of a day or a week, if done as it should be.

At present about 125 men are employed in digging trenches and laying pipes, while a force of twenty-five men keep in their wake repairing the road temporarily so that vehicles can pass. In another week the pipe will be connected with the pumping station, but there is still quite a section to put down at this end, to make connections with the mains in the city.

The White house promises to be a lively place during the coming summer. Mr. D. F. Smith, the proprietor of the hotel and lessee of the race track, intends to get the track in ship shape for the June races to be given by the Multnomah Driving Association. He will plow it up in a few days, and then harrow and roll it until he gets it into proper shape. There will be no base ball games at these grounds this summer.

The Abernethy homestead, embracing 160 acres, surrounding the race track and extending some distance along the river bank this way, is soon to be platted and sold in acre tracts by the syndicate of Portland business men, which recently purchased it.

The recent floods did considerable damage in washing away nearly five acres of good gilt edged real estate near the Milwaukie ferry landing.

A portion of the White house orchard on which were planted twenty-eight apple trees, two small buildings and about 200 feet of the wharf were included in the washout.

SILLY AND MENDACIOUS.

The Seattle "Post-Intelligencer" Does Not Act Fair in the Matter of Reporting Clearances.

Seattle is an energetic, wideawake and prosperous town, and the people of Portland view her growth and progress with the most friendly feelings and without any desire to decry them. These feelings, it is believed, are reciprocated by the people of Seattle, who are not responsible for, and who do not approve or uphold, such silly and mendacious statements as those made by the Post-Intelligencer of the 16th instant in regard to the transactions of the clearing houses of Seattle and Portland.

The Post-Intelligencer of that date says: "Bradstreets gives bank clearings for the week ending March 9 as follows:

Los Angeles	$776 232
Tacoma	749,486
Portland, Or.	769 835
Seattle	1,202,378
Portland, Me.	1,172,169

Bradstreets gives no such statement of clearings, but the figures given are tolerably correct with the trifling exception that a figure "1" is omitted at the left-hand of the amount of the clearances of Portland, which should read $1,769,831. The matter of a million dollars or so is not of much account to Portland, where the bona fide clearances often amount to over $2,000,000 per week, but a respectable journal, desiring to have the confidence of its readers, should not make such misstatements.

The statements of the Seattle clearing houses make a very favorable showing compared with those of Portland, without resorting to such palpable misstatements. It may be said, however, that the business of the Seattle clearing houses is not conducted on the same plan as that in use in the Portland clearing houses, and that the favorable comparative showing made by Seattle is due, to a considerable extent, to this plan.

In the Portland clearing houses all balances are settled daily by payments in cash, as is the case in most clearing houses.

In the Seattle clearing houses the balances are not paid in coin but are settled by check or order, and these checks are made to figure among the clearances of the next day. On the cards which clearing houses send to each other weekly with the statement of business transacted, there is a column for the amount of clearings and another for the amount of balances. This last column is not now filled in the cards sent by the Seattle clearing house to the Portland clearing house. The last one which came properly filled was for the week ending January 18. The clearances for that week were $874,473 28 and the balances amounted to $405,718 25, nearly fifty per cent of the whole amount of business. The checks for these balances being handed in next day increase the amount of apparent business by that amount, and this being repeated daily increases the amount of clearings.

HE FOUND THE "HIDDEN POTENCY."

What Came of Experimenting a Little With a Dynamo—A "Shocking" Episode.

A dynamo, such as is used to furnish electricity for operating a street railway, is like a young man from the fact that there is a hidden potency in it. Most people are content to admire the dynamo from a safe distance, and to let the potency remain concealed, but employes of electric companies have to cultivate a more intimate acquaintance with them and sometimes run across the potency when they are not looking for it.

A case in point happened at the power house of the Multnomah Street Railway Company a day or two since. The superintendent of an electric company was getting the big dynamos in running order. Almost everybody knows the electricity comes from the dynamos in sparks, and that these sparks are collected by a sort of brush. The superintendent was holding a brush to that part of the armature whence the electricity pours out, and one of the employes was holding another on the opposite side. Everything worked all right, and presently the employe laid down his brush and walked away. The superintendent was seized with a sudden desire to have both brushes applied to the armature again, so he reached over and picked up the other one and applied it, thus forming a circuit through himself. The first thing he knew he was pitched head first against the coils of the machine and was throwing his arms and legs around like an electrified skip jack. Fortunately he was able to let go and get away without being hurt, but he was spitting flakes of copper all day. The accident was the result of momentary forgetfulness, and the superintendent was much annoyed by it, and afraid the papers would get hold of it, for which reason his name is not given, but he will be designated as Mr. LeBlanche.

AGAIN OPEN TO RIDDLES.

Another Week Will Probably See Through Rail Connection to San Francisco.

The Southern Pacific will to-day again put on sale tickets to Riddles, connection between there and Myrtle creek having been temporarily interrupted the past few days.

Messrs. Kohler and Brandt reached West Fork at 2 P. M. yesterday, and were expected to complete their investigations so as to return home this afternoon on the regular train. Mr. J. B. Kirkland, local passenger agent of the road, says there is a gap of one mile only between West Fork and Glendale, and he confidently expects trains between this city and San Francisco to be running on schedule time, beginning Tuesday next. It is getting too late for more very violent storms, and no further trouble is apprehended.

NORTHERN PACIFIC OFFICIALS.

Their Contemplated Visit to Anacortes—New Ferry Line to Be Established.

ANACORTES, March 17.—[Special Correspondence.]—Among the arrivals to-day were Captain F. Werth, of the United States Geodetic Survey Commission, Colonel H. Dougherty of California, and T. L. Coughlin of Oakland.

John McTavish met with an accident yesterday by a tree falling on him and crushing his shoulder. He is now receiving medical treatment.

The Bowman sawmill was completed this morning and started running about 2 o'clock, thus adding another business enterprise to the list of Anacortes.

A steam laundry will be started here shortly and the sooner the better, as loud complaints are being made about the difficulty of getting laundry work done—but Rome was not built in a day and all these necessary institutions here will undoubtedly come in time.

The establishment of a ferry between Anacortes and Guemes island is now an assured fact, Messrs. Thomas and Pyle having come forward to supply the want. It is the intention of these gentlemen to carry excursion parties as well as residents who may wish to inspect the romantic spots, which abound on Guemes island.

The Anacortes Daily Progress, a newsy little sheet of three columns, made its appearance to-day in an enlarged form and is a credit to the city.

Real estate took a fresh leap to-day and many important sales are recorded.

On dit, the Northern Pacific officials will be here Saturday to look over the situation.

Financial.

Following is a statement of the business of the Portland clearing house to day: Exchanges, $254,365 94; balances, $60,416 24.

In a dispatch to the Chicago Herald from Boston of March 9 a table of the business of the various clearing houses for the week ending on that date gave the business of the Portland clearing house as $769,835, whereas the correct figures should have been $1,769,835. No doubt the error occurred in telegraphing, but it is just as well to have it corrected before it goes any farther.

The Markets.

Business is in a rather quiet state, the bad weather of the past few weeks conducing to this result. There is, however, every indication of great activity in the several lines of trade with the approach of spring. The produce market remains in its normal condition, the demand continuing steady and being met by liberal supplies, especially from California. The potato market is weak with a scarcity of the staple sending prices way up. The merchandise market is showing a marked activity, orders coming in liberally from tributary points. Quotations remain as last noted.

WHEAT—Nothing new has developed in this market. The foreign market seems to show a firmer tone, but the situation locally remains unchanged. Quotations: $1 17½ @1 20. The fluctuations of the Eastern markets are as follows:

The London correspondent of the Northwestern Miller, writing under date of February 17, has the following to say on the wheat situation abroad:

Our markets have seldom been so unmoved and so quiet in the face of strengthening influences as they have for the past few weeks. Thus, during the past three weeks, our net imports of wheat and flour have amounted to only 655,000 quarters, while the requirements have been at least 1,100,000 quarters. So that stocks in first and second hands must have diminished at least 445,000 quarters, or over 3,500,000 bushels. Add to this the fact that the Russian wheat and rye crops have within this period been officially declared to be 33,000,000 quarters, or about 27½ per cent. less than last year; that the Indian crop is again likely to be deficient, or quite below an average; and that the Australian surplus which, a month ago, was put up as high as 2,500,000 quarters, is now found to be only about 1,250,000 quarters—with all these facts before the trade it might well have been thought that speculation would have been stimulated, and prices have certainly improved somewhat. The fact is, however, that prices have hardly varied. Speculators for a rise are few and far between, and less than the ordinary amount of business has passed. Buyers, in fact, seem to have made up their minds that as usual, now that the winter is practically over, nothing will affect the market in an upward direction except unfavorable prospects for the coming crop. In this view they are strengthened by seeing the quantity afloat increasing weekly, the total for Europe to-day being 2,720,000 quarters, against 2,500,000 quarters last year, and 1,734,000 quarters two years ago. The stock at Odessa, too, remains large, being on January 13 estimated at 1,391,000 quarters, against 1,530,000 quarters a year ago, while the general opinion seems to be that the Plata districts will send to Europe a larger quantity than in any previous year. The price at which these latter wheats are obtainable are also very moderate compared with other wheats, viz, 31s 6d to 32s, at which prices a large quantity has already been sold for Antwerp. Compared with Australian and Californian at 35s it seems more advantageous to buy La Plata wheat, especially as there is still plenty of home-grown wheat to be obtained at 30s or 31s per 504 pounds delivered at the mill. A large miller of my acquaintance is, indeed, at this moment grinding 70 per cent. of English wheat, which cost him 30s per quart on the average. Small wonder, therefore, that American wheat at present prices meets a slow sale, and that American flour no longer enjoys the same demand as before. The sooner, in fact, that American millers recognize the fact that British millers are better able to compete with them in price, as well as in quality, the better it will be for them. Such a variety of sensational statements have been recently made with regard to the position of the world's markets as to supply and demand for the present season, that it will be well to give here Beerbohm's latest estimate (February 21) on the subject, which, it will be seen, fairly agrees with that which I sent you as far back as August last:

PROBABLE SUPPLIES.

	Quarters.
United States of America	15,000,000
Russia and Roumania	11,000,000
India	3,250,000
Austro-Hungary	750,000
Australasia, Chili and La Plata	1,000,000
Canada, Turkey and sundries	1,000,000
Total	32,000,000

PROBABLE REQUIREMENTS.

	Quarters.
United Kingdom	18,000,000
France	8,700,000
Belgium, Holland and Germany	4,000,000
Switzerland	750,000
Italy	4,000,000
Spain and Portugal	750,000
Greece, Norway and Sweden	1,000,000
West Indies, China, Brazil, etc	2,000,000
Total	34,750,000

This is not a sufficiently large deficit to make any fuss about, and it will probably not affect prices unless the new crop promises unfavorably.

FLOUR—The market rules about the same. Quotations: Standards, $3 75; outside brands, $3 50.

OATS—The market is firm. Quotations: 40@42c.

HIS CARD TO THE PUBLIC.

PORTLAND, Or., March 18, 1890.

ROBERT BURR, being duly sworn does depose and say:

For two or three years I have been a GREAT SUFFERER with DYSPEPSIA, LIVER and KIDNEY affection, and of late seriously afflicted with HEART DISEASE. The palpitation of my heart was so great that it would seem that my heart would jump out of my breast: terrible thumping and pains through my chest and a bad cough. I was so painfully and seriously afflicted that I was incapacited for work and had to give up my situation. Two weeks ago I was induced to apply to Dr. Aborn Fourth and Morrison streets, by the reports I had read of his great success, and I am most happy to say that his treatment gave me INSTANT RELIEF, and I have continued to improve daily ever since, and as it was from the testimonials that led me to consult Dr. Aborn, I feel it my duty to others that I publish this card to make these facts known for the benefit of the afflicted, how SPEEDILY DR. ABORN CURED ME of my complication of ailments that had resisted all previous treatment.

FRANK GLOVER IN TRAINING.

He Walks, Runs, Jumps Rope, Rows, Punches the Bag, and Spars.

A Visit to His Quarters at the White House—Paddy Gorman Wants a Set-to With Tom Ward—The McAuliffe-Carroll Match.

Frank Glover, whom many believe to be as game a man as ever donned the gloves in a prize ring, is training for his match with Mike Conley Saturday night, at the White house. A reporter, accompanied by M. Dee, took a drive out there yesterday afternoon to see how the clever pugilist spends his time at his training quarters.

Two men going around the race-track were the first objects to greet the reporter's vision as the vehicle rolled up to Mr. Smith's hostelry. The man in the lead, attired in a fatigue jacket, an ordinary smoking cap on his head, and large beads of sweat standing out upon his glowing visage, was Glover. He was taking a little exercise, and the way he got over the ground would have done credit to any good pacer. A little in the rear of him was a prominent Portland attorney, who had to vary his gait by taking a spurt every few minutes in order to keep up. He, too, was taking exercise, but more for the experience than for pleasure, if his weary looking countenance and wilted collar may be relied upon as a safe standard of judgment. Glover has already trained down considerable, and when he enters the ring Saturday night he will tip the scales at about 160 pounds. He used to fight as a middle-weight, and has reduced his weight as low as 157 pounds, but owing to the fact that he can get no matches in that class, he was obliged to bring up his weight as high as possible to meet heavy-weights. All of his late fights have been with men who outclassed him in weight, some of his antagonists weighing from fifteen to thirty pounds more than he did.

If a good trainer and hard work are conducive to success in the prize ring Glover ought to come pretty near winning the match Saturday night. He is in the hands of Paddy Gorman, one of the most experienced trainers on the coast—a man who has had the satisfaction of seeing twenty-seven of his pupils leave the ring victorious.

The daily routine of Glover's training may not be without interest. He rises early in the morning and walks about a mile and a half before breakfast. After breakfast he again walks and runs getting over about twelve miles of ground before noon. Before dinner he takes a bath and is rubbed down. Having rested a few minutes after the noon meal he skips the rope 1400 times, punches the bag nearly an hour and then has three or four lively rounds with his trainer, both men using large gloves. After this exercise he and his trainer enter a double scull and row about four miles. On returning from the river he again takes a bath, then eats supper and again walks a mile or more before retiring for the night. He is very regular in his hours, careful in his diet and abstains from the use of intoxicants entirely.

MANY A HARD FIGHT.

Frank Glover has a record that any pugilist may be proud of. He was born in Chicago on the 29th of September, 1864, and consequently is not yet 26 years of age. When still a mere youth he became a member of one of the ordinary gymnasiums and there he acquired a love for fistic honors that has buoyed him up through his many hard-fought battles. He always aspired to the front ranks, and his determination and tireless efforts soon began to transform the awkward youth into a skilled boxer. His prowess with the gloves gathered about him a coterie of admirers, who saw for him a great future in the arena. In this they were not mistaken for his victories from the time he entered the profession, some ten years ago, until he was forced to meet heavy weights, were many and brilliant. Out of nearly 150 fights he met his Waterloo but a few times.

His first fight was in Chicago with a man named Risch, whom he defeated in one round, lasting four minutes, London prize ring rules. Next he met and defeated Hugh Crowley in two rounds, and Professor James Conley, of Boston, met the same fate soon after at the end of three rounds. After another victory over a local champion in Chicago, he went to the southern part of the state and defeated two men in one night—Long in one and Lamasney in two minutes. Frank Winlon next met defeat at his hands at the end of two rounds in Milwaukee and Tom Hirsch came out second best at the end of four rounds in Chicago. He then defeated Bill Bradburn in four rounds, and two weeks later in five rounds; Tom Chandler, in four rounds; Patsy Mallon, in one minute and ten seconds, in Minneapolis; Fred Neff, in Milwaukee, in three rounds; Neff again in one round; Hirsch, the second time, in two rounds; Bradburn again in seven rounds in Chicago (police interfering after Bradburn was virtually whipped); Jack Burke, several weeks later in six rounds; "Big" Greenfield, champion of England (so called) in three rounds; J. W. Curtiss, in Eau Claire, Wis., in three rounds (Curtiss once defeated Patsy Cardiff and Glover whipped him after having his right arm broken in the second round); Hammond, in Indiana with bare knuckles.

He fought a draw with Paddy Ryan on a barge seventeen miles from Chicago, the police interfering before the end of the second round, and a fifteen-rounds draw with John P. Clough in Minneapolis. Coming to the coast about three years ago he met defeat at the hands of Joe McAuliffe. He stood up before McAuliffe three hours and fifteen minutes, and a week after challenged him to fight again for $1500. One of the San Francisco clubs also offered a $3000 purse, but McAuliffe did not accept the challenge. Joe Choynski defeated Glover in fourteen rounds, and in his last fight Billy Smith, the Australian, bested him in nine rounds. Glover was sick when he fought Smith, but he preferred defeat to a forfeiture of his money. The match was postponed ten days and then Glover took his medicine like a little man.

Conley is also training hard and the contest Saturday night promises to be a hot one.

Paddy Gorman is anxious to have a set-to with Tom Ward. Ward is a plucky fighter, and has many admirers in Portland who would like to see him in the ring again. Although Gorman weighs perhaps a little more than Ward, the latter is a stayer and is hard to down.

Billy R. Donley, of the San Francisco Illustrated World, writing to a friend in this city, says that Dell Hawkins calls on him nearly every day, expecting further developments regarding a contest between himself and Pete Shay in this city. Hawkins is willing to meet Shay for a purse of $300. Shay, however, already has a match on hand with Billy O'Donnell, and can make no arrangements with Hawkins until that is disposed of.

The McAuliffe-Carroll fight is the next pugilistic event in San Francisco. The contest takes place Friday evening, and betting is already brisk in sporting circles. Jack is the favorite. The fight will be received by rounds at M. Dee's Turf Exchange, where interested sports, as usual, will congregate.

An enthusiastic preliminary meeting of amateur athletes and admirers of athletics was held last evening at Biggen & Holbrook's Stark street office for the purpose of taking steps to organize and incorporate the Portland Athletic Club. F. B. Holbrook occupied the chair, and an animated discussion on the prospects and need of a club under good auspices took place. The engagement of Joe Choynski as boxing instructor and an all-round athlete for the gymnasium was also considered, and he will probably be engaged when the club is duly organized. The next meeting will take place at the same place next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. Gymnasium apparatus and the building for the club's quarters have already been secured.

THE THEATRICAL WORLD.

"A Poor Relation" Scores a Brilliant Hit at the Marquam.

"An Arabian Night" at the New Park To-Night—"The Danites" at Cordray's—Bill Nye Coming.

It was a splendid audience that greeted Sol Smith Russell last night at the Marquam Grand upon his first appearance this season in his play, "A Poor Relation." It will be remembered that the play was produced here some two years ago by Mr. Russell, and it was in four acts. Since then many improvements have been made in it; it has been shortened to three acts, and the interest of the story has been concentrated, so to speak, and intensified by the elimination of unnecessary dialogue and the cutting out of extraneous "business."

It is an intensely human play. The spectacle of the poor inventor, devoting himself with paternal fidelity to the care of two waifs of humanity deprived, for the time being, of the care of their natural protector, is in itself one to appeal to the largest sympathy of an audience, and when is added to this his own love story, his humble, patient devotion to the woman who in his hour of direst need gave to him the sympathy and womanly consideration which only a heart of purest gold could give, the interest is increased immeasurably. There are, however, still some points in which the play could be improved. The interest practically culminates in the second act, and the last act simply picks up the scattered threads of the story and weaves them into a climax easily conceived and naturally expected.

Mr. Sol. Smith Russell is at his best in the portrayal of the character of Noah Vale. Nothing could be more natural than his delineation of the simple, guileless nature of this truly noble creation. There is a pathos about his very poverty, his earnest efforts to conceal his sufferings and at the same time to uphold his dignity as a man, that strikes a chord in the hearts of all who witness his work. Mr. Russell is not a man of genius; he is an earnest, conscientious worker, and appeals to the favor of his audience by the sheer honesty of his work. That he succeeds is sufficiently attested by the plaudits which greet his nightly efforts.

He is supported by a clever company too, at least in so far as the ladies are concerned. Miss Merri Osburn as Scollops is the same bright, cheery soubrette that so favorable introduced the character to us on a former occasion. Miss Lillian Owen makes a most charming and lovable Dolly, and Rip and Patch are represented by two of the sweetest little midgets in the persons of Master Richards and little Hazel Chapel. Miss Lillian Drew also makes a very acceptable Eunice Faye, while R. F. Sullivan as O'Haley and Louis Carpenter as "Sociable" Smith do full justice to their solos.

The play was well staged and in every way scored a brilliant success. It will be given for the remainder of the week.

AT THE NEW PARK.

Another large audience witnessed the last production of "A Night Off" last night at the New Park theater. To-night the Daly company will present for the first time Mr. Augustin Daly's latest New York comedy success, "An Arabian Night," of which an exchange speaks as follows:

"An Arabian Night," one of Augustin Daly's comedies, was presented by one of the brightest companies that has appeared in light comedy this season. The perplexing positions and startling situations in which a lively society man is placed by some of his awkward blunders in failing to take his wife into his confidence and not learning the most difficult lesson in life that of placing himself thoroughly en rapport with his mother-in-law, forms the basis of the plot which serves to keep the audience constantly convulsed with merriment. The role of Alexander Sprinkle, not only a retired broker with plenty of cash, but the imitator of Haroun Alraschid, the caliph of Bagdad, was handled so deftly by Adolph Lestina as to show that he was a diplomat of high order in averting impending evils. Charles Burbridge, in Signor Hercules Darrows, the cannon ball and heavy-weight tosser, who was not too full of his own or other spirits to secure the return of the leading spirit of the circus troupe, was also able to provoke considerable mirth, especially with the able assistance of Miss Theresa Newcomb, who in the character of Rose Maybloom, the bareback rider, sustained the latter role.

CORDRAY'S MUSEE-THEATER.

"The Danites" continues to be a drawing card at this popular house and the "standing room only" sign is nightly displayed. The play runs for the entire week.

NYE IS FLUSHED WITH VICTORY.

Flushed with victory and almost deaf with applause, Edgar W., alias "Bill" Nye, will arrive on the 25th. He will appear at the New Park March 26th and 28th in a series of utterances—not elongated lectures. This shows that Bill has an extremely level head, even if it is bald. He will hold sweet converse with the audience in periods of about twenty minutes each, and will be in plain sight all the way from five to a dozen times. Between the talks there will be interludes of music, participated in by Ollie Torbett, the popular young violinist, who was here with the Kellogg Concert Company, Gustave Thalberg, the Swedish tenor, and Frank Downey, the pianist of whom Boston is so proud. This forms a remarkable programme, truly. It is unique, to say the least. Nye's success in San Francisco was of the largest size. The Examiner pays him a glowing tribute, while the balance of the press vie with each other in praising his luminous humor and striking wit. None of them fail to mention that while what he has to say, reads well, the effect of it is greatly increased by Nye's remarkable delivery.

THE CONLEY-GLOVER MATCH.

To the Public: Although not having any actual personal interest in the Mechanics' pavilion, in view of the fact that the proprietorship of that place is a mooted question in the public mind, and being a personal friend of Mr. Conley and having his best interests at heart, without desiring to favor either Mr. Morgan or Mr. Faulkner, the disputants, I wish to state to the public that the contest between Conley and Glover Saturday evening will take place, as no trouble is anticipated. Should any interruption occur, however, I will stand responsible for the refunding of money for tickets sold. Mr. Gunst having the handling of most of the tickets I would refer the public to him either to substantiate or endorse my statements, wishing the people to thoroughly understand that I am espousing the cause of neither Morgan or Faulkner, but that I simply act in self-protection, and as duty dictates as manager of Mr. Conley. The dispute between Morgan and Faulkner is a matter for the courts to settle, and as I was a bondsman for the release of the building at the time of the Dempsey exhibition, I would cheerfully withdraw my bonds in favor of the claimant the court places in rightful possession.

MATTERS OVER THE WAY.

A Five Round Slugging Contest Between Billy Gross and Jimmy Sheridan.

Monthly School Report—The Illegal Shooting of Robins Within the City Limits—Rebuilding the Sunnyside Shoe Factory.

The following is the report of the schools in this district (21) for the month ending March 14:

SCHOOLS.	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	Visitors
Central	552	478	419.6	96.5	284	18	25
North Central	[illegible]	314	291.7	95.7	169	11	23
Stephens	[illegible]	278	265.0	96.7	[illegible]	22	27
Totals	[illegible]	1070	976.7	97.0	587	51	75

The schools are closing up the work of the year in good shape. Notwithstanding the drawbacks encountered, excellent progress has been made in all the grades. There are two months more of school this year. It is not known how many there will be in the graduating class as yet, but the prospects are there will be quite a large number.

SPARRING CONTEST.

About 200 people witnessed the sparring contest last night in the building on Fifth and K streets, between Billy Gross and Jimmy Sheridan. The contest was preceded by a four-round set-to between Wagner and "Brother" Powell, which was enjoyed by all present. Both displayed knowledge of the business of boxing, and were frequently applauded. Then came the bout between Gross and Sheridan, in which the sports say little science was displayed. Five rounds were fought, and as Gross knew how to hit, and Sheridan couldn't and didn't hit, the former knocked the latter all over the ring. Sheridan took his medicine, and as often as he struck the floor he managed to get on his feet before time was called. He succeeded in winding Gross considerably, and although Gross had it all his own way, he was unable to knock Sheridan out. Unfortunately for Gross he kept striking foul blows, although warned by the referee to desist. At the close of the fifth round, after he had punished Sheridan until he went down, Gross struck another foul and the referee immediately decided the contest in favor of Sheridan, and the decision met the approval of the crowd. A "whoop and a tiger" was given for "Umbrella" Jimmy, and the crowd dispersed. The contest was refereed by a Portland man to the satisfaction of the sports.

CASE DECIDED.

A long drawn-out case was decided Tuesday in Justice Bullock's court. The case was between S. Bloomer and B. Fallows, in which Bloomer undertook to collect a $100 note from Fallows. The note dates back some time, and for awhile was in the hands of John Collins, who posted it on his "blackboard" for several months, but this did not bring Fallows to time. The case was tried before a jury, and the verdict was that Mr. Fallows should pay the note and the cost of the suit. Mr. Fallows claimed in his evidence that the note was given without any legal consideration, and that he gave it to Mr. Bloomer "out of the generosity of his heart." However, the jury could not see it in that light.

BONDS FILED.

Grofs, who secured the contract for the woodwork on the new Stephens addition schoolhouse, failed to procure the required bonds, and the contract was awarded to E. J. Sprague, whose bid was the next lowest. This insures a good job. Kinslow & Co. failed on their contract in the same way and it went to Mr. Church. All the contracts have now been awarded and the work will be pushed with all possible energy. A large force of men are now at work cleaning brick and getting the foundation in shape for the new school.

SHOULD BE STOPPED.

Ever since the robins and songbirds made their appearance boys, and sometimes men, have been shooting them. Yesterday, and for several days past, the grove south of ex-Councilman Halfpenny's residence, on Brooklyn Heights, resounded with the reports of rifles. There is no other game in this grove but robins and other songbirds. This shooting is within the city limits and the police authorities should make an example. A heavy fine would cause this indiscriminate shooting to cease.

FACTORY REBUILT.

The shoe factory at Sunnyside is nearing completion, having been almost entirely rebuilt by the shoemakers. Instead of shingles, corrugated iron is now used for the roofing. The building is thirty feet longer than the one that was burned down, and fully three stories high. Part of the machinery has arrived, and it is expected to have samples out within thirty days.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

City taxes are delinquent to-day.

Rev. Godon's lecture on "Sign Boards" has been postponed until next Wednesday night, March 26.

The grounds for the Sunnyside schoolhouse have been selected near the factory building and in a convenient and sightly place.

No action was taken at the last council meeting, with reference to the improvement of Fifth street, but it is presumed the matter is simply delayed.

Dr. Day Raffety is improving the grounds surrounding his new residence on Brooklyn Heights, setting out fruit trees and shrubbery in profusion.

Rev. C. C. Pobing, presiding elder of the Evangelical church, has been in the city for the purpose of arranging for the building of the new church on the Woodstock tract.

It is quite evident that the Woodstock & Waverly electric railway will come down Alaska street to Fifth, as the iron has been distributed along Alaska street for the line.

Work is suspended on the Methodist hospital at Sunnyside, because there is no brick to be had at present, and the possibilities are that that article may not be had for some time.

The baseball grounds on Clinton and McCoy's tract have been totally dismantled, and henceforth there will be no more games played there. The grand stand will also probably be removed.

CALL FOR A REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION.

A Republican Convention for the State of Oregon, is called to meet at the city of Portland on Wednesday the 16th day of April, 1890, at 11 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of nominating candidates for the office of Congressman, Governor, Supreme Judge, Secretary of State, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, State Printer, and District officers, and to transact such other business as may properly come before the convention. The convention will consist of 219 delegates apportioned among the several counties as follows:

Baker 6, Benton 8, Clackamas 9, Clatsop 7, Columbia 4, Coos 6, Crook 3, Curry 3, Douglas 8, Gilliam 6, Grant 5, Harney 4, Jackson 7, Josephine 4, Klamath 3, Lake 3, Lane 10, Linn 10, Malheur 3, Marion 12, Morrow 4, Multnomah 35, Polk 6, Tillamook 3, Umatilla 10, Union 8, Wallowa 4, Wasco 8, Sherman 3, Washington 8, Yamhill 8.

The same being one delegate at large from each county, and one delegate for every 175 votes, and one for every fraction over one half thereof cast for congressmen at the June election of 1888. The committee recommend that the Primaries be held on April 5th, and the county conventions on April 9th, unless otherwise ordered by the proper county committee. All voters who favor the Republican policy of American markets for the products of American labor, liberal support of our common schools and the protection of every voter in the nation, in his right to cast a free ballot and have it fairly counted are cordially invited to unite in the selection of delegates to the Republican State Convention.
T. T. BABIN, Chairman.

SIMON VERSUS LOTAN.

Carson Wing of the Committee Meets and Adjourns.

VIEWS OF LEADING REPUBLICANS

James Lotan Scouts the Proposition of a Public Session of the Committee—No Reporter Need Apply—Both Sides Serene.

[illegible] yesterday with a number of [illegible] republicans demonstrated [illegible] a desire among those who [illegible] directly in the line of battle on one [illegible] either of the opposing sides that harmony should prevail. It is hoped by them, [illegible] the success of the party, that the lion [illegible] down with the lamb. It is equally [illegible] however, that the lion in the case, [illegible] or the other of the bosses, is [illegible] to be down with the lamb, but insists [illegible] having the lamb inside of him. The [illegible] situation is practically this: The [illegible] Simon, relying upon their superior [illegible] carrying primaries, will be satisfied [illegible] control the judges and clerks. This [illegible] what the opposition does not [illegible]. The superior power vested in the [illegible] of a committee is a prerogative [illegible] to be closely adhered to [illegible] the merits of one disagreement after [illegible] in the committee meeting, culminating [illegible] a list of judges issued over the signature [illegible] Chairman Lotan. To defeat this possibility [illegible] the Simon wing has made a bid for [illegible] meeting, and for a selection of [illegible] partial to that element which has [illegible] Lotan the chairman of the county republican committee.

Pursuant to call, the Simon wing of the committee, consisting of Hon. J. C. Carson, [illegible] W. Witherell and T. W. Bleick, met at the courthouse yesterday afternoon. The attendance of citizens was inconsiderable, [illegible] being so on account of the impression which had gone out that nothing would be done, as the other members of the committee had refused to attend.

Mr. Witherell made a motion which he [illegible] declared carried, choosing Mr. Carson chairman. Mr. Bleick next obtained [illegible] without any great difficulty, and [illegible] a motion to adjourn. In support of his motion, he urged upon the attention of the committee that as some members were out of town, and as the chairman had issued a call for a meeting of the whole committee, an adjournment was quite the proper caper. The question being put to [illegible] was carried unanimously. So the [illegible] meeting adjourned.

A reporter called upon a number of leading republicans yesterday to ascertain how they regard the fight. Hon. D. P. Thompson said:

If the statements made by the opposing factions [illegible] are true, there appears to be a [illegible] difference. I don't know to [illegible] the allegations of a quarrel are true. [illegible] the confidence of either side, and [illegible] to be. But if the conflicting [illegible] are true, it shows a very bad state of [illegible] the party. I have never been a member of the county committee, and do not know [illegible] is customary in such cases; but I think [illegible] should first meet to select some one to fill [illegible] vacancy; then, if that cannot be done, they [illegible] agree upon the apportionment and the [illegible]. Put up good men and have fair primaries [illegible] no man vote who has not a right to vote, [illegible] prevent repeating.

It seems to me very necessary from a party standpoint, that the difficulty should be harmonized, so that the success of the party ticket [illegible] not be endangered. If I was a member [illegible] committee, the matter should be harmonized if I could possibly effect it by any act of [illegible].

FAVORS AN OPEN MEETING.

Mayor Van B. DeLashmutt is inclined to [illegible] hopeful view of the situation. He said:

I do not think the condition is nearly so serious [illegible] generally thought to be, especially in the [illegible]. It is almost always the case before every election so important as this one—that [illegible] so many general offices are to be [illegible] some difficulty is experienced at the [illegible] parties to agree, and agreement [illegible] brought about eventually by all sides [illegible] concessions. At first they think they [illegible] everything their own way or not at [illegible] if it doesn't go their way they are all [illegible] bolt the ticket. When cooler judgment [illegible] however, they usually settle down and [illegible] a ticket, by all sides making concessions. I think that will be the result this time, [illegible] when they get together they will find [illegible] can only hope to succeed by united action.

Questioned more specifically about the [illegible] session of the committee, the mayor said:

I think, in the first place, that all the action should be open and above board. Any unwillingness [illegible] is, in my opinion, prima facie evidence of an intention to do something that will not bear investigation. The proposition of Carson and Bleick appears to me eminently fair, though I would not say that I endorse [illegible] selection of judges. I do say, however, that the selection of judges should be one satisfactory [illegible] as a whole. The defeated side [illegible] be satisfied by the knowledge that they [illegible] fairly beaten. If there is any trickery [illegible] the defeated side is sure to carry it into [illegible] election.

THE NEW POSTMASTER.

Hon. S. A. Sieel—There is a necessity, now if ever, to have honest primaries, conducted fairly to all, so that there can be no going back of the [illegible]. I think it would be an excellent plan, as [illegible] each set to name a judge and then [illegible] and so on. Let there be a [illegible] if they want, at the ballot box as [illegible]. Then which ever side gets the delegates, let [illegible] have the convention. The selection of [illegible] ought certainly to be such as will commend [illegible] the party at large, and give neither faction [illegible] grounds upon which to base a bolt.

THE NEW COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Hon. [illegible] Herbert—Two conventions and two [illegible] delegates to the county and state conventions would be very unfortunate. I feel sure that [illegible] contending parties will not let their differences [illegible] beyond the primaries. I sincerely hope the [illegible] will be fought out there and not carried [illegible]. It is to be hoped that when the committee [illegible] together Monday, an amicable understanding may be reached as to the selection of [illegible].

OPPOSED TO DICTATION.

Hon. [illegible] George—I regard it as unfortunate [illegible] should occur between republican [illegible]. In my judgment, there is no occasion [illegible]. It looks somewhat as though there would [illegible] trial by battle," as the old law books [illegible] the primaries. Each side seems anxious [illegible] its strength, and if they will only fight it [illegible] the primaries, and the vanquished submit; [illegible] victors be merciful, all may yet be well. [illegible] a fair count ought to settle it, but [illegible] individual interests should jeopardize [illegible] the party. In my opinion, the people [illegible] are not disposed to stand very much [illegible].

WANTS A GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE.

W. [illegible] Durham, Esq.—The appointing of judges [illegible] by the county committee is a usurpation [illegible] ought not to be tolerated here, and [illegible] tolerated by no county in Oregon outside [illegible]. We used to meet, as they do now [illegible] the state, at the primaries, and there [illegible] judges and clerks, everyone who had a [illegible] having a voice in that selection. Some [illegible] years ago it was feared that the ma[illegible] not going to be efficacious enough; so [illegible] selection of judges was usurped by the county [illegible]. Now, why isn't this a good time to go [illegible] principles? I am not allied to either [illegible] factions, but am anxious for republican [illegible] and am one of those who do not wear brass collars or swallow the machine ticket without a murmur. I have had no hesitation in using my vote to rebuke improper nominations, and the best guarantee for republican success is to let the rank and file choose their candidates, rather than that bosses should dictate them.

HE PROPOSES TO BE CHAIRMAN.

It is upon James Lotan's broad shoulders that the biggest share of the opposition's heavy pressure must be sustained. He is not the man to shirk the responsibility or shrink from encountering the brunt of the conflict. He is knowing enough, too, to discourage agitation of the "casus bellum."

I am in favor of giving the public a rest about this matter, he said. If Mr. Simon and I were to tell all we know about each other, the public would probably not think much of either of us. No, I have nothing to say.

But, Mr. Lotan, would you be willing that each side should name half of the judges?

I have nothing to say to that, either. I have issued a call for Monday, and the committee will meet. It will not be a public meeting, but a private one.

You will not exclude newspaper men?

Yes, certainly. It is not customary to have such meetings public. Committees, particularly political committees, do not hold open sessions, and thus give the opposite party the benefit of their discussions. A portion of the proceedings, or all of them, may be given out, or again withheld, but I cannot say.

JUDGES, LAWYERS AND JURIES.

The Olds Case Again—Out of Court—Probate Matters—New Suits, Etc.

Hon. Rufus Mallory is hard at work upon the transcript in the testimony in the third trial of Sandy Olds, and as soon as he can prepare the bill of exceptions the motion for a new trial will be made and argued. The transcript of the proceedings is among the longest, if not the longest, ever made in Multnomah county or the state, and makes two bulky volumes of bound legal cap. The report covers all of the proceedings from the first impaneling of a jury. The expense of the shorthand reporter and the transcribing in all amounts to about $450, which is borne in about equal proportions by the state and defense.

NEW SUITS.

George Bock against Conrad and Maggie Krebs, to recover $100 and interest on a promissory note, made November 22, 1889.

George Bock against Conrad Krebs, to recover $20 on a promissory note, made November 2, 1889.

William Press sues Joseph Cordano, to recover $400 50 damages. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant took forcible and unlawful possession of his bootblack stand, No. 106 First street, in the month of February, injuring him in the above sum.

J. Wilson against the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, to obtain judgment in the sum of $373 65 for household goods destroyed on the defendant's road while in transit.

The Hamilton Brown Shoe Company, of Missouri, vs. B. F. Durphy, to recover $431 20 on a judgment obtained against the defendant in 1887.

Julia Doyle asks for a divorce from Michael Doyle, to whom she was married in Portland in 1872. Desertion in 1877 is alleged. She also asks for possession of certain Sunnyside real estate earned by her own labor.

THROWN OUT OF COURT.

Yesterday morning the case of Annie Seol against I. W. Lewis was to have gone to trial before Judge Shattuck. Mrs. Seol alleged in her complaint, filed some months ago, that the defendant had irreparably injured her reputation by publicly impeaching her chastity, and asked for heavy damages.

Mr. Lewis was promptly on hand with his witnesses, but the plaintiff and her husband did not materialize in the courtroom. It was very evident to counsel for both the prosecution and defense that Mrs. Seol had changed her mind about pursuing Mr. Lewis, and the case was thrown out of court.

PROBATE MATTERS.

Charles D. Lowndsdale has been appointed administrator of the estate of his late brother, F. R. Lownsdale, valued at $4000. He also had property in the state of Washington, making the property left by him, in the aggregate, $10,000.

Upon the petition of Emily E. Sheridan, W. L. Boise has been appointed administrator of the estate of the late George Becker, the youth who died about three weeks ago. The property is valued at $1000.

In the Municipal Courts.

The session of the police court yesterday afternoon was very brief and only a few offenders were put through the mill.

George Stott and Charles Huff were fined $5 each for drinking more liquor than the law allows, and Alvin Smith was taxed $10 for the same offense.

Winnie Cook, who was arrested for appropriating $3 belonging to P. Gable, concluded to plead guilty to a charge of simple larceny and the court let her off on payment of $25. Gable, who was held as a witness, was released.

John H. Demonin, charged with passing a worthless check on H. Parrish, the grocer, waived examination and the court held him to answer before the grand jury, under bonds in the sum of $300.

HE WANTS JUDICIAL REDRESS.

E. Z. Driggs and R. M. Diehl had an examination in Justice Wood's court yesterday afternoon on a charge of assaulting M. Mann. Mann is employed as horse trainer at the City View track, and in the heat of a controversy some days ago, he claims that Driggs and Diehl used more fistic force than the necessities of the case required.

The case against Driggs was dismissed, and that of Diehl was taken under advisement. It appears that the complainant was nearly, if not as much to blame for the fracas as the defendant.

The case against Purvis, charged with wrongfully retaining possession of some furniture, was continued another day in Justice Wood's court yesterday. The matter will, no doubt, be disposed of to-day.

A Short Docket.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT NO. 1.

S. Frank vs. J. R. Leabo; judgment by default.

L. L. Carter vs. D. Monnastes; motion to vacate judgment overruled.

W. A. Daly vs. M. A. Hackett; motion for a new trial denied.

Chenowith Bros. vs. Henley Bros. et al.; case dismissed and papers withdrawn.

Annie Seol vs. J. W. Lewis; judgment of nonsuit entered.

STATE CIRCUIT COURT NO. 2.

M. N. H. Vanderpool vs. Jeremiah Vanderpool; order for publication of summons.

Mary M. Vollum vs. Frank O. Vollum; default granted; set for Saturday, March 29.

Nancy A. Wilson vs. W. W. Wilson; default granted; order for publication of summons.

State vs. Herman Lewis; sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

Lucila Ingersoll vs. Carlos F. Ingersoll; order for publication of summons.

F. S. Akin et al. vs. J. P. Comalskeo et al; assignee allowed until April 5 to complete testimony on motion of plaintiff.

THE COLUMBIAN FAIR

House Committee Urges Confirmation of Chicago as Site.

THE FUNDS RAISED ARE AMPLE

Ability of the City to Erect the Buildings—New York Members Show a Contemptible Hostility.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Candler presented in the house to-day the report of the special committee on the World's fair. It is in part as follows:

Under instructions given by the action of the house the committee inserted Chicago in the bill as the place of holding the fair in 1892, and consulted with representatives of that city for the purpose of perfecting and improving it, making such amendments as were deemed necessary. The bill submitted differs in some essential features from the bill reported originally by the sub-committee, and recommitted. In the second section the representation of territories and the District of Columbia has been increased from one to two commissioners from each, and a provision also made for the appointment of eight commissioners at large. The commission is designated the "world's Columbian commission."

The third section dispenses with the United States corporation which it was proposed to create by congress, and also stipulates that commissioners shall be appointed from each state and territory and the District of Columbia, together with eight commissioners to be appointed at large, which the government appropriates for its own commission, acting independently of the corporation and without power to incur any obligations. The commission is instructed by this act to accept the buildings only when they shall be deemed by said commission to be adequate for the purpose for which they are intended. In the original bill the eleventh section stated that not less than 10 per centum of the stock shall be actually paid in cash before the commission shall do any corporate act other than those necessary to its organization.

The bill now reported is still more conservative, protecting the government's interests so far as its connection is concerned and insuring the financial success of the fair beyond a reasonable contingency by providing that the commissioners shall not only be satisfied that an actual bona fide subscription to the capital stock of $5,000,000 has been made, of which not less than $500,000 has been paid in, but also declares that a further sum of $5,000,000, making $10,000,000, shall be provided by the corporation in ample time or as needed for the successful prosecution of the work. The committee has given careful consideration to statements of representatives of the finance committee of Chicago as to the subscriptions to the stock of $5,000,000, and believes the subscriptions will be paid. While it is the judgment of the committee that Chicago will meet the obligations and promises of its representatives, it would call attention to the fact that the judgment of this committee is not taken alone, but the commission on the spot in Chicago will have a more favorable opportunity to satisfy themselves. The representatives of Chicago who appeared before the committee, were ready to meet every requirement indicated by the bill previously considered or in the discussion while the location was pending, and the committee desires to recognize the fact that it is due to Chicago that it be assured by the action of the house that the fair is to be held in Chicago without further delay as business arrangements connected with the provisions of this act can be better adjusted when they are assured of the action of congress. The committee claim that the government does not assume any risk, but is asked to enact such legislation as this to demonstrate that it is in sympathy with and desires to encourage the patriotic efforts of the citizens of Chicago in both a national and international exposition that will mark this important epoch in the history of the world and commemorate the life and services of Columbus in a manner worthy of the continent which he discovered.

Section 6 defines the duties of the commission and the commissioners, and gives them the necessary power to allot space for exhibitors and classify the exhibits, determine the plan and scope of the exposition, appoint judges and examiners, award premiums, and have general charge of intercourse with exhibitors and representatives of foreign nations.

Section 8 provides for dedication of the world's Columbian exposition on the 30th day of April, 1892. Upon the question of the time for holding the exposition there was a difference of opinion among the members of the committee.

The cost of government buildings is limited to $400,000, and appropriations are made for government expenses and limit of expense of the government after 1891, for all purposes connected with the exposition, is $1,500,000. All the expenses of the government are subject to the approval of the secretary of the treasury.

In submitting the letter of Chairman Gage, of the finance committee, of Chicago, the house committee calls attention to the fact that the city of Chicago and state of Illinois have for an extended period indicated a desire that Chicago should be selected as the site for the fair. Investigations made by their committee at Paris enables Chicago more intelligently to comprehend the magnitude of the undertaking and the cost, scope and requirements for the successful conduct of it, and can commence active preparations more promptly than could be imaginable except for their enterprise and forethought. The committee calls attention to the fact that the citizens of Chicago offer a larger and more generous contribution to the nation than ever proffered by private citizens before and larger than any other offered by any foreign government or city in the great international expositions previously held. In the financial plan of the Paris exposition, which is now claimed to have been the most successful in the world, it was agreed that subscriptions should aggregate $8,000,000, while Chicago guarantees to satisfy the commission that it will provide without the aid of the national government the sum of $10,000,000, and with the site to also be provided by Chicago. This is ample for all purposes for a fair in this country.

In addition to the buildings erected by the government and the city of Chicago for the exposition we may reasonably anticipate that many states of the Union, the Dominion of Canada, Mexico, the Central and South American republics and the governments of Europe will occupy commodious buildings for their exhibits. About fifty countries were represented at the Paris exposition, and we may confidently expect increased interest and a larger representation in the Columbian exposition.

The committee calls attention to the interesting and important communications and estimates appended, received from different departments and bureaus of the government, indicating the great interest in the exposition, and it is most important that they should have an opportunity to exhibit the valuable collections of the government of the United States. The continued interest manifested by the people of the country and foreign nations in this celebration, and more careful consideration of the subject since the first report of this committee has more deeply impressed the committee with the grandeur and importance of the undertaking, and confirmed them in the opinion that it will prove to be of great national advantage.

In conclusion is attached a statement from Senator Farwell, saying that the subscriptions to the fair fund are bona fide and will be paid.

The minority report is signed by Belden, Hatch and Flower, as follows: The undersigned members dissent from the foregoing report and its conclusions, and believe the following resolution which we voted for should have been adopted:

That when a guarantee fund of $10,000,000 shall be secured by Chicago, the sufficiency and legality of which shall be satisfactory to this committee.

We report the pending bill with such amendments as the committee may agree upon.

SOLDIER WILD A BAD MAN.

Therefore Lieutenant Steele Felt Justified in Convicting Him for a Petty Offense.

CHICAGO, March 19.—The trial by court-martial of Lieutenant Steele, eighth cavalry, for alleged maltreatment of private Dell P. Wild, was resumed this morning. Evidence was introduced to prove that Wild formerly served in the army under the name of Daniel P. Ward. Wild when questioned declined to say how long he had been in the service, and admitted that he could not bring any one to testify to his good character. On behalf of Steele a number of troopers testified that he always treated them in a gentlemanly way, and that they would not believe Wild under oath. Steele offered to bring every member of his company to prove both of these points. Adjourned till to-morrow.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—At the investigation of the charges against Captain Healy to-day, Lieutenant Buhn, executive officer of the Bear, testified in behalf of the defense, that under Captain Healy's orders he took several sailors from the bark Estella to the Bear at Ounalaska last July and triced them up about fifteen minutes and afterwards double-ironed them and fastened them to stanchions below the decks. He said the punishment was not painful at all, and that Captain Healy had told him the tricing-up was intended to frighten the men more than to hurt them. Witness also testified that Captain Healy was not intoxicated on the entire trip, and he considered him a remarkably humane man.

NICARAGUA CANAL NOT BUSTED.

Reduction of the Working Force—Only Five Hundred Men Remain.

NEW YORK, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—News from Greytown to March 3 has been received, by which it is learned that the Nicaragua Canal Company has just discharged some thirty of its engineers and clerks, contract men, simply tendering them their fares to New York. The rapid reduction of the pay-roll of the canal company does not look as though work was being pushed with that energy we read about in American newspapers that are booming the canal. A month ago there were 675 men on the works, but to-day not over 500 remain, and the prospect is that a good many of these will soon go. Work will now be confined to Silico, where rock is being taken out for the breakwater. Five hundred out of 1700 feet of piling has been driven to a depth of ten feet. Some wiseacres say the strong current caused by a change in the river channel is liable to undermine this work at any time, though at present the action of the water is banking up sand along the line. No mattresses are down, no filling has been done as yet to speak of, and work will soon have to be stopped unless more piles come to hand.

Startling rumors reach Greytown daily from natives concerning Shultz and his gold mines. After taking up large areas of land in his own name and the names of his relatives, Shultz prevailed upon the government to restrict any one mining claim to 100 feet square, giving new-comers but little or no show. The mines are enormously rich, and Shultz is fast becoming a millionaire.

BITTEN BY A BLUE GUM NEGRO.

The Fangs of Some Colored Men as Deadly as the Rattlesnake's Tooth.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Several weeks ago, Oscar Hall, a farmer of Clay county, had a fight with a negro farmhand named Henry Davis, who bit one of his fingers to the bone. The finger became much swollen and inflamed, and finally had to be amputated. Then the swelling continued up to the arm and finally it was cut off near the shoulder. Several days ago symptoms of hydrophobia developed, and Hall grew rapidly worse until he died. The attending physician pronounced it a case of hydrophobia.

Davis was what is known as a "blue gum negro," his gums being blue in color, and there is general belief that the bite of such negroes is always fatal. Physicians say the color of the gums is caused by bad blood, and that in such cases the bite would be poisonous and probably fatal. Davis is under arrest and charged with murder.

FIVE IRON MINERS LOST.

Great Fire Raging Under-ground at Hurley, Wisconsin—Heavy Financial Injury.

HURLEY, Wis., March 19.—A great fire is raging in the Germania mine. Five miners have perished, and all efforts to stay the flames are unsuccessful. The unfortunate men are James Thomas, his son, John Thomas, Hugh Walier, Jimmy Sullivan and William Banks, all miners. The loss will reach $100,000.

Horrible Experience in Russian Dungeons—Escape, Recapture and Pardon—The Czar Pays Tribute to Bacchus.

A Russian exile, now a student at Columbia college, New York, tells the following story in the New York Herald:

I am 22 years old, and already exiled forever from my country. Four years ago I was a student in a university in one of the largest cities of Russia. In American universities, I understand, it is the custom for two young men to "chum" together. In Russia we are not so rich, and three or four contribute toward the common expenses. I was one of a group of four. One of these four was, unknown to the others, a nihilist. This could not well happen here. It can readily happen in Russia, where one-half of the population spies on the other half. The arrests which followed the last attempt on the life of the czar numbered 180 persons, not one of whom was implicated in the plot. I caught a glimpse of the Russian "holy czar," or rather of the "tyrant czar," recently. The ruler of Russia is a pale, haggard old man, whose face betrays anxiety and fear. He is trying to forget himself, not in prayer, but in the arms of Bacchus. I think there is no man in America that would knowingly take up the royal burden.

One evening, when I came from the theater, I found my room full of gendarmes, who arrested me at once for a political crime. I was then and there searched. The police pulled to pieces everything in the room that could contain books, pamphlets or papers, but found nothing of a compromising nature. I was then put into a covered "drosky" and taken to prison.

I was first taken before the general of police, the man whose enmity had exiled my brother. He asked me who my friends were and what they were doing. I demanded the cause of my arrest. No explanation was given me, and having nothing to confess, I had no information to give. I was marched off at once to my cell, to wait there until I was prepared to enlighten the government on a subject of which I knew nothing. I learned months afterward that I had been arrested because a few days before written proclamations had been circulated by the nihilists. The handwriting resembled mine and I had been seen purchasing fifty postage stamps at one of the government offices.

I felt when the prison door was opened as if I were entering a grave. Picture to yourself a square hole in the middle of a stone, seven feet long, six feet wide and six feet high. For once I blessed my short stature. There was no window in this hole but a glass over the door; no light but what came from the oil lamp that hung outside. An iron bedstead, fastened to the wall, cut off a foot or so of my narrow limits. Everything is made fast so that the desperate may not commit suicide, for those who go insane in prison are not few. A wooden table was locked to the floor at one end of the den, and by its side was fastened a wooden chair. On the wall hung an "icon," a sacred picture of a saint, to encourage devotion. I had plenty of time for devotion. There was no light for books or the small industries in which prisoners employ themselves. I was allowed to do no work.

On the bed was a straw mattress and two blankets. The straw was changed but once a month. On entering the prison I had to submit to a search in comparison with which the search at my room was child's play. I was even made to open my mouth that the police might be assured that there was no dynamite concealed there. They discovered nothing more formidable than my tongue. I was allowed to retain my underclothes, but instead of my outer garments I received a long woolen robe like a dressing gown. With this for day use and my blankets for night I was never cold. But if the cell was warm it was hardly dry. Water trickled constantly over the stone walls and waked me by trickling on my face. After several weeks of this solitary confinement my nerves became so shattered that when this happened I would leap from my bed in shuddering agony. The meals in a Russian prison are simple and not conducive to dyspepsia.

At meal times two gendarmes entered and stood beside me with loaded revolvers while I made my frugal repast. The food was served in a wooden bowl, and both bowl and spoon were instantly removed by the guards when the prisoner had finished. There is no chance of making chisels out of one's furniture in a Russian prison. The abbe of Dumas' novel would hardly have constructed that remarkable tunnel from my cell. In this hole I lived for months, and no man who has not suffered the horrors of solitary confinement can appreciate what I suffered.

After I had been confined for two months I heard one day toward evening a tapping against the wall of my cell. Those who have read Mr. Kennan's admirable articles will know at once what it was, but I did not guess the cause for some time. Finally I guessed that it was some plan of communication from another prisoner, and such it proved to be. I need not repeat here what has been told so well elsewhere of the mode of talking by taps. There is in nearly every cell, in some obscure corner, observable only by the eyes of men who, like bats, have grown used to the darkness, a little plan scratched in the stone, if by nothing else sometimes by a broken tooth of a prisoner. In this plan the letters are so arranged that by a combination of taps it is unnecessary to tap twenty-three times for the twenty-third letter. Of course, at first, before I discovered the compound method, my next door neighbor tapped once for A, twice for B, and so on. When once I had mastered this method of communication I felt no longer alone. Tapping is forbidden, and the government knows that it exists, but the key of the tapping alphabet they have not yet discovered, even through their spies.

From the tower I was taken like a corpse to the infirmary. The beds here were separate, and there was at least fresh air and better food. For breakfast there was white bread and oatmeal, for dinner beef or some other good meat and for supper white bread and tea. Sometimes articles were sent to the sick prisoners by the charitable. I fell heir to a handkerchief with a coronet sent by some noble woman who sympathized with us. Of course it was taken from me when I left the prison, and there was some excitement in guessing who the donor was. The physician who inspected us was a personal acquaintance of my father, and I saw the tears in his eyes when he came to me. But he could do nothing for me, for the physicians themselves are watched every moment by the gendarmes, and the slightest suspicion of connivance with the prisoners is followed by heavy punishment. After two weeks of hospital life I was sufficiently recovered to be taken before the authorities for the "olopros," or official examination, and then for the first time I learned the nature of my crime.

I was too weak to walk and was carried to the examination room. It was hung with black, like the hall of the inquisition. Behind the table covered with black sat the general of police, the minister of justice, the state attorney, and a secretary with the "protokols." I was carried to the prisoners' cage and made to stand while the charge against me was read, though I was mercifully allowed to sit when the questions were asked. Two gendarmes with revolvers loaded stood one on each side of me, and two more guarded the entrance. The general of police asked the questions and the attorney wrote down the answers. At first I declaimed against the czar and his government, but the pistol barrels stopped that. I was asked if I belonged to any society, and names of my friends and what they had in view. I answered that I did belong to such a society, and that its intention was to kill the czar and destroy the government. The names of my friends I declined to disclose in St. Petersburg, but I promised to do so if sent to Odessa, where, I said, I need not fear assassination. All the officers rose when I told these lies, and promised me everything under heaven if I would disclose the names then and there; but I stuck to my purpose. At first they tried to make me sign my testimony without reading it, but I declined to sign till I was shown all that had been written, and then with great difficulty, so weak was I, I signed my name. This false testimony was part of a plan of escape. In spite of constant watching, solitary confinement and stone walls, I had word from my friends, and my escape in all its details was planned before I had left the prison.

After my examination I was taken back to the infirmary, and as it was supposed that I was going to aid our paternal government by betraying my friends I was fed on the best of fare. Roasted fowls and good wine came to my table instead of sour soup and black bread. I kept up an exhibition of sickness as long as possible in order to receive the life-giving regimen, but at the end of three weeks I was unable to sham any longer, and was pronounced well enough to move. Since my examination I had got back my own clothes, and it was with them, without chains, that I was put in a covered drosky and taken to the railroad station.

A squad of cavalry surrounded the vehicle. There was a gendarme on the driver's seat beside the "isvoshchik" and two with me inside. The station was cleared of people, and a crowd collected on the outside, believing that I had attempted to assassinate the czar. Through a double file of gendarmes I was conducted to a special car on the express train. People in the crowd threw me cigarettes, but most of these were kept by my guards. At last the train started and we were fairly on our way, the guards to Odessa and I to freedom.

The train started, and in five minutes my three gendarmes were sound asleep and snoring. The waiter had been bribed and my three gendarmes had taken a pretty substantial dose of laudanum. Once assured that they were asleep, I made my way through the little corridor to the rear of the car. I have said that I was in my own clothes and without chains, and watching as well as I could in the dusk jumped at last into what looked like a soft ditch. It was soft, very soft. I went into the mud up to my neck. However, I was not hurt, and in this I was more fortunate than my friend, who also leaped from the train. He sprained his ankle badly. To cover his tracks he had bought a ticket half way to Odessa and had bribed the conductor to let him ride further, a practice common enough in Russia. When, therefore, the police tried to ascertain if any of the passengers who had bought tickets for Odessa had left the train before reaching that place there was no missing ticket and no Odessa passenger to be accounted for. Making for the woods, we struggled for the first little town and there hired a "kibitka" and went straight to Odessa, as the place of all others where we were the least likely to be looked for.

My poor companion had but $37, an amount barely enough to take us to Odessa; and so, though forged passports had been provided for us, I was obliged to wait in Odessa till remittances arrived from some friends. In Russia there is a sort of Free Masonry among the students, so I was at once welcomed among the friends of my friend, and of course immediately assumed a disguise that I might not be recognized, for within a day or two all the region along the line of the railroad on which I had traveled was placarded with offers of a reward of 2000 rubles for information that would lead to my capture. At that time the unfortunate Jews in Odessa were undergoing that strange persecution that attracted the attention of the civilized world. Mobs formed in the streets, largely of students. I saw a Cossack strike with his riding whip a student who was protecting some Jews, and I fired a revolver at him. A mounted officer, whom I afterward discovered to be the general in charge of the garrison, a coward who sends people to Siberia only to obtain the title of a governor of the state, saw me fire the shot and rode his horse at me. Then I remembered what in my excitement I had forgotten, that I had about me the names of people who would give me assistance, and considerable correspondence that would insure the arrest of some of my friends. I ran like a hare down the street but four feet are better than two, and, as the fleet horse overtook me, scarcely knowing what I was about, I leaped to one side and levelled a blow at my pursuer. My heavy student's staff fell with a thud on the general's illustrious leg, and at that appropriate moment his horse slipped and fell. I did not wait to see his fate, but knowing that now death within twenty-four hours awaited me, I again took to my heels, and dodging and doubling, escaped my pursuers, and at last gained the open country and the woods, where I struggled on till I fairly fell from exhaustion. I passed the night in the open air where I fell and awoke in the morning racked in every joint by pain and stiffness. I hobbled along with my back to the rising sun till I saw smoke issuing from a cabin. * * * After many thrilling adventures I was captured again, and after six months' further imprisonment, no proof of any conspiracy or Nihilistic knowledge being found, they read me a pardon from the czar. But what kind of a pardon? I was sentenced to lifelong banishment from all Russian cities, to live in a small town called Pontevez, in the government of Kovno, to be there under constant police surveillance. If the police demanded that I report to them every half hour during the day I was obliged to do it. All my political and civil and nearly all my natural rights, my entire property, or rather that which I should have inherited, had been confiscated. I had no redress for any injury done to me, I was not allowed to hold communication with any one except in the presence of a gendarme or police official. You cannot conceive all the horrors of such a life. And yet my sentence was a light one in comparison with my brother's. His fate and my own killed our father with grief. If I had been eighteen when arrested nothing could have saved me from the terrors of Siberia.

This was the mercy of Alexander III, the personal friend of Colonel de Arnaud, of Washington, who claims that the Russian czar is liberal minded. I stayed in his liberal hotel for nearly eighteen months, so I know how good and noble he is—when he sleeps in the arms of Bacchus to forget the terrors of his victims.

A RIPENING PLUM.

Ready to Fall Into Portland's Lap on Plucking.

THE SITUATION ON THE SOUND

What a Citizen Saw on His Travels—A Syndicate of Portland People Will Develop the San de Fuca Ship Canal.

"What did I see on the Sound that was new?" said Mr. W. A. Bantz, who returned to this city yesterday. "Why, I saw so much that was new and surprising that I fear my reputation for truth and veracity would be badly bent, if not broken, were a recital attempted. Everywhere wonderful activity is displayed. Cars, steamboats and hotels are crowded to fullest capacity. At Tacoma the big elegant new theater, through which I was kindly shown by Manager Hanna, and the extensive improvements being made by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company at the head of the bay were the most striking features. The Tacoma electric railway with its odd-looking, bark-hued cars appears to be working finely and should not be overlooked. At Seattle one appears to be in a magic city, the immense new brick blocks that have been erected since the fire appearing in strange contrast with the fire tents still occupied by merchants and others who have not yet been provided with more substantial quarters. The impression received by comparison being, that here the dwellings of the majority of a race of dwarfs must have been transformed in a twinkling into the habitations of giants, a few only of the dwarfed superstructures being left, as samples, as it were.

I did not get over to Port Townsend, but learned that spring business in all lines was opening with great promise of activity. At Whatcom and Sehome (practically one city) new lumber is being worked up at a rate that indicates a greater demand for business houses and dwellings than has existed in either for a long time before. The pushing of the Cornwall railroad toward the British line—it is now out to the Nooksack river—and Nelson Bennett's determination now being carried out to extend the Fairhaven & Northern along the Bellingham, Sehome and Whatcom water frontage, and thence to a connection with the Canadian Pacific, is the apparent enlivening cause. At Fairhaven is seen, perhaps, the best illustration of the newer type of civilization now prevailing on the Sound. Why the oldest inhabitant can scarcely have been in Fairhaven a year, and yet here are substantial business houses and dwellings, banks and hotels, and excellent electric light system, active street improvements and a general donning of metropolitan airs. It's an interesting type of modern disposition, too—a sort of crowding into five years that to which our more leisurely ancestors dedicated half a century. Lots of people do not understand it either, and are consequently "left." Entering these new towns they stand aghast at real estate prices quoted—do not buy—and three or four months later regret their cowardice, or whatever they may choose to term it, sometimes one hundred and oftener several hundred per cent. At Anacortes and DesMoines I saw excellent samples of these ready made towns. Their history to date is briefly told. One day a timbered tract of land, a water front, a combination of active determined capital and men; next day a forest slain, tents, dwellings and substantial business houses reared, and a new, prosperous link welded into the industrial chain. These magic changes are but the natural fruits of the immense immigration pouring into the Pacific Northwest, and the reason why was forcibly stated by an acquaintance gained on my trip. "Why," said he, "we fellows come out here from the older sections and see what you pioneers in Portland, Seattle and Tacoma have done. You started in with simply favorable natural conditions and determination, and the resultant real estate values have made you rich. We bring more or less money with us. We see apparently equally as good natural advantages undeveloped. Profiting by your experience we lay hold of them vigorously, taking advantage of the newer and rapidly increasing transportation facilities, and we expect, in precisely the same channels but in much less time, to arrive at a 'common point' with you, namely—through increased real estate values—rich." A great many people from Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Spokane and Ellensburgh are investing in these new localities on the Sound. Their operations appear to be based upon the principle that the sort of realty to deal in is that which meets the popular demand. A Portland man said to me: "If I make $100,000 from my Puget sound investments the wealth of Portland will be swelled to just that amount, for there is my home." Of course real estate values are apt, in these localities, to run far ahead of the actual developments, but in bona fide propositions these speedily follow. My special errand on the Sound was to look into the real merits of a proposed townsite undertaking on Whidby island. I fell in love at sight with everything connected save the name, San de Fuca. The latter, however, is not inappropriate, the new town being located immediately at the inner entrance of the straits of Juan de Fuca. Taking simply its local conditions into account, I consider San de Fuca the most meritorious proposition on the Sound. It is in the center of the greatest and richest agricultural area of Western Washington. Island county exports more staple agricultural products, fruits, etc., by the regular lower Sound lines of steamboats than do all the other contributing localities, and San de Fuca will be the county seat. The surrounding scenic beauty is simply indescribable in its diversity and scope, while the fishing, shooting, bathing, boating and driving facilities are immense. San de Fuca will speedily become a most popular pleasure resort. The climatic conditions are most healthful and delightful. A beautiful land-locked harbor, some six square miles in extent, lies at its feet. Every square yard of this body of water affords excellent anchorage, and there are no mud flats. Situated midway between the upper and lower Sound cities and industrial points, the farmer, merchant and manufacturer can ship or receive his consignments each way daily with the cheapest of freights. Excellent brick clay and an inexhaustible timber supply is available, and great industries in these lines will be quickly developed. As a result, then, simply of the utilization of these local features, I predict for San de Fuca a brilliant, prosperous future. There are, in addition, much more important capabilities. A railroad, easily constructed to the mainland, crossing via Big and Little Hope islands to La Conner, or via Deception pass to Fidalgo, will render rich parallel resources, not easily accessible by water, tributary to San de Fuca. Better still, construction of this short railroad will permit the transfer on Whidby island of all the heavy rail and ocean freights, for at San de Fuca scarcely a mile of land separates the waters of Puget sound from the inner entrance of the straits. A canal, certainly within the possibilities of modern engineering and to the ordinary observer perfectly easy of construction, across this narrow neck of land will make San de Fuca a most noted point. I do not presume to say that this canal is practicable, but I believe it is, and a strong syndicate of Portland people controlling some four miles of water front at San de Fuca, will unquestionably thoroughly develop not only the canal but every other capability of that point."

As to his opinions touching Portland as a result of his trip Mr. Bantz stated that he returned filled chock-a-block with the impression that the entire new Pacific Northwest was a ripening plum ready to fall into the great metropolitan net provided 'tis spread, and the acquirements by her citizens of leading interests in the various new developments would indirectly at least contribute largely to that result.

DISINFECTANTS.

What Kind to Use, and How and When to Use Them.

[J. H. Kellogg, M. D., in Christian Union.]

The best means to disinfect a room which has been occupied by a consumptive or a person suffering from any infectious disease is to burn sulphur in the room. To do this, take a dish-pan and place a flat plate in the bottom of it, and on this set a kettle containing the proper amount of sulphur mixture—equal quantities of powdered sulphur and charcoal. Fill the pan with water so that it will come half way up on the kettle. Then turn alcohol or benzine on the mixture, ignite and get out of the room as speedily as possible. Alcohol is much the best to use, and two or three ounces will be sufficient for several pounds of sulphur. Let the room remain closed for twenty-four hours and then thoroughly cleansed, the furniture washed with disinfectant solution, the walls newly calcimined or papered, and the woodwork covered with fresh paint.

The room should be prepared previously by having every crack about doors and windows tightly pasted or stopped up. The object of using water is that the heat of the kettle will cause evaporation and send moisture out into the room; for, the spores being very tenacious of life, dry sulphur fumes are not sufficient to kill them all. In the dry state the product is simply oxide of sulphur, but when water is added we have sulphurous acid, which is powerful enough to kill the spores as well as the germs.

It is of the utmost importance that a sufficient quantity of the sulphr be used to make the work effective. I have seen people attempt to disinfect a large room with a handful of sulphur barely sufficient to disinfect a dry goods box. It amounts to nothing whatever. Ascertain the size of the room, and burn three pounds of sulphur for every 1000 cubic feet of air. Take, for instance, a room which is 12x15 feet floor measurement and ten feet high, which gives a cubical contents of 1800 cubic feet. This is so nearly 2000 that it would be best to take six pounds of sulphur to disinfect it.

Some people distribute a handful of chloride of lime about, which gives a sanitary smell, but is really of no value. Many strange notions as to disinfection prevail, and all sorts of valueless recommendations are going the rounds of the papers. For instance, I called upon a patient once and found a tub of water under the bed, and it was explained to me that this was for the purpose of absorbing germs. Others will set powdered charcoal around on trays, or a little chloride of lime on a saucer. Some people seem to imagine that the germs are going to hunt up the disinfectant and destroy themselves. A strong solution of copperas will kill all the germs it touches, but it will not kill the spores or seeds of the germs.

Half a pound of chloride of lime to a gallon of water makes a good disinfectant to destroy germs in excreta, provided the chloride of lime is good, but the most of it is poor, having lost its disinfectant properties.

Another excellent disinfectant is corrosive sublimate, but it is too dangerous for common use unless kept under lock and key. It is best used in connection with permanganate of potash, one drachm of each to a gallon of water. This will make a reddish or purplish solution, and, if marked poison and handled with care, will be dangerous chiefly to germs. This solution is equal to about one part in 1000 of each; the corrosive sublimate will destroy the germs, and the premanganate of potash will destroy the odors, as well as furnish coloring matter. A solution of corrosive sublimate alone is colorless, odorless, and nearly tasteless, which fact greatly increases the risk of using it. About one part in 20,000 is sufficient to kill germs, but to disinfect excreta it is necessary to use a strong solution, and the bulk of the disinfectant should be equal to that of the excreta.

For disinfecting the clothing from the bed and the patient, soak for four hours either in a solution of corrosive sublimate or the same length of time in a 2 per cent. solution of carbolic acid. The latter is to be preferred for general purposes, for it will not affect the texture, while corrosive sublimate will shrink flannel clothing and make it harsh. If the disease be diphtheria, scarlet fever or the like, every article of clothing or upholstery which will not wash must be burned, and every book and paper must be burned.

A solution of corrosive sublimate may be used to disinfect a room by washing the walls and floor in it, but the permanganate of potash must be left out from this as well as the solution for disinfecting clothing, for it will stain. To set any of these things in a room does no good; a disinfectant must be distributed to be available.

No Jewelry for Men.

New York Sun.

The head of one of the largest firms of jewelers in New York remarked the other day that the fashion of men wearing jewelry, which prevailed for a time, was brief and feeble.

"Anybody who now wants jewelry especially designed for men," he said, "can get great quantities of it at any of the big establishments at a very low cost. Jewelry for gentlemen has been steadily cheapened month after month, in the hope of getting rid of it, but there seems to be no combatting the fashion, and the tendency of things now is for men to wear little or no jewelry at all. It was thought when the big cravats came in vogue again that there would be a great demand for big scarf pins, and a great many of them were put on the market; but the swells who wear the biggest scarfs wear the smallest pins, and no man of position in the social or financial world thinks of wearing diamond collar buttons, diamond finger rings, or any of the multifarious articles of personal adornment that were formerly so popular. Even the manufacture of jewelry for men, which was at one time a very remunerative branch of the business, has begun to fall off wonderfully. Men of any pretentions to fashion do not wear watch chains. They either carry a cheap watch loose in their pocket or have it attached to a cheap silver key ring chain, which is buttoned onto the side of the trousers.

"The severity of fashion regarding jewelry is undoubtedly due to the abuse of the ring craze five or six years ago. A number of wealthy club men took up the fashion of wearing two or three rings, many of them decorated with diamonds, rubies and sapphires, and then the cheap dudes all over town began to imitate them. Every errand boy wore a silver or gold or gold washed ring twisted around his finger four or five times, and the whole fashion reached such gaudy proportions that within less than a year men had given up jewelry wearing entirely. Occasionally a cad will be seen about town who is all blazing with diamonds or gaudy pins, but a gentleman is now distinguished by an entire absence of jewelry of every kind. It is a mighty bad thing for our business, too."

How a Woman Made Money.

Ladies' Home Journal.

A Washington lady, foreseeing the loss of her income, trimmed her sails to the threatening breeze. She carefully considered her capabilities, and early in the spring decided to put her energies into the making of preserves, pickles and jellies. She knew ladies of social prominence, and secured their names as references. She had circulars printed, which she sent to people likely to respond with orders, and she put an advertisement in a few newspapers. She received enough orders to guarantee her enterprise, but presuming on further sales, she made about thirty gallons of pickles of various kinds, and 350 glasses of jelley and jars of fruit. As an experiment to test their popularity, she made a dozen cans of brandied peaches, spiced currants and plums, sweet pickled melons, stuffed mangoes, ketchup and chow-chow. She spared no pains, attended personally to the marketing, procured the best fruit as fresh as possible before it "lost the taste of the sun," and made everything with exquisite neatness. She put her jellies in pretty moulds, and even lettered the labels attractively. Her energy and courage brought a success that warrants her enlarging the business.

AN ODD KIND OF TELESCOPE.

To See What Is Going on in the Water—How to Construct One.

No doubt a good many of our boys and girls are ignorant of the fact, says the New York World, that they can, with very little trouble, and at almost no expense, construct an instrument with which they can plainly see what is going on under the water over which they sail their boats. The very idea of such a thing is attractive, and we propose to tell you how it can be done.

The water telescope may be made of wood or of tin, whichever you prefer, and we will describe both. The tin is better, because it is lighter and more easily handled. Its manufacture is very simple. Get a tinsmith to make for you a funnel-shaped tin horn about three feet long. It should be eight or ten inches in diameter at the bottom, and broad enough at the top for both eyes to look into. Into the bottom put a piece of glass, cut to fit, and make it perfectly water-tight. Leave the top open. The inside should be painted black to prevent the reflection of the light upon the surface of the tin. Around the outside of the bottom solder on several sinkers to offset the buoyancy of the air in the water-tight horn and make it easier to submerge. If it is not convenient to get a round piece of glass, have the large end made square and use square glass. That's all there is of it, and when you sink the instrument down into the water and put your eyes to the small end, you will be perfectly astonished at the plainness with which you will see all kinds of fish and water animals swimming around in a state of nature.

A wooden water telescope is made of a long, square, wooden box, say ten inches square at the large and four or five inches square at the other end. Make all the seams water-tight by means of putty and paint. Put a piece of glass in the large end and leave the small end open to look into, as you do with the tin instrument.

A great many of you go on boating and picnic parties, and you can imagine how much such a contrivance would add to your amusement and pleasure, to say nothing of the instruction derived from studying the inhabitants of the water at home.

Using the principle of a water telescope, a well-known naturalist had a boat made with a glass in the bottom, through which he could see every movement of thousands of fish as they swam along through the clear water. Fishermen in Norway use the water telescope at their work with the best results, sometimes discovering a new kind of fish that might otherwise have escaped the notice.

CONCERNING THE WALTZ.

Origin and History of the Favorite Dance of the Civilized World.

The generally accepted story is that the waltz comes from Germany, but a little investigation will show that this statement is open to discussion. As far back as the twelfth century the waltz was known in Provence, but under the name of the volta, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The song which accompanied it was called a ballada. Under Louis VII. it was brought from Provence to Paris and was the fashion during the whole of the sixteenth century, especially in the luxurious court of the Valois.

The Germans adopted it, and the Provencal volta became the German waltz. The years passed, and then in or about 1790 the waltz once more crossed the Rhine and was introduced into France. From France it was taken to England, thence it spread to this country, and soon became the favorite dance of the civilized world.

Taking all the various accounts into consideration, it is very evident that there is a decided break in the imaginary genealogy of the balance of evidence being in favor of the conclusion that the waltz which first made its public appearance in Vienna in 1790 is the true parent of the present dance, and that it was then a modification of a Bohemian country dance, which, in its original form, is still to be found as part of the exercises of that country.

BRIDESMAIDS.

Their Old-time Duties—They All Want to Get Married.

Instead of being only so many graceful ornaments at the marriage ceremony, as nowadays, the bridesmaids in olden times had various duties assigned to them, says the New York Ledger. One of their principal tasks was dressing the bride on the wedding morning. At a wedding, too, where it was arranged that the bride should be followed by a numerous train of her lady friends, it was the first bridesmaid's duty to play the part of a drill-mistress, "sizing" them so that "no pair in the procession were followed by a taller couple." She was also expected to see that each bridesmaid was not only duly provided with a sprig of rosemary, or a floral posy pinned to the breast folds of her dress, but had a symbolical chaplet in her hand.

In many parts of Germany it is still customary for the bridesmaids to bring the myrtle wreath, which they had subscribed together to purchase on the nuptial eve, to the house of the bride, and to remove it from her head at the close of the wedding day. After this has been done the bride is blindfolded, and, the myrtle wreath being put into her hand, she tries to put it on the head of one of the bridesmaids as they dance around her; for, in accordance with an old belief, whoever she crowns is sure to be married within a year from that date. As may be imagined, this ceremony is the source of no small excitement, each bridesmaid being naturally anxious to follow the example of the bride and get married within a year.

Choice of a Wife.

New York Telegraph.

A celebrated writer, in advising respecting the choice of a wife, expresses himself thus: "Always bear this in mind; that, if she is not frugal, she is not what is called a good manager. If she does not pride herself on her knowledge of family affairs and laying out her money to the best advantage, let her be ever so sweet-tempered, gracefully made, or elegantly accomplished, she is no wife for a man who has to make his way in the world. All those otherwise amiable talents will but open just so many roads to ruin.

WHERE THEY WERE BORN.

Men of Foreign Birth Who Are Now Representatives in Congress.

Four members of the present congress were born in Scotland, four in Ireland, two in England, one in Sweden, one in Germany, and one in Canada, making in all thirteen foreign born—two in the senate and eleven in the house. These are the foreign-born statesmen now enjoying the right of representative American citizens in the Fifty-first congress: Senator Beck, of Kentucky, born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, in 1822; Senator Pasco, of Florida, born in London, England, 1834; Congressman John M. Clancy, Fourth New York district, born in Ireland, 1837; John Quinn, Eleventh New York district, born in Ireland, 1839; John M. Farquhar, Thirty-second New York district, born in Ayrshire, Scotland, 1832; John M. Wiley, Thirty-third New York district, born in Ireland, 1846; William G. Laidlaw, Thirty-fourth New York district, born at Jedburg, Scotland, 1840; Herman Lehlbach, Sixth New Jersey district, born in Baden, Germany, 1845; William McAdoo, Seventh New Jersey district, born in Ireland, 1853; D. B. Henderson, Third Iowa district, born at Old Deer, Scotland, 1840; John Lind, Second Minnesota district, born in Sweden 1854; W. W. Grout, Second Vermont district, born at Compton, Quebec, 1836; and Charles F. Crisp, Third Georgia district, born at Sheffield, England, 1845, while his parents, residents of Georgia, were there on a visit. In the last congress there were nineteen foreign-born statesmen—two in the senate, Messrs. Beck and Pasco, and seventeen in the house, Messrs. Crisp, Henderson, Lehlbach, McAdoo, Farquhar, Laidlaw and Grout, and beside them these, who dropped out, not being re-elected: Messrs. Knute Nelson, of Minnesota, a Norwegian; Romeis, of Ohio, and Morse, of Massachusetts, Bavarians; Guenther, of Wisconsin, a Prussian; Bourke Cochran and T. J. Campbell, of New York, Patrick A. Collins, of Massachusetts, and O'Neill, of Missouri, all natives of Ireland, and West, of New York, a native of England.

Steam Navigation on the Nile.

Scientific American.

A new Egyptian association has been formed, styled the Thewfikieh Company, who are the owners of a number of steamers which have been specially fitted for a regular service of passengers desiring to ascend the river from Cairo to the first cataract, visiting the antiquities on the banks. The formation of this company has been sanctioned by a decree of the khedive, who has just inaugurated the operations by a personal visit on board the steamer El Khedevie. The saloon, ladies' boudoir, smoking room, and all parts of the steamer are illuminated by eighty electric lights of a total power of 2500 candles, and the decorations of the apartments are of the most elegant and luxurious character.

The Northern Pacific are now selling first-class limited tickets through to Chicago for $67; second-class, $39. These are the lowest rates now in effect.

What You Need

An Alterative Medicine, don't forget that everything depends on the kind used. Ask for Ayer's Sarsaparilla and take no other. For over forty years this preparation has had the endorsement of leading physicians and druggists, and it has achieved a success unparalleled in the history of proprietary medicines.

"For a rash, from which I had suffered some months, my father, an M. D., recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It effected a cure. I am still taking this medicine, as I find it to be a most powerful blood-purifier."—J. E. Cocke, Denton, Texas.

"C. H. Hut, Druggist, Evansville, Ind., writes: "I have been selling Ayer's Sarsaparilla for many years. It maintains its popularity, while many other preparations, formerly as well known, have long been forgotten."

"I have always recommended Ayer's Sarsaparilla as superior to any other preparation for purifying the blood."—C. B. Kuykendall, M. D., Pomeroy, W.T.

SAD EYED WOMEN.

Why so Many Ladies are Miserable Clearly Explained—Some Stirring Remarks by One Who Knows.

"I feel sad every time I see a woman." The above remark was made to the writer by one of the oldest and most prominent physicians in New York.

"Is it possible that you are a woman hater, Doctor?"

"Not at all but I have seen so much suffering, so many women who are miserable, that I cannot help feeling sorry for them all. How many ladies do you know that are perfectly well and healthy? How many enjoy life as they should? Is this not enough to make one feel sorrowful?

"There must be a cause for all this Doctor."

"There is. Women are weak and their troubles largely arise from weaknesses. When a woman is weak she requires strength. Her body, her mind and all her functions must be put in a healthy condition, or she cannot secure strength. Nothing does this so easily and surely as pure spirits taken in moderation, either before meals or between meals. I know scores of ladies that are kept in perfect health, strength and brilliancy, by the judicious use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey. Many of these ladies are wives of ministers and professors, and most of them are temperance women. They realize that Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey furnishes the best and only positive help, and they are intelligent enough to profit by such knowledge. I know whereof I speak and I speak as a temperance man. The best temperance people of to-day are the ones who use pure spirits in moderation and find that strength, vigor, color and brightness are the results, rather than weakness, sallowness and a loss of interest in everything in life."

I was much impressed with the remarks of the Doctor and believing their importance, reproduce them entire.

FROM CORVALLIS.

Citizens Jubilant Over the Extension of the Southern Pacific to Junction.

Corvallis, Or., March 18.—[Special Correspondence.]—The letter received by the from Manager Koehler stating that advertised for in THE OREGONIAN the extension of the Southern Pacific from Corvallis, created great enthusiasm among our citizens. With through between Portland and San Francisco trade will develop with wonderful

The contract for the steel rails for the Corvallis street railway will be let to-day. Ties have been ordered to be on the April 15 and it is expected to the first mile in operation by the end of May.

The city has purchased three lots on Fourth street on which to erect substantial buildings for the city officers and fire department.

The council has decided to have the streets graded and a system of surface drainage established before the approach of warm weather.

The Electric Light Company have commenced putting in the additional lights or ordered and all parts of the city are now splendidly lighted.

As the result of an extended correspondence had by the Board of Trade with an Eastern company, their superintendent will arrive shortly to arrange for moving their woolen mill plant to this city.

The wooden buildings on the east side of Main street are being torn down to make room for a handsome brick block.

The opera house is being repaired and new scenery painted by Mr Moses, who did the work for the Marquam Grand. When the doors are opened, in May it will be one of the neatest opera houses in the state.

A meeting of the incorporators of the Corvallis Brownsville & Eastern railroad is called to take steps to have a permanent survey of the road made and to consider matters pertaining to the building of the same.

POLK COUNTY NEWS.

Developing the Lumber Interests in the Foothills—Dallas Notes.

Dallas, Or., March 19.—[Special Correspondence.]—The development of the lumber industry of this county is assured. A motor line or steam tramway will be built from Dallas, along the La Creole, into the body of timber in the Coast range. The route has been reviewed, and is practicable. C O Hobart, an experienced lumberman, who came here last summer will put in a mill at Dallas costing about $17,000, the cutting capacity to be about 30 000 feet per day. H. Van Meter M M Ellis, W C. Brown and others conjointly with Mr Hobart, will put in the tramway, costing $12 000. Dallas expects more from the establishment and consequent growth of this industry than from any other undertaking her citizens could engage in.

The city council are considering the enlarging of the stage of the city hall found deficient in comfort and convenience. Also a proposition from Mr Olsen, for putting in new scenery.

There is still about two feet of snow in the mountains. The recent rains have raised the small streams to a considerable extent, but there is no danger apprehended of another flood.

A large amount of lumber is being shipped to town, as it cannot be had from Polk county mills. The building boom is going ahead and several new additions to the town are projected.

Another dynamo will be added to the electric plant, as the present one cannot meet the increasing demands. The town is now well lighted in all directions.

J Conroy has bought of W W Miller ten acres of land adjoining East Dallas, on which he will start a brickyard.

SHOT HIMSELF BY MISTAKE.

A Would-Be Murderer Is Seriously Wounded by His Own Revolver.

Almira, Wash., March 13.—[Special Correspondence.]—On the evening of the 12th James Bradley, an ex-convict, drew a revolver on Michael Frado, a saloonkeeper of Wilbur. The revolver snapped three times in succession, and Frado escaped. The next morning Bradley, still thirsting for revenge, repaired to the depot, from which Frado was about to depart for Wilbur. By some accident the revolver was discharged, hitting Bradley in the bowels and lodging with a downward course in the knee. The cause was a woman, an ex-wife of Bradley, who is now living with Frado as his mistress. The wounded man was taken to the hospital at Spokane Falls.

Pacific Coast Board of Commerce.

San Francisco, March 19.—The Pacific coast board of commerce composed of delegates from various commercial organizations in California, Oregon and Washington, met here to-day. President Samuel Collyer, of Tacoma, presided. The first subject for discussion was the best method of enlarging the organization. It was decided that an address be prepared and sent to all local commercial bodies on the coast, asking them to express an opinion on the various subjects which would be presented to them. A resolution was adopted yesterday against repeal of the Chinese exclusion act, and asking for such additional legislation as will effectually prevent Chinese immigration. The bill recently introduced in Congress by Representative Morrow on the subject of Chinese exclusion was endorsed. A resolution was adopted asking local commercial organizations to express an opinion on the following subjects and report at the annual meeting in September next. Best methods of extending the scope of the organization, expediency of subsidizing shipping; legislation in regard to silver coinage, national bankruptcy law, Pacific coast river and harbor improvements and harbor defenses, anti-Chinese legislation, interstate commerce, subsidizing oceanic cable lines, Pacific coast exhibit at the World's Fair. Adjourned.

Ex-Collector Hager is Dead.

San Francisco, March 19.—Judge John S Hager ex-collector of the port of San Francisco died at his home in this city this morning. His death was sudden and is supposed to have been caused by paralysis of the heart. Last evening he entertained a number of friends at his home, and soon after retiring was stricken with a paralytic fit and died about 4 o'clock this morning.

Rails for the Corvallis Street Road.

Corvallis, March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—The contract for furnishing steel rails for the first mile of the Corvallis street railway was to-day let through the Portland agency of Eastern mills. It is expected that cars will be running in May.

Sickness at Gervais.

Gervais, Or., March 19.—[Special Telegram.]—Mrs S W R. Jones is lying very sick at her home here.

Coughs and colds kept off by taking Simmons Liver Regulator to regulate the system.

GRAYS HARBOR

[illegible]

The Future Terminus of the Hunt System of Railroads and the Future Point for Shipping the Coal and Wheat of Washington.

D. C. JOHNSON & CO. HAVE

Placed on the Market the First Syndicate Addition to Grays Harbor.

This addition comprises 40 acres joining the Grays Harbor Company's Holdings on the west. It is distant from Broadway and Summit avenue, the principal streets of Grays Harbor and from the Postoffice, less than one-quarter mile. It lies comparatively level and is considered by far the choicest property near the new city, and is sure to bring large profits to the investor. Lots will be sold without reserve on the following terms: One-third cash, balance six and 12 months. All lots in this addition are cleared of timber and at a slight expense are ready for building. The recent contract with G. W. Hunt of Walla Walla, which is now recorded, is an assurance to the outside public that Grays Harbor will be the coal and wheat shipping point of Washington. Plats can be seen at our office at Grays Harbor. For further information address

Lots 50x140 and 25x140. Terms, one-third cash, balance one and two years at 8 per cent interest.
Only a portion of the addition will be sold, the company reserving absolutely one-half of the lots.
This addition adjoins the original plat on the east and north and is all very desirable property.

RAIL CONNECTION

The Grays Harbor Company is now in position to positively assure the public of rail connection with the outside world in the near future, a contract having recently been entered into with Mr. G. W. Hunt, one of the most prominent railroad builders in the West to build from Grays Harbor to some point on the Northern Pacific.

Lots will be sold and plats can be seen only at the company's office in Grays Harbor.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take steamer Multnomah, leaving Tacoma at 7 A. M. daily, making close connections at Kamilche and Montesano, by rail and steamer, for Hoquiam and Grays Harbor, arriving at 5 P. M. From Portland take steamer Alliance, leaving weekly. No staging. Less than a day's journey.

WOODSTOCK

In less than two months the electric motor now under construction will be whirling hundreds of our people to this beautiful suburb. As its beauties are seen and made known they will be appreciated, and those who make their selections and complete their purchases before that time will reap rich reward. In the last two and one-half months of the most dismal weather ever experienced in Oregon we have sold over $45,000 worth of this property, mostly to Portland people. No lots less than 100x100 feet. Present prices from $250 to $400 each. Costs nothing to inspect, and if not satisfied you will not be importuned to buy.

TELFER & STEARNS REAL ESTATE CO.,

33 STARK STREET.

LOTS $200 EACH. [illegible] A portion of this beautiful tract has been subdivided into full sized lots, 50x100 feet. LOTS $200 EACH.

Parties not wishing to buy acre tracts can now get any number of lots they want at a price as cheap as acre property is selling for in less desirable localities.

This property is on the direct line between Portland, Oswego and Oregon City, the direction in which the most valuable and permanent improvements will be made in the next few years. The location is high, commanding a magnificent view, and pure water can be had anywhere at a depth of about thirty feet.

The proposed extension of the Second Street Electric Motor Line will go through the property and the P. & W. V. R R passes through it now.

At the price these lots are being offered they are likely to double in value within six months. The price for the next sixty days is $200 and upwards each, on easy terms, to suit all. Lithographic plats will be ready in a few days. Meantime investors had better call and make selections.

PORT TOWNSEND, WASH.

[illegible] REASONS.

Reasons Why Port Townsend Is Destined to be a City Of Great Importance!

REASON 1: It has the best harbor of Puget Sound, from Cape Flattery to Olympia, having the most convenient anchorage over the greatest area, from 5 to 15 fathoms deep, with the best holding ground. There are no bars, shoals, rocks or hidden dangers of any kind throughout the entire bay, which is land locked and well sheltered from the stormy winds and from the heavy ocean swell.

REASON 2: Ease of approach from the ocean. A sailing vessel can run direct from the ocean to the anchorage in Port Townsend Bay, with a westerly wind, or beat up to her anchorage with an easterly wind, the Straits of Fuca being over 12 miles wide, while above Port Townsend to any of the cities the navigation is more intricate, requiring the constant use of tugs. Steamers can run the distance from the ocean to Port Townsend during the densest fogs by aid of their compass alone, there being no hidden danger to apprehend.

REASON 3: It is the port of entry of Puget Sound, and its geographical position is such that it will afford greater facilities to commerce over a greater extent of country than any one position on Puget Sound.

REASON 4: It is at the entrance to Admiralty Inlet and within the lines of the proposed military works for the defense of Puget Sound, and is where the naval squadron will have a rendezvous, and where the government will build a dry dock for repairs, and a naval station for supplies for our naval vessels and the merchant marine.

REASON 5: It will become the great wheat shipping point on the Pacific Coast. It has been ascertained that from the junction of the Snake and Columbia rivers to Port Townsend there is a fall of about 400 feet, and that it is practically very nearly a level grade and that one engine can haul 25 loaded cars to Port Townsend, while it takes two decapod engines to haul 14 loaded cars through the tunnel to Tacoma. The peninsula which lies between Port Townsend and Port Discovery harbors, presents on both these harbors a greater extent of water front than any other position on Puget Sound, both of which can be utilized by one line of railroad, thus offering greater facilities for handling vast quantities of wheat than can be found elsewhere in the whole country.

REASON 6: It will be the headquarters and great point of transit of all the whaling fleet, which can here ship all their oil and bone to Eastern markets and save 700 miles of ocean travel, which they now have to take to transport these products to San Francisco.

REASON 7: It will be the headquarters of the fishing business. The Union Pacific Railroad Co. stated to the senate committee on relations with Canada who were here in 1889, that they intend putting in refrigerator cars to take fresh fish through on the long haul at greatly reduced rates, and will here ship all the salmon pack, as well as other fish products destined for the interior and Eastern markets.

REASON 8: It is the point of departure for all passengers and freight to British Columbia and Alaska, and its unrivaled scenery makes it the admiration of all tourists who have ever visited Puget Sound.

REASON 9: It is the location of the smelting works of Irondale, on Port Townsend Bay, where the best charcoal iron known in the world is produced. A plant will be put up at these works by the company to manufacture steel plates for boilers and for building vessels, steel rails and all iron material required for railroad construction and every kind of iron for blacksmith use.

REASON 10: Port Townsend, by its geographical position, is intimately and directly connected with Portland, being due north, as can be seen on any map. The Willamette meridian, which commences in Portland as its initial point, terminates in Port Townsend bay, between Point Hudson and Marrowstone Point. The Port Townsend Southern railroad will soon connect the two cities, and Port Townsend will become in fact one of Portland's most important shipping points.

REASON 11: Because on the peninsula between Port Townsend and Port Discovery bays will be built within the very near future the most important city on the Pacific Coast, a city that will be fostered and developed by the Union Pacific railroad, which will here have its grand western terminus, from whence will proceed lines of great ocean steamships, which will bring in the commerce of Asia and China and the south seas.

HOW POTHEEN IS MADE.

A Visit by Night to the Moonshiners of Connemara.

GUARDED BY MORASSES AND CRAGS

From Barley Sack to Cask—The Man Who Makes The Intoxicating Fluid—How It Tastes and All About It.

A graphic description of potheen making near Connemara, Ireland, is given by a correspondent of the New York Sun: The shore rose gently out of the bay. It was such land as can only be found in desolate Galway—rock and bog. Here your foot goes down through a hole filled with black water into still blacker mud. The mud resembles black putty. When the foot comes out there is a sucking sound as if the bog were anxious to retain the shoe. "Millia, murther! are you hurted, sor!" "No, Bartley; only a skinned knee and arms covered with slime up to the elbows." We struggled on. At intervals, out of the gloom, shone that red eye from the still-house like a guiding star. "Moind your shins agin the sthone wall," was Bartley's friendly caution.

"What's that light Bartley?"

"That's a still-house, sor."

Two more acres of morass and crag, an interval of anxious poking of a blackthorn over the uneven ground ahead to find a footing and the still-house was reached. The kindly light came from a hole in the roof of the still-house, which was a cottage deserted by an Irishman who had gone to America. The half rotten door hung on one hinge. It was opened a few inches by a stalwart Gaelic distiller, who could not speak English, and an earnest talk ensued with Bartley, the guide. Apparently satisfied that the expedition was not one of discovery and seizure, the door was thrown open and the party entered.

Coming out of the black gloom of night into a dazzling radiance, the effect at first was blinding. Then slowly the details of the scene were taken in. The picture was a striking one. It was full of lights and shadows. An aroma of alcohol filled the cottage. Two bushels of turf had been turned by the alchemy of fire into coals, which glowed with an exquisite rosy hue. The leaping flames lit up a room 20x30 feet in size. In the further corner lay a pile of hay. The smoke found vent through four holes in the thatched roof.

The fire was built in a rude fireplace of stones. Upon the fireplace rested a round tin vessel, with a concave bottom, about three feet in diameter. This boiler had a capacity of about thirty-five gallons. A wooden tub about the size of an ordinary pail was fitted into the top of the boiler by means of a collar. The joint was made water-tight with oatmeal made into a thick mortar-like paste. A tin pipe, about three feet long, led from the boiler to the worm, which was hidden in a huge wooden tub filled with cold water. From the bottom of this tub projected the end of the worm, and from it ran a tiny stream of a colorless liquor, about as big as a darning needle, into an iron pot, such as is used to cook potatoes in.

Two men and one woman were attending to the still. The woman was carrying turf to feed the fire. She was barefooted. One man owned the liquor, the other owned the distilling apparatus. He was the distiller. He received one quart out of every gallon of the brew for the use of his utensils and his services. The apparatus of the still was made by the local tinker. It was valued at $25. The distiller's time was mainly taken up in plastering up leaks in his still with oatmeal mortar.

The process going on was known as that of "doubling." That is, the whisky had passed through its preparatory stages and was undergoing the final process before it was ready for the cask. The casks, ranging in capacity from five to fifteen gallons, stood around on the floor waiting to be filled. One of them was offered to the visitor in lieu of a chair. The firelight danced in ruddy gleams over the swart face of the distiller as he took a little wineglass, holding about a gill, from a niche in the hearthstone, and held it under the dripping mouth of the worm. The fluid rippled into the glass with a musical jingle. When it was filled to the brim he doffed his hat with a gesture of clumsy courtesy and handed the glass of liquor to the visitor. There was a moment of painful suspense, broken only by the sound of the wind in the thatch. Then an irresolute hand was reached out, weak fingers grasped the glass, that showed no color [illegible] disappeared in its depths, and the potheen [illegible] just as everybody said in unison, "Slanta!" which, being interpreted, means "Good health!"

The effect was electrical. The liquor seared the throat like red-hot iron. It tasted like sulphuric acid and mustard mixed. When Solomon referred to wine as biting like a serpent and stinging like an adder he certainly had potheen in his mind's eye. This draught was what is known in the vocabulary of the Irish moonshiner as "first shot." It was the strongest liquor of the brew and was highly prized in consequence. The natives covet it on account of its supposed medicinal properties, and it is freely used as a remedy for rheumatism. It retails for nearly twice as much as the later distillation.

Looking out into the night from the door of the cottage the lights of five distilleries could be seen within a radius of one mile. The potheen is made under circumstances which would prevent its manufacture entirely were it not for the fact that the distillers are so miserably poor. The localities in Galway and Connemara where it is made have the least natural advantages of any locality in Ireland. The soil is almost entirely bog land, and very little of it can be successfully cultivated. The manufacture of potheen enables the Irishman to earn a few shillings which he could earn in no other way. At best the return is very small. The price ranges from $1 50 to $2 per gallon. Very seldom does a brew turn out more than fifteen gallons. The process is extremely laborious, and involves a large expense of time and money, to say nothing of the danger of detection by the police and excise officers. Indeed, in this locality the time of the police is mainly taken up in hunting for illicit whisky stills. Of course large numbers of the distillers are caught. When a still is captured by the police the apparatus is destroyed and the offenders are fined $30. A man here last week was caught twice in seven days. As he had no money to pay his fine he will be obliged to go to prison for six months. In the meantime his eleven children will starve in the usual commonplace way.

The means resorted to by the distillers to evade the police are novel and ingenious. The various parts of the still are hidden a mile apart. Portions of it are sometimes sunk in the little fresh water lakes which abound in the islands. Other parts are buried in holes in the bog. They are then covered with pieces of sail cloth or tarpaulin and these in turn by sods. A stranger would walk over these places of concealment every day for a century and never suspect what lay beneath his feet, so skillfully are the utensils buried. The police visit the islands every day, carrying with them long iron rods. These they force down into the bogs, and very often discover the machinery sought for. When discovered, the potheen—which is pronounced put-yeen, with the accent on the first syllable—is poured out upon the ground, except what is retained for their own use. The "peelers" are very fond of potheen. These alert defenders of the excise law have even found kegs of potheen hidden in the sand of the seashore, where it is washed by the surf at high water.

The process of making potheen is very crude. It is made almost exclusively of barley [illegible] without corn. [illegible] to make [illegible] the [illegible] is purchased in Galway [illegible] and Connemara [illegible] The [illegible] of [illegible] The grain is [illegible] in small vessels of [illegible] tons freightage capacity, called "hookers." It is always delivered stealthily at night. It is no uncommon thing for a girl of 18 to shoulder one of these 225-pound bags of grain and carry it over bogs and rocks for the distance of a mile without stopping to rest. The bags are then hidden in the bog holes. When ready to begin work the moonshiner spreads his grain on the clay floor of his inner room, about six inches deep, for a period of twenty-two days, until it begins to sprout. The grain is then dried in a primitive kiln, such as is used for burning lime. A number of lath-like sticks are laid over the kiln, near the top, and over these is spread straw. Upon the straw the grain is placed. A slow fire of turf is then made in the bottom of the kiln, and the smoke and heat rising upward dries the grain. Enough grain to make fifteen gallons of liquor can be dried in a day. The grain is then ground between two limestones in a clumsy manner by the distiller's wife or daughter, for the whole family usually is engaged in the illicit work. When ground the grain is put into large casks and mixed with warm water. A preparation called barm—a kind of yeast—is added to it to make the mass ferment. The grain is left to steep there for forty-eight hours. It is then ready for the still.

The first product of the still is called beer. It is pleasant to taste and is sometimes given to the cattle to drink. The islanders, however, despise it as a beverage. It is not strong to suit their well-tempered palates. The first process consumes one night. The next night, if the coast is clear, the beer is put through a second course. This time a liquor comes out which is known as "singling." Although it is now white, and to the uninitiated would seem to be good enough poison for any reasonable man, still the distiller is not satisfied. He puts it through the boiler and worm once more, and now all the devilitry has been boiled and condensed out of the barley. The casks are filled and hidden, and the distiller on the first favorable dark night puts the whisky into his frail canoe and starts for the Arran islands, fifteen miles away. If he and the other two oarsmen are sober and the sea is calm, he crosses Galway bay in safety. If not, he drowns. His canoe drifts ashore, but the man is seldom found. Every year accidents of this kind occur. In the event of crossing the treacherous bay safely he has next to encounter the police and coast guards of Arran, whose glasses are continually sweeping the sea for his frail craft. As the shore is rocky and precipitous, he must find a harbor in one of the small bays and land his precious cargo and hide it among the rocks. Then begins the search for a purchaser. It is ludicrous to see this wild-looking fellow, who has never been shaved in his life, whose clothes are ragged, and whose general appearance is suggestive of poverty and ignorance, coming down the road in Arranmore, with his hands in his pockets and with an easy, nonchalant air, a sort of I-don't-know-anything-about-it expression. He is a Connemara moonshiner, and every police officer and man, woman and child in Arran recognizes him as such. But he hasn't been caught yet, and there are ten chances to one that he will dispose of his potheen safely, for after all the police are not half as black as they are painted, and often let a poor fellow get away whom they might easily have captured. There are speculators in Arran who buy the liquor and sell it again in the county of Clare, realizing a profit of from 25 cents to $1 per gallon. Occasionally the owner of a shebeen purchases a small keg, which she retails to the fishermen. The shebeen is usually a cottage owned by a widow who has no visible means of support. The invisible intoxicating means is hidden in the pile of turf in the yard. It is an easy matter for an American to get a drink of potheen in a shebeen. In fact, an American can have anything an Irishman has got excepting his wife, so ardent is the admiration of the Irish for the Western El Dorado. But an Englishman would require to be well vouched for before the bottle is fetched from its hiding place.

WHY HE DIDN'T MARRY HER.

The Exceeding Difference Betwixt Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

"Say, do you see that girl?"

"Why, yes; she's a beauty, too."

"Well, you can just bet she is. I was engaged to her once."

Then there was silence for the space of two minutes, says the New York Sun, as the two men drew near and passed the pretty young woman. Then the young man in the box coat remarked:

"You didn't speak to each other. How is that?"

"Well, you see," explained the gentleman with the black mustache and gray hair, "it's a very peculiar story. Sounds like a romance, but it's true, every word of it. I met her two years ago down at Long Branch. She was the daughter of an old Russian count, who was reputed to be worth at least half a million. I fell dead in love with her, and she seemed to be very much attached to me. Well, you know Thompson? I invited him down to stay with me for a week or two. He came, of course. Never knew Thompson to refuse an invitation. He met the count's daughter. They fell in love with each other at first sight. He proposed after he'd known her [illegible] days, and she accepted him. [illegible]

"Well, it made me [illegible]. I knew the fellow only wanted the girl's money, so I put up a job on him. I told him that the count had failed, and that he wasn't worth a copper. As I expected, the blackguard went back to New York that night, and the next day wrote the girl a letter saying that he had been mistaken and asking to be released. The girl waxed indignant and sent him flying, and then I went to work and proposed myself. She accepted me. Well, all went on smoothly for a week, when—"

"What happened then? Did you marry the girl?" asked the box-coated gentleman.

"No-o. You see at the end of the week the old count died, and when his accounts were looked up it was discovered that instead of having a half million to his credit he was in debt to the tune of $200,000. Of course, you see, after that I couldn't marry the girl very well, you know. Much as I can do to support myself."

SHEDDING HIS ANTLERS.

How the Great Elk Stag Loses His Beauty in the Spring.

"Come with me and I will show you something curious," said Dan Neeson, the keeper of the deer park at Golden Gate Park, to a San Francisco Examiner reporter. "Our great elk stag, the one we got a few months ago from Menlo Park, has shed his horns and you would not recognize him."

On reaching the fence that surrounded the pen, the elk was found at the fodder trough calmly eating his dinner of cracked barley and apparently oblivious to the curious crowd that surrounded him. He was hardly recognizable. The magnificent antlers that had rendered him the admiration of the visitors were missing, and nothing remained but raw, blood-marked limbs. The elk was as docile as a cow, and submitted without opposition to the caresses of the crowd, and appeared to thoroughly enjoy their strokings.

"He shed his horns on Saturday morning," continued the keeper. "Of late he has been more than usually ferocious, in fact so much so that it was dangerous to my life to enter the pen to feed the deer. On Friday he would not allow me to enter the enclosure at all. On Saturday morning I failed to find him in his usual place, and on my way to the deerhouse to hunt him up I came across one of his antlers in the gulley, and within a short distance I found the other. I then knew what was the matter, and entering boldly into the house I found him standing with the deer cow, as quiet and as docile as a child. Why, he then ate some food out of my hand. I took the antlers to the superintendent's office, where they now are."

At the office the antlers were seen, and a magnificent set they are, having on the beam horn six protuberances, one for each year of the stag's age. They weighed seventy pounds, and when set in position measured seven feet from tip to tip on the spread.

New antlers will begin to grow on the stag by the middle of March, and will increase rapidly in length until they attain full size.

HEALY WAS A BRUTE.

Alleged Cruelty of the Revenue Cutter Bear's Commander.

THE TERROR OF THE ARCTIC SEAS

Witnesses Against the Chief Officer Spirited Away—Story of the Abused Sailors—The Art of "Tricing Up."

The investigation into the alleged cruelty of Commander M. A. Healy, of the revenue cutter Bear, during a cruise in the Arctic, now in progress at San Francisco, is exciting as much attention throughout the country as is the inquiry into the conduct of Commander McCalla, of the United States ship Enterprise. While the testimony in the former case has not all been taken, yet, making due allowance for the bias of witnesses, it seems impossible to doubt that inhuman tortures have been inflicted by Healy's orders for trivial or purely imaginary offenses. The San Francisco community has a strong stomach in matters of nautical brutalities. Accustomed to atrocities of such attaches of the sea as "Sunrise Harris," and Watts, of the Gatherer, these repeated complaints of Healy's severities have attracted comparatively little attention until this year. But at last the public is beginning to realize that where there is so much smoke there must be some fire. Commander Healy has cruised in Northern waters for many years of late in the Bear, and before that in the Corwin. Every year his return has been heralded by the complaints of the whaling and other crews with whom he happened to be brought in contact. Sometimes the complaints have been unjust, and have been shown to be so, and that fact, until this year, has given Healy the reputation of a persecuted man. Encouraged by immunity, he has apparently allowed his domineering instincts to carry him beyond all bounds.

The case with which the pending investigation is dealing is that of the cruel punishment of three sailors of the coaling bark Estella. In June last, according to the story of the men, the Estella was approaching Oonalaska. The captain was drunk, as usual. The vessel was near shore, and the captain directed the man at the wheel to put the helm down, an order which, if obeyed, would have driven the craft on the rocks. The man hesitated, and the mate, seeing the danger, ordered him to put the helm up. He did so, and the drunken captain snatched the wheel from his hands, changed the course of the ship and drove her ashore.

Next day, by the exertions of the men, the Estella was worked off, when the captain interfered and grounded her again. At last she succeeded in reaching port without further mishap. Then the mate improved the occasion by getting drunk himself. One of the sailors was ordered by the captain to attend to something on shore. He started to go, when the mate told him to stay where he was. After considering the situation he decided to obey the captain, and as he started to do so the mate struck him. The sailor retaliated by knocking his superior down. This, it is believed, will constitute Commander Healy's defense for his subsequent severity. He was "suppressing a mutiny" on the Estella.

Three weeks later, things on the Estella having remained calm meantime, and the captain and mate having spent most of their time in a state of harmonious inebriation, the Bear was lying alongside the bark after taking in a supply of coal. As she sheered off Roy Franderson and Alfred Holben were standing on the rail of the Estella. Holben said:

"I wonder where our captain is."

Healy overheard the remark and called out, "Are you talking?" Holben said, "Yes, sir." Healy ordered the master-at-arms of the Bear to put him in irons. A little later, Franderson asked why his companion had been ironed. Captain Avery, of the Estella, and Commander Healy, of the Bear, were standing together. Avery immediately ordered the master-at-arms of the Bear to iron Franderson. Otto Dawertz then asked the reason for that, when Healy ordered him also into irons along with the rest. By this time the thirst of the remaining members of the Estella's crew for information had been assuaged, and none of them asked any more questions.

The three sailors were taken on board the Bear and [illegible] up. The master-at-arms of the Bear, who performed this interesting ceremony, explained his method on the stand. The arms of the sailors were bent behind their backs, with their hands manacled together. Ropes were then fastened to the handcuffs, passed through ring bolts overhead, and hauled up. Master-at-Arms Hughes testified that after he had hauled the men up as high as he thought they ought to go, Lieutenant Buhner ordered him to trice them up higher. They were then hoisted up so high that their toes barely touched the deck, and they could be spun around like tops.

After remaining in this position five to seven minutes each, suffering intense agony, they were taken down and seated with their backs against stanchions, around which their arms were stretched and fettered behind. They were kept in this position for four hours and then triced up again, after which Commander Healy seems to have thought their crime sufficiently punished.

Tricing up seems to be a favorite method of maintaining discipline with Healy. In the course of his examination the master-at-arms of the Bear mentioned incidentally that on the 5th of July twenty-one sailors of the bark Wanderer were put in irons by the autocrat of the revenue cutter. Six of them were tied up in the rigging, and one fainted, so that it was necessary to call the surgeon of the Bear to his relief. The trouble in this case is believed to have been that the crew of the Wanderer had mutinied at being compelled to work continuously and demanded a division of their time into watches.

In the case of the Estella, Franderson swore that his tortures were increased by the fact that his irons were too small, and that his arms were too short to go around the stanchion to which he was pinioned. Dawertz alleged that his shoulder was thrown out of joint and remained so weak as to be very easily dislocated ever since. Dr. F. Bass testified as an expert that such punishment as was described would cause acute pain, temporary paralysis of the muscles, and disturbance of the circulation, and would be likely to induce permanent injury to the joints.

The sailors do not expect a verdict against Commander Healy. The feeling against him among workingmen is extremely bitter, but he is popular with the influential classes of the community, as he always takes the side of captains against crews. The men in authority swear by him. They regard him as a conservator of order. When he got into his present trouble the whaling captains in port united in presenting him a testimonial. The shipowners are working for him as if they were brothers. The feeling of at least a part of the commission that is investigating him may be judged from the fact that, when the prosecution was about to put Dr. Bass on the stand to testify to the effects of tricing up, Commissioner Bailhache asked why such a witness should be called when he himself was a physician and as competent to give expert testimony as anybody. The whole water front is working for Healy, say the sailors. Witnesses are intimidated or shipped off.

There are three civil suits for damages pending against Commander Healy, and it seems impossible to bring them to trial. They are continually postponed and probably will continue to be, at least until after the report of the commission is in. The members of this body are Collector P. G. Phelps, Captain John M. White, of the revenue marine, and Surgeon P. H. Bailhache, of the United States Marine hospital. Of these gentlemen the last two, at least, have natural prepossessions in favor of the defendant. Commander Healy is not by any means a fiend. He is simply a natural despot, whose autocratic temperament has been developed by a long course of unrestrained sovereignty in regions in which the commander of a revenue cutter is a proconsul, whose whims are law. It is admitted on all hands that he has been kind to his own men. It is the luckless mariners on whaling and coaling vessels who have tales of barbarity to tell.

Healy has been in the habit of acting the part of a savior of society in Alaskan waters, and has made it his business to quell, by what he considered the most efficient means, any symptoms of insubordination on board the merchantmen. The divine right of a captain to get drunk and maltreat his crew has been one that he has upheld with especial enthusiasm. His accusers say that he has been drunk most of the time himself, but while they profess absolute certainty of the truth of this charge, they have not yet been able to substantiate it by direct proof. Master-at-Arms Hughes swore that he was sober when he ordered the sailors of the Estella to be triced up.

CONVICTING ANIMALS.

How They Were Regularly Tried and Punished in the Middle Ages.

In the middle ages the lower animals were frequently tried, convicted, and punished for various offences. Mr. Baring Gould has collected some curious cases of this kind. In 1266 a pig was burned at Fontenay-aux-Roses, near Paris, for having eaten a child. In 1386 a judge at Falaise condemned a sow to be mutilated and hanged for a similar offence. Three years later a horse was solemnly tried before the magistrate and condemned to death for having killed a man.

During the fourteenth century oxen and cows might be legally killed whenever taken in the act of marauding; and asses, for a first offence, had one ear cropped, for a second offence the other ear, and if after this they were asses enough to commit a third offence, their lives became forfeit to the crown. "Criminal" animals frequently expiated their offences, like other malefactors, on the gallows; but subsequently they were summarily killed without trial, and their owners mulcted in heavy damages.

In the fifteenth century it was popularly believed that cocks were intimately associated with witches, and they were sometimes credited with the power of laying accursed eggs, from which sprang winged serpents. In 1474, at Bale, a cock was publicly accused of having laid one of these dreadful eggs. He was tried, sentenced to death, and, together with his egg, was burned by the executioner in the market place amid a great concourse of people.

In 1691, during the witch persecutions in New England, a dog exhibited such strange symptoms of affliction that he was believed to have been ridden by a warlock, and he was accordingly hanged. Snails, flies, mice, ants, caterpillers, and other obnoxious creatures have been similarly proceeded against and condemned to various punishments, mostly in ecclesiastical courts. And, stranger still, inanimate objects have suffered the same fate.

In 1685, when the Protestant chapel at Rochelle was condemned to be demolished, the bell thereof was publicly whipped for having assisted heretics with its tongue. After being whipped it was catechized, compelled to recant, and then baptized and hung up in a Roman Catholic place of worship. Probably similar absurdities may have been perpetrated in our own country, for it must be remembered that only in the present reign was the law repealed which made a cartwheel, a tree or a beast which had killed a man forfeit to the state for the benefit of the poor.

It had been said that punishment is not likely to be efficacious unless it swiftly follows the offence. This was improved on by a Barbary Turk, who, whenever he bought a fresh Christian slave had him hung up by the heels and bastinadoed, on the principle, it is supposed—though the application is decidedly singular—that prevention is better than cure.

It came out in an English court a few days ago that 100 worn-out horses had just been shipped from that country to Germany and Belgium to be used up in the manufacture of sausages, and that such shipments were a regular thing.

Clubs are multiplying in Boston with amazing rapidity; in fact the city seems to be club mad. This gives point to a recent remark of a bright woman, "We are returning," she said, "to the days of savagery, and are being clubbed to death."

A return has just been issued showing that 412,342 English ladies are entitled to vote in county council contests, this number including 65,161 women voters in London alone. In municipal elections the total number of ladies entitled to a vote in the boroughs of England and Wales is 213,418.

The great Bear river canal in Utah, for the construction of which $2,000,000 has been provided, is expected to be one of the most extensive irrigation works in this country. It will irrigate 200,000 acres in Salt Lake valley and 6,000,000 on Bear river, increasing the value of the land to $30 an acre. Bear lake is in Eastern Idaho. The reservoir for the canal covers 150 square miles.

It seems that the African elephant is in danger of being as thoroughly exterminated as has been the American bison. Elephants not many years ago roamed the dark continent in countless herds, but the demand for ivory has caused them to be relentlessly hunted, and they have become so scarce that the supply of ivory has greatly decreased, and its price has advanced in proportion.

A 14-year-old boy living at Hookstown, Pa., went to a trap he had set for a fox, and found a big wildcat in it. Johnny attempted to kill the animal with a club, but it sprang at him with such force that it broke the chain by which the trap was anchored, and landed square with its forepaws on the boy's chest, tearing the clothing away and sinking its claws in the little fellow's flesh. The boy stood his ground and killed the animal with a club.

"THE KING'S TOUCH" SUPERSTITION.

In England, two centuries ago, popular superstition credited the "Royal Touch" with curing scrofula; and although for scoffing at the idea in 1691 the King was declared to be an "infidel," even his "faithless" touch was credited with a cure. These superstitious practices have now become obsolete, and in their place we have a scientific remedy in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which eliminates the impurities from the blood by the natural channels, thereby cleansing the system of all taints and impurities from whatever cause arising. It is truly a royal remedy, world-famed and guaranteed to benefit or cure in every case, or money paid for it will be refunded. The only blood-purifier ever so guaranteed and sold by druggists. As a regulator of the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, "Golden Medical Discovery" cures all bilious attacks, Indigestion and Dyspepsia, Chronic Diarrhea and kindred ailments. For all derangements caused by malaria, as Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, and Bilious Fever, it is specific. As an alterative or blood-purifier, it manifests its marvelous properties in the cure of the worst Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, and Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, as well as Lung-scrofula, commonly known as Pulmonary Consumption, if taken in time and given a fair trial.
